THE seed trade convention at Chicago will draw an unusually large attendance this month, as it is a long time since there was a large gathering of seedsmen in the central states.

VERNON HARRIS, of the McVay Seed & Floral Co., of Birmingham, Ala., has made plans to attend the annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association at Chicago this month.

IOWANS IN SESSION.

Des Moines, Ia., June 7.—The Iowa Seed Dealers' Association convened here today with an almost full attendance, nearly every seed house of any consequence in the state being represented. The excellent showing is due, the members say, to the energy put into his work by Secretary A. M. Eldridge, of Shenandoah. The first day is devoted to business, the second to recreation and visiting, the officers of the Iowa Seed Co. acting as hosts and guides. The Iowa seedsmen are for the upholding of the disclaimer and the universal use of the cental system in seed selling.

CONDONS GET SEED FARM.

Condon Bros., of Rockford, Ill., recently purchased the McFarland farm, in Guilford township, adjacent to Rockford, which will be known as Rock River Valley Seed Farm and on which

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming Giant Pansies

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and their unusual hardiness. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March, or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for autumn planting for early bedding, and early cut flowers. Supplied in yellow, white, sky blue, velvety purple, blue and mixture. Seed ready July 1.

they will conduct extensive trials in addition to growing stock seeds of beans, corn, onions, peas, beets and radishes. In passing it is worth noting that the original transfer of this farm from the government, in 1839, was at $1.25 per acre and today's value is $250, which demonstrates conclusively why seeds cost more than in years gone by. L. R. Condon states that the 1916 season has been the best in the history of the firm.

PRIORITY OF SEED LIENS.

The lien given by the North Dakota statutes for the price of seed furnished to grow a crop of grain is not superior, but inferior, to other liens or mortgages which attached to the land before the seed was furnished, according to the view adopted by the Supreme court of the state in the case of Strand vs. Marin, 152 Northwestern Reporter 280.

S.

BREACH OF GROWING CONTRACT.

The plaintiff sold to the defendant 150 barrels of seed potatoes for $300, the defendant agreeing to plant them and to deliver the yield to the plaintiff on demand before a fixed date, at a price of 50 cents per barrel higher than the market price for table stock. It was further agreed that the defendant would pay an additional sum of $450 to the plaintiff for the seed, if the plaintiff should "fulfill this agreement." The seed potatoes were planted and the yield was harvested and stored, but before the plaintiff demanded delivery of the crop and before the expiration of the time in which he was to make demand the yield was destroyed by fire, which was not attributable to the fault of either party. The plaintiff then demanded delivery and, that being impossible, brought suit to recover the $450 agreed to be paid him on his performance of the contract. The suit was defended on the ground that the destruction of the yield without the defendant's fault exonerated him from liability to pay the $450, but the Maine Supreme Judicial court decided in favor of the plaintiff, holding that since there was no showing that the seed potatoes were not worth $750—the total price to be paid, including the $300 paid at the time of the purchase—there was a valid consideration for the defendant's promise to pay the $450, and that the plaintiff, having performed his part of the contract, was entitled to the extra payment sued for.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. J.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

THE death of William L. McKay, nurseryman of Geneva, N. Y., which occurred May 25, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

FRANK W. POWER, known to many in the trade as formerly associated with the Orenco Nursery Co., died at Salem, Ore., last week, of blood poisoning.

THE indications are that the new, now 1-year-old, plan of organization of the American Association of Nurserymen will add materially to the interest, if not to the attendance, at the approaching Milwaukee convention.

CHAIRMAN STARK, of the program committee for the Milwaukee convention, plans to have something doing every minute. But in order to maintain the new plan of assessment dues it will be necessary to have some of the sessions executive.

THE Nurserymen's Association of Massachusetts held a meeting at the estate of General S. M. Weld, at Dedham, Mass., May 19. Growing conditions and legislative matters pertaining to the trade were discussed. Luncheon was served by the host.

DESTRUCTIVE SCALE INSECTS.

Specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture report that the oyster-shell scale and the scurfy scale are more frequently the subject of inquiry by orchardists than all other species of scale insects combined, with the exception of the San Jose scale.

Although the insects winter in the egg stage under the protecting scales and are, therefore, less susceptible to washes that are effective against the San Jose scale, yet such treatment in most cases will reduce their numbers to a point where little injury from them will result. Special spraying may be necessary to hold them in check if spraying for the San Jose scale is not carried on.

The oyster-shell scale is the more important of the two. It occurs in nearly every state in the country and attacks apple, maple, horse chestnut, poplar, willow, lilac and more than a score of other trees. Shade trees which are not often sprayed are especially susceptible to attack. Maple and poplar trees in some cases are completely incrusted from top to bottom of the trunk.

The insect owes its name to its resemblance to a long, narrow oyster shell. The adult female scales are dark brown in color and about one-eighth of an inch in length. The eggs are concealed beneath them. In the warmer climates there are two broods each year, but in the extreme northern part of the country and in Canada there is only one. The time of the hatching of these broods varies greatly, but it usually occurs through the months of April, May and June.

The scurfy scale is especially common on apple, pear, cherry and peach trees. It does not attack so wide a variety of plants as the oyster-shell scale and this fact, coupled with its being less widely distributed than the latter, makes it the less harmful of the two. The scurfy scale, like the oyster-shell, winters in the egg condition under the scales. The scale of the female is dirty gray in color and of an irregular pear shape.

Where orchards are pruned and sprayed regularly for the San Jose scale during the dormant period, this will usually be sufficient to hold both the oyster-shell scale and the scurfy scale in check. Where this is not done and the scales prove troublesome, specific treatment is necessary.

The spraying is usually done in the same manner as for the San Jose scale, using the lime-sulphur mixture and applying it when the trees are dormant. If an abundance of young scales hatch in the spring notwithstanding such treatment, additional spraying is necessary. Kerosene emulsion or other contact sprays may be used to kill the newly-hatched insects. Only the insects hit by the spray are killed; therefore the effectiveness of this second spraying depends largely upon whether it is done at the time the scales hatch, and whether the tree is thoroughly covered with a uniform coat. The young insects usually appear during the spring and sometimes in the early summer. Trees which have become infested should be carefully watched during this period to discover the insects when they hatch and to apply the spray at this time, when it will do the most good. The insects are easily distinguished, are light yellow in color, and are found crawling over the trees in great numbers.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

Business has been quiet since the beginning of the month. The market is well supplied with choice stock of every description. Peonies and miniature gladioli are in good demand. The baby gladioli are not so choice as in other years.

Memorial day business in Detroit was nothing special. Of course, the florists near the cemeteries sold considerable stock, especially in potted plants, but in cut flowers there was little doing. Many of the downtown retailers, anticipating a big demand and being enthusiastic, put in an extra large supply of stock, but these were doomed to disappointment.

Various Notes.

E. A. Fetters recently moved his upper Woodward avenue store into the building adjoining. Both the center store and the store on the south are occupied by a catering company, and archways have been broken through, these being closed with French doors. This practically makes the three stores as one.

Norman Sullivan, who has been on the sick list for about four months, is back in harness, although much handicapped at times by rheumatism.

H. S.

Montreal, Canada.—The new branch store of McKenna, Ltd., opened November 1 at Quebec city, has done well, having had sales of almost $11,000 to May 1, its first half year. CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Peonies still are shy on the market; only southern stock is to be had. The local crop will be heavy about June 10 to 15, which is late for this locality. Carnations are more plentiful than at any time this year. Roses are in good supply, but their quality is poor. Valley and lilies are scarce.

Various Notes.

George and Herbert Bate, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., headed a fishing party to their cottage on Turkey Foot lake, near Akron, this week.

C. Betscher, of Canal Dover, has been sending some choice peonies to this market from his plantings at Marietta, on the Ohio river. May 15 he began cutting, P. umbellata rosea, Duchesse de Nemours, Jenny Lind, Feliz Crousse, Octave Demay and Floral Treasure.

M. A. Vinson is busy boosting the industrial exposition and fair, which is to be staged in ten large tents at Edgewater park, September 2 to 9. The show is promoted by the Chamber of Industry. A flower show is to be staged in connection with the other exhibits.

City Architect Betz has returned from a tour of the west, where he has been investigating public halls and coliseums before completing the plans of Cleveland's big auditorium. The city officials say the building will be completed early in 1918. F. A. F.

Elkhart, Ind.—Suit for $50,000 damages has been filed in the Indiana Federal court by William and Ellis Currier against the Chicago House-Wrecking Co., of Chicago, and T. Hughes and S. S. Stutsman, of Elkhart. The Curriers allege that their florists' business was almost destroyed by the defendants through filing of an involuntary petition in bankruptcy. A receiver was appointed, but the case ended in the Curriers being declared solvent.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Memorial day proved another busy day for the florists and growers and almost everybody cleaned up on both cut flowers and potted stock. A noticeable feature this year was the greatly increased demand for magnolia wreaths with artificial flowers. Small potted plants, especially geraniums, found a ready sale. Prices were slightly advanced, but not so much as in previous years, the strain being relieved by the use of the artificials. Saturday, June 3, was preparedness day, and for this occasion several of the enterprising downtown florists offered red, white and blue bouquets of carnations and bachelor's buttons.

Various Notes.

The florists' business was well represented in the preparedness parade, about 100 men marching in the florists' division. Robert Johnston, of Johnston Bros., was the marshal of the division, with James Dillon, L. Dickinson, William H. O'Connor, Laurence Hay, Alexander Macrae and Herbert West as assistant marshals.

SNAPDRAGON POINTERS

To be most successful it is better to be governed by tested rules. We give a few pointers regarding Snapdragon, taken from our experimental records:

Sow seed of our genuine Silver Pink Snapdragon before June 15; follow directions on topping and benching, setting the plants 12x15. The first crop of blooms will come in December, which should be cut, leaving all other growth. The myriads of shoots left should begin flowering in February and continue to flower until June. There should be from 30 to 50 shoots on each plant. If your trade calls for heavy spikes, thin them out. If for medium spikes, let all remain.

So much for the greatest and most productive Snapdragon in existence. Treatment for other varieties will be about the same, except they can be planted closer.

Snapdragon is our one business. No better seeds can be produced. Each variety grown for seed is kept under glass in separate houses. We offer pure seed as follows: Our original Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Phelps' White, Yellow, Garnet Buxton and fancy mixed, at 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00. Free cultural directions. All orders cash.

We have a few thousand seedling plants of Silver Pink at $5.00 per 100.

Greenhouse Heating.

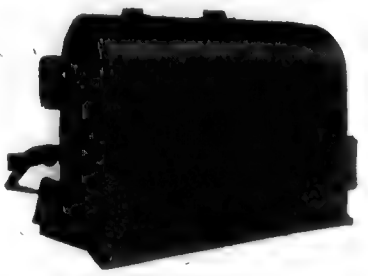
SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

WILL NEED LARGER FLOWS.

I am building a greenhouse 15x40. If I run two 1½-inch flows under the ridge and five returns under each side bench, can I maintain a temperature of 60 to 70 degrees when the outside temperature is not lower than 8 degrees above zero? The walls are solid to a height of three feet; above that there are two feet of glass in the side walls. The height to the ridge is eight feet. The house is well protected from winds. L. A. W.—Miss.

So far as the question of radiation only is concerned, the amount suggested would be sufficient to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees unless the outside temperature drops lower than 10 degrees above zero, but we do not advise carrying five 1½-inch returns, forty feet in length, with one 1½-inch flow pipe. We would use either two 2-inch flows or one 2½-inch flow in the house. If a temperature of 70 degrees is desired, we would add one return upon each wall.

A TWO-SECTION GREENHOUSE.



Will you kindly give me the necessary information in regard to the piping of the greenhouse shown in the enclosed sketch? We wish to heat with steam, using 1¼-inch or 1½-inch pipe. Please state how many pipes will be needed and how they should be placed in each room. W. A. W.—Idaho.

From the accompanying sketch it would appear that the house is 24x90, running east and west. The walls are five and one-half feet in height, with three feet of glass in the north wall. The south and west walls are constructed entirely of glass. A 20-foot space at the east end is partitioned off from the remainder of the house and has an 8-foot basement underneath. The boiler is to be placed in the southeast corner of this basement. The house has raised benches at each wall, and three other benches through the middle of the house. No indication is given of the temperature desired in either room, or of the minimum outside temperature, both of which must be known before any really definite suggestions can be offered with reference to the piping.

To heat the two rooms with steam to 60 degrees, when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero, we would run a 2-inch flow pipe on each plate and another three feet below the ridge, to the father end of the house, and there connect them with the coils, which should be made up as follows: On each wall, or under the side benches, place three 1¼-inch returns, and to the overhead flow pipe connect four returns, to be placed under the middle benches. Two returns may be placed under each of two benches, or two may be located under one bench and one under each of the others. If three 1½-inch pipes are used as flows, which will give good results, an additional return under the middle benches will be needed. If 50 degrees will answer, use three 1½-inch flows and eight returns. For an outside temperature lower than 10 degrees below zero, use from one to three extra returns, as will be needed.

One 2½-inch main flow will answer for the entire system and, if preferred, may be substituted for the three flows already suggested, adding two returns in place of 1½-inch flows and three returns in place of 2-inch flows, thus making thirteen returns in all, when one 2½-inch flow is used. Five of these returns should be under the middle benches.

benches and will have a glass roof. The building must face the south. Would you recommend steam or hot water for heating the house? We are eighty miles south of the Canadian border and have about six months of steady winter weather. Is it possible to grow carnations successfully in a north and south building? R. G.—Minn.

The letter states that "the building must face the south" and, although the description is not entirely clear to us, we infer that the salesroom is at the south end of a north and south house. Whether the boiler room is at the same end of the house we are not certain, but will consider that the boiler and workroom are at the north end of the house.

It really makes little difference which way the houses run, so far as the successful growing of carnations is concerned, although in the extreme northern sections of the country we find that, in houses kept below 60 degrees, the snow which accumulates on the north slope of the roof of houses running east and west is a serious objection. In the house described, if the salesroom is at the south end, the shadows formed by the partition will retard the growth of the plants in the south end of the carnation house.

If the salesroom is built in the same way as the remainder of the house, we would run a 2½-inch flow pipe upon each plate through both houses, and connect each of them with four 2-inch returns, placing two on each wall and two under each side bench. We would also run a 2½-inch flow pipe under the ridge through the carnation house and connect it with four 2-inch returns, which should be distributed under the middle benches. For houses of this size, which are too small for using a night fireman, we would use hot water, selecting a boiler with a rating of 600 square feet of radiation.

The suggested rating and piping are for a house with no glass in the side

Miles of Steam Pipes Millions of Heat Units

In the miles of steam pipes that heat your greenhouses, steam containing many dollars' worth of heat units is condensing into water every season.

Of course, you are drawing this water off—for the heating plant will not do its work unless the pipes are kept clear—but in drawing it off, are you wasting the heat units that remain in the hot water?

Water from city supply is usually about 60° F., but from a well, considerably colder. The boiling point of water is 212° F., and the temperature of the condensation in your pipes but a trifle below that.

In other words, if you are not utilizing the hot water that condenses in your heating coils you are wasting enough coal to raise the water almost 150°.

And when you consider the amount of water that must be turned into steam to supply your heating coils, you can see that this is no small item.

There is a way to remove the condensation from your heating plant and "boost" it again into steam.

The "Detroit" System, once it is installed, will do this automatically:—There are no pumps to watch, no drain cocks to open, no power used in operating the device.

The "Detroit" System has advantages over the pump or other means of handling condensation.

It returns the water to the boiler just a trifle under the boiling point; there is no waiting for the water to cool.

There is a "Detroit" System to meet every problem of condensation.

Just write the particulars about your greenhouse heating plant, and we will send you full description of the "Detroit" Systems and will advise you as to which one best suits your needs.

Decoration day business was large, both in plants and cut flowers. Anything that resembled a flower sold. The weather was good and great crowds attended the services at the cemeteries.

Various Notes.

Otto Kuebler, of Newburg, is bringing in good tomatoes from under glass.

Julius Niednagel & Sons cut about 15,000 carnations for Decoration day. Business was splendid. This concern had a large number of French hydrangeas in various-sized pots at popular prices and the demand for them was good.

The William Blackman Floral Co. experienced a large business Decoration day. The cuts of roses, carnations and other flowers were large.

Karl Zeidler was as busy as he could be and disposed of large quantities of plants.

Miss Nellie Goodge reports a larger business than ever for Decoration day. She had a batch of fine peonies.

Royston & Fenton have some smilax in 2-inch pots coming on for the wholesale trade. E. L. F.

Fargo, N. D.—It is reported that the Smedley Floral Co. has made plans for the erection of greenhouses this summer at a cost of $35,000.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Last week was an extremely long one for florists. The work of decorating the cemeteries Memorial day called for the best efforts of the entire trade in the city. Attractive sprays, wreaths and emblems were fashioned of flowers popular at this time of the year. There were elaborate fillings of vases, birchwood boxes and other receptacles of plants.

There has been much business in decorations for weddings, graduations and other festivities occurring at this time of the year. The retailers now are finding it difficult to obtain flowers, more especially plants, which are decidedly scarce. Marguerites, vincas and geraniums of first-class quality really are not to be had.

Various Notes.

Hans Rosacker has a splendid stock of vincas, but, alas, these he requires for his own orders.

The Lakewood Cemetery Greenhouses sold most of the plants for garden vases and window boxes. They had an extremely busy week.

The city had splendid weather Decoration day and all the stores put up fine window displays.

William F. Holmes had a handsome appearing store last week. Among the roses and carnations were many spring flowers. Here, too, was a display of unique novelties.

Miss H. B. Whitted had a fine display of sea plants, cut flowers, ferns, etc. Pretty effects were made with orchids, roses, lilies and palms.

The Mazey Floral Co. store is a pretty spot. Situated at Marquette and Eighth streets, in a district of fine buildings, the tastefully decorated windows make a good showing.

O. C. Swanson had a splendid display of gladioli last week.

Baskets of sweet peas, valley and roses in the window of the Sunshine Florist last week caught the eye of every passer-by. F. E. B.

The Market.

Conditions since Memorial day have not been all that could be desired. Large quantities of peonies and other stock arrived May 31. There was an avalanche of roses and carnations, so that wholesalers were swamped, and there was no important demand to relieve the congestion. The retailers are not complaining, as they are all fairly busy, as well as the plantsmen. The weather is quite cool and frost was reported in low places June 2. Shippers of sweet peas suffered a great loss during the early part of the week on account of the hot weather.

Various Notes.

De Forest Ludwig appears to be much improved and since his return has spent most of his time on the farm. He has been cutting large quantities of peonies and fine outdoor valley.

Mrs. Samuel McClements, who has been ill for some time, was taken to the hospital last week.

Stock is becoming scarcer every day. Fortunately, there has been no hot weather to create transportation difficulties. Planting out has begun in earnest, although at this time last year it was completed. Frequent rains and shortage of labor have proved severe drawbacks this season, but it is hoped the work will be completed in time to prevent inconvenience later.

Various Notes.

Men continue to enlist and the Dale Estate has been greatly handicapped, fifty per cent of its employees having joined the various regiments going to the front.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Business last week was booming, owing to the Memorial day trade and the large number of bedding plant orders. The Memorial day business proved a record-breaker, and the florists feel well satisfied with the results of their advertising campaign. The demand centered chiefly on bouquets, although the sale of blooming plants for this occasion was larger than ever before. Local peonies were exceedingly plentiful and were in fine demand, although there was no shortage in any other line.

This is Centennial week, during which Fort Wayne will celebrate the one-hundredth anniversary of Indiana's statehood. Several florists have handsome booths in the exposition, and exhibit not only plants and cut flowers, but also wedding and graduation bouquets, table decorations and funeral work. The celebration has called for a great deal of planting. Many out-of-town people are expected for the pageant and florists are anticipating a busy week in counter sales.

Various Notes.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey have been exceedingly busy in their landscape department. They are cutting some fine Cattleya gigas and Shawyer roses. This firm has a big booth at the industrial exposition.

Miss Marguerite Flick will leave this week for a visit at Terre Haute.

The Flick Floral Co. reports a tremendous Memorial day trade. The daily newspapers were used and attractive folders and blotters were sent out, advertising Memorial day flowers. The planting trade this year has been the best in the history of the company.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. are cutting a fine lot of carnations. They had a rushing trade for Memorial day, in which plants were a big factor. They have a booth at the exposition this week, in charge of Miss Eleen Lanternier.

The Doswell Floral Co. reports a fine Memorial day trade. Miss Rhoda Doswell had charge of the decoration of the bird room of the women's building in the centennial celebration this week. The company has a booth at the exposition. R. F.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Last week found business excellent. Memorial day and the various commencements were the leading factors. The supply of stock was large, and, although prices were low, the sales ran into a considerable sum.

Roses are in heavy supply, but plainly show the effects of the hot weather. Carnations, too, are plentiful; so are Easter lilies. Gladioli are excellent and prove to be good property. The cut of outdoor sweet peas is heavy. Water lilies are now in the market. Valley is meeting with a good call. Snapdragons sell fairly well. Other flowers in the market are orchids, callas, cornflowers, coreopsis and peonies. Greens are abundant.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held June 12.

C. E. Critchell must leave the premises he is now occupying, as they lie in the pathway of the Green Line terminals. Mr. Critchell has had a good call for wild smilax.

P. J. Olinger's new red carnation, Radium, was greatly in demand for commencement bouquets last week.

L. H. Kyrk was the first in the market to offer coreopsis. It proved popular.

Thomas Windram has left for a visit to Leesburg, Fla.

Recent visitors included F. M. Peck, of Toledo, O., and Pierce Julian, of Roan Mountain, Tenn. C. H. H.

Greenville, Mich. — The Greenville Floral Co. has reorganized and capitalized at $40,000. Six acres of land have been added to the range.

Cleveland, O.—Thirty-seven years in business, and in nearly all that time in one location, is a long and good record for any business. It is the record of A. Graham & Son, who have greenhouses at 12319 Euclid avenue and a store at 5523 Euclid avenue. Adam Graham came to Cleveland in 1863 and started the present establishment in 1879. He is assisted by his two sons, Adam H. and Charles J.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

PEONY GROWERS ARE AFTER THE AMATEURS

The American Peony Society, at its thirteenth exhibition and meeting, held in New York city last week, made a special effort to interest amateur growers. Membership gains are steady, but participation in meetings and exhibitions does not increase. Plans for next year show no change.

THIRTEEN is a proverbially unlucky number and may in a measure be responsible for the lack of interest displayed last week in the thirteenth annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society, held in New York. On the other hand, the absence of trade interest may in some part have been due to the announcement by Secretary Saunders in the preliminary premium list that "a special effort has been made this year to provide a list that shall offer something attractive to the amateur who has only a few plants of peonies, and not alone to the professional growers and to amateurs with large collections. Those who have only small collections will find in the 'Limited Amateur Classes' a place where they may be almost certain of winning something. It is earnestly hoped that these classes will bring out a large number of entries. If more amateurs realized the interest and incentive in staging blooms for competition there would be no lack of exhibitors. Amateurs with large collections should understand that they as well as the professional growers may enter any of the open classes."

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

President,
Bertrand H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa.

Vice-President,
A. H. Fewkes, Newton Highlands, Mass.

Treasurer,
J. H. Humphreys, Germantown, Pa.

Secretary,
A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.

1917 Meeting Place,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Little Competition.

But no amateurs did enter in the fourteen open classes and there were only four trade growers who exhibited in them; four of the fourteen classes failed to bring out a single entry. The Harding prize of $100 for an American seedling of outstanding merit was not awarded.

The amateurs made a slightly better showing than did the trade growers, numerically at least, as seven participated, three in the regular amateur classes and four in the "limited" classes, where only three blooms were required. Only one amateur class failed to get an entry and this was the amateur arrangement for effect, the prizes being cash and "achievement" medals offered by a gardening magazine.

The appearance is that the trade's interest in the peony has subsided with the passing of the boom of a decade ago, when florists and nurserymen were planting peonies by the acre, for cut blooms and for stock, and that the amateurs have not been impressed with the advantages that accrue with the winning of from $3 to $6 with a display of only three flowers. It is the fact, however, that the peony now stands higher in public appreciation than it ever did before and that, on the whole, florists are selling more cut blooms and both florists and nurserymen are selling more roots each year than in the years before. The Peony Society has done much good work, but a change in direction evidently is needed. For instance, all other exhibitions nowadays feature the retail florists' decorative displays and demonstrations, but last week's peony show ignored the retailer and his work; there was no attempt to show the use of the peony as a cut flower.

Nomenclature.

President Farr called the annual business meeting to order at the Hotel Astor, Friday evening, June 9. He had prepared no address, but spoke extemporaneously on the needs of the society and on the perennial question of nomenclature. The society's trials at Cornell University have pretty well settled questions as to synonyms, most of these now being matters of published record, but President Farr suggested there is a good work to be done in the simplification of names. He deplored the habit in Europe, whence have come the majority of our most generally grown varieties, to use long names, frequently those devoid of meaning, as in cases of the use of names of persons. He urged that short, descriptive names are much better and suggested that the secretary be instructed to write the principal peony interests in Europe stating the American society's attitude, urging that a name of one word be used in most cases, with never more than two words in the name for a new variety.

The Business Year.

Prof. Saunders, secretary, reported that thirty-four new members had been added to the list since last year's meeting. The membership now stands at 150, an increasing percentage being amateurs.

The treasurer's report, also presented by the secretary, showed a cash balance of slightly over $1,700, against $1,577.78 last year.

Officers Elected.

It has become custom in the Peony Society to reëlect its quartette of officers, as follows:

President—Bertrand H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa.

Vice-president—A. H. Fewkes, Newton Highlands, Mass.

Treasurer—J. H. Humphreys, Philadelphia.

Secretary—A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.

James Boyd, an amateur, of Haverford, Pa., was elected a director for three years to take the place of John M. Good, of Springfield, O., whose term expired.

Philadelphia was selected for the 1917 meeting, in coöperation with the June show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society.

Miscellaneous Business.

Mrs. Sarah A. Pleas, who was a pioneer peony specialist in Indiana, now resident at Whittier, Cal., was elected to honorary membership, as was the firm of Lemoine & Son, Nancy, France.

A vote of thanks was sent Mrs. Edward Harding, for her prize of $100 offered for a peony of American origin, not yet in commerce, light colored, double, to be awarded by the nomenclature committee of the Peony Society to such a variety as the committee would wish to put in its list of best sorts, open for competition until 1920 unless won before that date.

Life membership was created, the fee to be $25 and to be placed in a permanent fund.

Acting on President Farr's recommendation, the society voted to renew its effort to secure a complete collection of varieties for the trial grounds at Arlington Farm, near Washington, which the government maintains as the American Peony Society Collection.

In the past the gold medal first class on the premium list has called for a collection of not less than 100 varieties. This was changed by the adoption of a resolution striking out the words "not less than," so that it will read in future "Collection of 100 named varieties, one bloom of each."

A directors' meeting was authorized for midwinter to arrange for the Philadelphia meeting, with a view to securing increased attendance and more numerous entries.

The secretary was authorized to publish two bulletins in the coming year, the same as in the preceding year.

No action was taken following a discussion relative to admitting garden clubs as annual or life members.

Scale of Points.

At this meeting the society adopted the following as the first official American scale for judging cut blooms of the peony:

Color	20 points
Size	20 points
Stem	20 points
Form	15 points
Substance	15 points
Fragrance	10 points
Total	100 points

The Exhibition.

While the exhibition was smaller than many of its predecessors, it nevertheless made an excellent showing in the American Museum of Natural History. It had received so little publicity that the attendance was not large, even after the weather cleared, and at first it was handicapped by rains. The quality of the blooms was never better; while the season has been backward, the conditions seem to have favored the peony, for the flowers were fine. The collection of James Boyd, Philadelphia amateur, was specially commendable.

Nothing new developed. There was no award in any of the three classes for new varieties. The best blooms in the show were Kelway's Glorious, Marguerite Gerard, Germaine Bigot, Tourangelle, Humei carnea, Albatre, Mrs. Pleas' Jubilee, La Tendresse, Primevere, Duchesse de Nemours, Marie Crousse and Venus.

The Awards.

The awards in the open classes, where trade growers only competed, were as follows:

Collection of not less than 100 named varieties, one bloom of each—B. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa., first.

Vase or basket of peonies, not less than 100 blooms, arranged for effect—Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., first; B. H. Farr, second.

Twenty-five blooms, red or crimson, double, one variety—Cottage Gardens Co., first; B. H. Farr, second.

One specimen bloom, double, any variety—B. H. Farr, first; George H. Peterson, second; S. G. Harris, third.

In the regular amateur classes the exhibitors and prize-winners were James Boyd, Haverford, Pa.; A. L. Gifford, Tarrytown, Pa., and Prof. A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y. In the "limited amateur" classes the exhibitors and prize-winners were Arthur H. Scott, Oak Lane, Pa.; Lee R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O.; Mrs. Herbert K. Taylor, Ogontz, Pa., and L. J. Germann, Van Wert, O.

Miscellaneous Exhibits.

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., made an elaborate display not for competition, including a large variety of hardy perennials, irises, bulbous plants and other subjects for the garden.

Wm. Shillaber, of Essex Falls, N. J., had an exhibit of excellent sweet peas.

Prof. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., showed some handsome Japanese tree peonies and a bench bright with hardy perennials.

Mrs. H. K. Taylor, of Ogontz, Pa., in addition to competitive entries, had a large and fine display of peony blooms.

The Annual Dinner.

Prior to the business meeting of June 9, the members from out of town enjoyed their annual reunion dinner, served this time at the Hotel Astor. The affair was entirely informal and there were no speeches, although there was a lively discussion of peony matters during the meal. Those present were:

The season has been a somewhat cool and backward one and some sales of bedding plants will probably be made until the last of the month. It is a too common practice to leave small lots of miscellaneous bedding plants scattered here and there on benches or in frames, entailing a needless amount of labor in watering. If these are placed in frames or close together on the benches, much labor will be saved in watering and the plants will be more likely to get the water they need. Carry the empty pots away each day and stack them up. Do not leave them lying below or on the benches.

Have you planted out all the stock plants you need? If not, attend to it even at this late date. Particularly true is this of geraniums. You can buy rooted cuttings and plants from small pots at tempting prices, but home-propagated stock is away ahead of them. If you do not care to set the plants out in nursery rows, why not do a little tasteful planting about your home, or the approach to the greenhouses? Individual beds of a single color are usually best, and geraniums, cannas, heliotropes, verbenas, petunias, salvias, ageratums, lantanas, fibrous begonias and lobelias are all good for this purpose. Also, do not omit the planting of some scented geraniums and lemon verbenas, the two most popular scented-leaved plants we have.

Poinsettias.

Poinsettia propagation should now go on apace. Be sure to keep the stock plants in a light and not too warm house, where they get no shade. This will insure strong, stocky, short-jointed cuttings, which, when rubbed off with a heel, will root without much trouble if carefully watered and shaded. For dwarf stock in small pans, cuttings can be put in as late as the middle of August.

Stevias.

Stevias can be pot-grown through the summer or planted out in the field. They give no trouble when out in the field, and are sure to make big, bushy plants. At lifting time, however, they need careful handling. They are easily broken and unless they are sprayed freely and shaded for some days they are liable to "peter out." Pot-grown plants plunged to their brims will take considerable water in hot weather, but there is no breaking or wilting, such as we must anticipate in the field-grown stock.

membership now stands at 150, an increasing percentage being amateurs.

The treasurer's report, also presented by the secretary, showed a cash balance of slightly over $1,700, against $1,577.78 last year.

Officers Elected.

It has become custom in the Peony Society to reëlect its quartette of officers, as follows:

President—Bertrand H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa.

Vice-president—A. H. Fewkes, Newton Highlands, Mass.

Treasurer—J. H. Humphreys, Philadelphia.

Simone Chevelier, Light Pink Modeste Guerin, Rose.

Secretary—A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.

James Boyd, an amateur, of Haverford, Pa., was elected a director for three years to take the place of John M. Good, of Springfield, O., whose term expired.

Philadelphia was selected for the 1917 meeting, in coöperation with the June show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society.

Miscellaneous Business.

Mrs. Sarah A. Pleas, who was a pioneer peony specialist in Indiana, now resident at Whittier, Cal., was elected to honorary membership, as was the firm of Lemoine & Son, Nancy, France.

A vote of thanks was sent Mrs. Edward Harding, for her prize of $100 offered for a peony of American origin, not yet in commerce, light colored, double, to be awarded by the nomenclature committee of the Peony Society to such a variety as the committee would wish to put in its list of best sorts, open for competition until 1920 unless won before that date.

Life membership was created, the fee to be $25 and to be placed in a permanent fund.

Acting on President Farr's recommendation, the society voted to renew its effort to secure a complete collection of varieties for the trial grounds at Arlington Farm, near Washington, which the government maintains as the American Peony Society Collection.

In the past the gold medal first class on the premium list has called for a collection of not less than 100 varieties. This was changed by the adoption of a resolution striking out the words "not less than," so that it will read in future "Collection of 100 named varieties, one bloom of each."

A directors' meeting was authorized for midwinter to arrange for the Philadelphia meeting, with a view to securing increased attendance and more numerous entries.

The secretary was authorized to publish two bulletins in the coming year, the same as in the preceding year.

No action was taken following a discussion relative to admitting garden clubs as annual or life members.

Scale of Points.

At this meeting the society adopted the following as the first official American scale for judging cut blooms of the peony:

Color	20 points
Size	20 points
Stem	20 points
Form	15 points
Substance	15 points
Fragrance	10 points
Total	100 points

The Exhibition.

While the exhibition was smaller than many of its predecessors, it nevertheless made an excellent showing in the American Museum of Natural History. It had received so little publicity that the attendance was not large, even after the weather cleared, and at first it was handicapped by rains. The quality of the blooms was never better; while the season has been backward, the conditions seem to have favored the peony, for the flowers were fine. The collection of James Boyd, Philadelphia amateur, was specially commendable.

Nothing new developed. There was no award in any of the three classes for new varieties. The best blooms in the show were Kelway's Glorious, Marguerite Gerard, Germaine Bigot, Tourangelle, Humei carnea, Albatre, Mrs. Pleas' Jubilee, La Tendresse, Primevere, Duchesse de Nemours, Marie Crousse and Venus.

The Awards.

The awards in the open classes, where trade growers only competed, were as follows:

Collection of not less than 100 named varieties, one bloom of each—B. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa., first.

Vase or basket of peonies, not less than 100 blooms, arranged for effect—Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., first; B. H. Farr, second.

Twenty-five varieties, double, three blooms of each—George H. Peterson, Fairlawn, N. J., first; Cottage Gardens Co., second; B. H. Farr, third.

Collection of single varieties—B. H. Farr, first.

Twenty-five blooms, white or cream, double, one variety—S. G. Harris, Tarrytown, N. Y., first and second; B. H. Farr, third.

Twenty-five blooms, light pink or pink and cream, double, one variety—B. H. Farr, first, on Marguerite Gerard; Cottage Gardens Co., second; George H. Peterson, third.

Twenty-five blooms, dark pink, double, one variety—Cottage Gardens Co., first; S. G. Harris, second; B. H. Farr, third.

Twenty-five blooms, red or crimson, double, one variety—Cottage Gardens Co., first; B. H. Farr, second.

Six specimen blooms, double, any one variety—George H. Peterson, first, on Simone Chevelier; S. G. Harris, second, on Modeste Guerin.

One specimen bloom, double, any variety—B. H. Farr, first; George H. Peterson, second; S. G. Harris, third.

In the regular amateur classes the exhibitors and prize-winners were James Boyd, Haverford, Pa.; A. L. Gifford, Tarrytown, Pa., and Prof. A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y. In the "limited amateur" classes the exhibitors and Peony Marguerite Gerard, Premium Winner in Light Pink.

View in the Rotunda of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, During National Peony Show, June 9 to 11.

prize-winners were Arthur H. Scott, Oak Lane, Pa.; Lee R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O.; Mrs. Herbert K. Taylor, Ogontz, Pa., and L. J. Germann, Van Wert, O.

Miscellaneous Exhibits.

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., made an elaborate display not for competition, including a large variety of hardy perennials, irises, bulbous plants and other subjects for the garden.

Wm. Shillaber, of Essex Falls, N. J., had an exhibit of excellent sweet peas.

Prof. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., showed some handsome Japanese tree peonies and a bench bright with hardy perennials.

Mrs. H. K. Taylor, of Ogontz, Pa., in addition to competitive entries, had a large and fine display of peony blooms.

The Annual Dinner.

Prior to the business meeting of June 9, the members from out of town enjoyed their annual reunion dinner, served this time at the Hotel Astor. The affair was entirely informal and there were no speeches, although there was a lively discussion of peony matters during the meal. Those present were:

Farr, B. H., Wyomissing, Pa.
Schultz, E. K., Jenkintown, Pa.
Thurlow, Geo. C., West Newbury, Mass.
Boyd, James, Philadelphia, Pa.
Dauphin, Joseph, Queens, N. Y.
Gifford, A. L., New York.
Peterson, George H., Fairlawn, N. J.
Barron, Leonard, Garden City, N. Y.
Scott, Arthur H., Oak Lane, Pa.
Walcott, F. C., New York.
Brown, R. T., Queens, N. Y.
Dyklanis, J., Boskoop, Holland.
Harris, S. G., Tarrytown, N. Y.
Ouwerkerk, P., Weehawken, N. J.
Humphries, C.
Saunders, Prof. A. P., Clinton, N. Y.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

THE EAST TO HOUSTON.

John Young, 58 West Twenty-eighth street, New York, has been named as chairman of a committee to make plans and receive reservations for those who care to make the trip by water from New York to New Orleans for the Houston convention.

This is considered an ideal trip and all those going to the convention from the east should take advantage of this opportunity and write Mr. Young immediately, advising him of their intention of making the trip by water.

All members will go on the same boat, and it assures a most enjoyable time for those who can spare the time to make the trip this way. R. C. Kerr.

A CONFERENCE SUGGESTED.

The convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World begins Sunday, June 25, at Philadelphia. In looking over the program I see no mention of the florists having a departmental in connection with this affair and the thought occurred to me that the florists' business is now on a plane that entitles it to recognition among the other big businesses of the country; I believe that the wide-awake, up-to-date florists should identify themselves with this great advertising movement.

It seems to me that you, as leader in the field, should take this matter up with some of the leading lights among the florists of the country and organize a departmental meeting this year at Philadelphia. I sincerely believe that a call will be quickly answered, especially by the eastern florists around Philadelphia.

I hope to hear some response to this and to meet many florists at Philadelphia. J. F. Keller.

Lexington, Ky.

THE APPROACHING CONVENTION.

The southern florists are alive to the importance of the meeting of the convention of the S. A. F. in the south this summer. We will avail ourselves of the opportunity to discuss questions that will promote horticulture in general. We realize the great possibilities that lie before the southern horticulturists for development of our profession. We also realize the wonderful amount of good to be derived from the members of this organization in our midst, which will be a wonderful stimulant and of great help to the southern florists in discussing such matters as will tend to promote the cause of horticulture in the south.

On the other hand, we believe that the coming of the members of the S. A. F. from other sections to the south will be of great interest to them, as they will have an insight into the possibilities that lie before the southern florists, and will, therefore, lay their plans to coöperate with us in the development of this section of the country.

But why should we lay aside the important business of this society at the Houston convention? We will have a large delegation from other sections, together with a record-breaking delegation from the south, who have the interest of this society at heart, are thoroughly familiar with the detail work of this organization, and are thoroughly prepared to vote on matters that are of interest to the society. Time is not so short but we will be able to take up these questions and vote upon them intelligently.

The membership will be a representative one and there is no doubt in my mind but what it is only right and proper that these questions should be taken up at this time as they are scheduled.

There was a feeling at the time the convention went to San Francisco that possibly the western members would take things in their own hands and vote upon such matters as would be to their own interest, and possibly not to the interest of the society as a whole. It was demonstrated at the San Francisco convention that the western boys had the interest of the society at heart and did not make any attempt at railroading matters that were to their selfish interest. You may expect the same at the Houston convention.

The society may expect the southern members to use their best judgment and all to vote in such a way as to be to the interest of the society as a whole.

I want to state here that insofar as I am personally concerned, I expect to work diligently to this end and I believe there will be no opposition from the other members along these lines. Any attempt to table such questions as are scheduled for this meeting will certainly be fought to the limit.

PÆONIA UMBELLATA ROSEA.

It is hard to obtain peonies in the northern states for Memorial day. There may be a few hundreds for that day, and two days after there may be thousands. Pæonia edulis superba is often on time, but this year it was late. After seven years' trial, we have found that P. umbellata rosea never fails. This season was so backward that we thought the last-mentioned variety would not be in time, but it woke up and came in gloriously on the home stretch. It is a beautiful, fragrant, somewhat variegated pink. It is a good multiplier and often doubles every year, making it the most profitable of all peonies. C. S. Harrison.

SWEET PEA SHOW AT FRISCO.

An Unprecedented Success.

Great satisfaction is expressed in the San Francisco trade over the unprecedented success of the sweet pea exhibition held under the auspices of the American Sweet Pea Society in the concert room of the Palace hotel, Friday and Saturday, June 9 and 10. It easily surpassed the exhibition given at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition last year in beauty, quality of exhibits, number of exhibitors and even in attendance, and that is high praise, as the event last year was no mean success. The displays were limited almost exclusively to sweet peas, and probably never before in this part of the country were the wonderful possibilities of that particular flower demonstrated to such advantage to the public. The effect will no doubt be far-reaching in its bearing on the future popularity of the sweet pea.

Early on the morning of June 9 some of the exhibits were in place, and the news soon spread that something unusual was to be seen in the south wing of the Palace. Visitors began to throng the corridor long before the show was ready for inspection. The location was ideal, the rich red and gold hangings of the concert room, red carpet and special lighting effect being particularly well adapted to the purpose. By 11:30 all the exhibits were in place and visitors were requested to retire while the judges determined the prize-winners. The judges were John McLaren, superintendent of Golden Gate park; E. James, president of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society; E. M. Sanborn, of Oakland; Miss E. McLean.

Trade Exhibits, as Advertising.

The trade exhibits extended along the north side of the room and nearly across one end, the space being about equally divided among W. Atlee Burpee & Co., of Philadelphia; C. C. Morse & Co., of San Francisco; Waldo Rohnert, of Gilroy, Cal.; the L. D. Waller Seed Co., of Guadaloupe, Cal. The exhibit of C. C. Morse & Co., directly opposite the main entrance, was the first to catch the eye. This company featured many new seedlings of early-flowering Spencer sweet peas, several of which will be put on the market this coming season. Standing out prominently in this display was a large showing of New Miriam Beaver, Illuminator, Culebra, Scintillator and Herbert Owen, new 1916-1917 novelties. Special attention was called to a new duplex Spencer seedling, which has not been named as yet, but which was pronounced by the company about the finest novelty they have ever produced. In the Morse exhibit were more than 100 varieties of Spencers.

The exhibit of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., which was arranged by Harry F. Buckman, of the company's Floradale farms, at Lompoc, Cal., adjoining the Morse exhibit on the left, embraced about forty varieties of Spencers, with a large cross of Fiery Cross as the central feature. They showed five new varieties of the winter-flowering class, especially adapted to growing under glass. They have been named Fordhook Countess, Fordhook Pink, Fordhook White, Fordhook Rose, Fordhook Hercules and Fordhook King.

The exhibit of the L. D. Waller Seed Co., joining the C. C. Morse & Co. exhibit on the right, was arranged for effect rather than for the number of varieties shown, there being between forty and fifty varieties of Spencers represented. E. Cowdy, a new variety of brilliant orange-scarlet, was featured, together with R. F. Felton, a fine new lavender; New Buttercup, a deep primrose, almost yellow; Edith Taylor, with large blooms, and Constance Hinton, a splendid white. All were field-grown, without the aid of irrigation.

Waldo Rohnert showed about fifty varieties of Spencers and a vase of Frank Darby. He called special attention to an improved form of King Edward, of which brightness of color and size of bloom were both good. The color of his Dobbie's Cream and the size of bloom were especially fine. Robert Sydenham, a bright salmon, was another feature.

Those Who Won Prizes.

The schedule on which awards were made included thirteen classes, and competition was keen in most cases. The jurors announced the following awards:

Vase of Fiery Cross Spencer sweet peas, prizes donated by W. Atlee Burpee & Co.—John W. Aitken, first; S. M. Spalding, second.

Six vases Spencer sweet peas, six distinct varieties, prizes donated by W. Atlee Burpee & Co.—John W. Aitken, first; Mrs. Lewis Stern, second.

Twelve varieties of the C. C. Morse & Co. grand prize collection, prizes donated by C. C. Morse & Co.—John W. Aitken, first; Frank C. Thompson, second; Emile Ralston, third.

Five vases Spencer sweet peas, one vase each of King White, Margaret Atlee, Orchid, Dobbie's Cream and Maud Holmes, prize donated by the Hallawell Seed Co., San Francisco—Emile Ralston, first.

Nine vases Spencer sweet peas, nine distinct varieties, prizes donated by Waldo Rohnert—John W. Aitken, first; Mrs. Lewis Stern, second.

Three vases Spencer sweet peas, three distinct varieties, prizes donated by the Braslan Seed Growers Co., San Jose, Cal.—John W. Aitken, first; Mrs. Lewis Stern, second.

Vase of Elfrida Pearson sweet peas, prize donated by the L. D. Waller Seed Co.—George Nunn, first.

Vase of any red Spencer sweet peas, prizes donated by W. Atlee Burpee & Co.—Mrs. Lewis Stern, first; S. M. Spalding, second.

Vase of any lavender Spencer sweet peas, prizes donated by W. Atlee Burpee & Co.—S. M. Spalding, first; David Patterson, second.

Vase of mixed Spencer sweet peas, no decorative foliage, prizes donated by C. C. Morse & Co.—Mrs. Geo. McLean, first; Philip Werner, second.

Best vase of Spencer sweet peas in the exhibition, vase picked from the entire show, prize of $5, presented by Wm. Gray, president of the society, and silver medal of the American Sweet Pea Society—John W. Aitken, first.

Vase of Spencer sweet peas, open to ladies only, bronze medal of the American Sweet Pea Society, and prize of $5, donated by Mrs. J. Scannavino, vice-president of the California State Floral Society—Mrs. R. H. Grey, first.

One Class for Florists.

Class 13, for a bride's bouquet and corsage, open to florists, with a prize of $25 donated by C. C. Morse, was won by the Art Floral Co. Other notable bouquets were shown in this class by the Palace Hotel Flower Stand, the Francis Floral Co. and the MacRorie-McLaren Co. The latter company also entered some handsome basket arrangements and a bride's bouquet, not for competition, which added greatly to the show. A wax figure carried the bride's bouquet, and her arrival about noon of the first day created quite a stir in the exhibition hall.

The only exhibit outside of sweet peas was a beautiful showing of wild flowers from the Golden Gate park, which occupied considerable space in one corner of the room.

Among the out-of-town visitors were: L. D. Waller and Dr. Franklin, of the L. D. Waller Seed Co., Guadaloupe, Cal.; Harry F. Buckman, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Lompoc, Cal.; Waldo Rohnert, of Gilroy, Cal. Much of the success of the show was due to the efforts of these gentlemen: Frank G. Cuthbertson, assistant secretary of the American Sweet Pea Society, and T. C. Holmes, of C. C. Morse & Co., the latter acting as floor manager. S. H. G.

MONTGOMERY'S ROSE HOUSE.

The illustration on this page shows the steelwork in place for the new greenhouse, 50x350 feet, now being completed for the Montgomery Co., Hadley, Mass. This house is to be planted to roses and is of the latest type of steel construction, the steelwork designed in accordance with rules of standard engineering practice. Strength is not sacrificed for lightness of construction; at the same time there is less actual shade cast than in older types of greenhouses. This is chiefly due to the fact that the large supporting arches are spaced twelve feet six inches center to center, whereas in older types of steel houses the arches are spaced eight feet four inches. There are eight 4-foot benches.

Considerable interest is being shown in this particular house and a class of students from Amherst, led by Prof. Nehrling, is shown in the illustration, making a study of greenhouse construction. The John C. Moninger Co., of Chicago, has the contract to furnish materials and erection of the entire structure, A. Hammarstrom, manager of the New York branch, representing the company in the transaction.

Mount Vernon, O.—Charles E. Sharpe reports the largest Mothers' day business he ever had. He cleared all carnations and could have disposed of 5,000 more had they been available.

Williamsport, Pa.—A new concern, to be known as W. J. Evenden's Sons, composed of Harry L. Evenden and William T. Evenden, has been formed to conduct the business of Raymond V. Kester, which recently was acquired by the two Evendens. The new company, the members of which had been connected with the Evenden Bros. Co., intends to erect a number of greenhouses in the east end of the city. Mr. Kester has joined the Williamsport Floral Co.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

A BERGER WEDDING.

A Carte Blanche Affair.

An exceedingly handsome home wedding decoration was arranged at Fox Chase, Pa., June 7, by William Berger Sons, of Germantown, Pa.

The decorations were under the personal supervision of Louis Berger, who occupied the position of the trusted lawyer to his client. Everything was left in Mr. Berger's hands. He originated, planned and submitted his estimate, with sketch. The estimate accepted, he carried every detail into successful reality. It required three days of hard work for a force of men to complete the job, besides the preliminary arrangements.

The house is a large suburban residence, surrounded by a large porch and spacious grounds. The front door opens into a wide hall of considerable depth, with a broad stairway, leading to the second floor, in the rear. This hall was transformed into a rose garden and rose arbor. Long sprays of Tausendschon roses were trained up the sides and over the ceiling above. White peonies of great size were added to add to the effect. With the peonies were beds of the pale blue larkspur, Delphinium Belladonna, covering screens that were used to partly conceal the orchestra.

It was an early evening wedding and the crowning glory of the hall decoration was the varicolored electric fountain, the water rising to a height of five feet and falling back into a pool surrounded by the lovely, pale blue larkspurs. The newel post at the foot of the stairway was surmounted by a gorgeous bunch of over 100 American Beauty roses. As the guests ascended the tastefully decorated stairway, the fountain afforded a different and no less beautiful view from the landing at the rear. From this point of vantage the falling water, with its colored lights and around it graceful sprays of yellow orchids, was charming.

In the Dining Room.

The dining room opened on the left of the hall. Walls and ceiling alike were embowered in pink peonies; several shades of pink with mountain laurel to soften the effect, the danger of heaviness being avoided by skillful use of material. The center of the dining room was occupied by a heart-shaped table, made expressly for the occasion. On this heart-shaped table, perhaps ten feet wide, was an especially made heart-shaped basket thirty inches in diameter. This basket was filled with Ward roses and graceful pink snapdragons. To the sides of this centered heart-shaped basket were five smaller baskets, also heart-shaped. They were filled with Sweetheart roses and yellow orchids. The dining room decoration was finished with many tiny electric lights that sparkled from among the flowers and foliage on the walls and from the ceiling above. Bows of ribbon were used on the heart-shaped table, which was laid in buffet style.

Bayersdorfer Aids Berger.

The room where the wedding ceremony was performed was the scene of the most splendid floral arrangement. The room consisted of two rooms thrown into one, equaling in size the hall and dining room combined, about 22x45 feet. Across the upper end was a broad bank of Easter lilies. Then came a space for the clergyman who was to perform the ceremony. In front of this space was a lightly made reed fence, twenty-two feet in length and about three feet high, with gates in the center. This fence, made for the wedding by H. Bayersdorfer & Co., was adorned with a few choice white peonies, designed to enhance, not to hide, its appearance. The gates were festooned with Adiantum gloriosum, Glory of Mordrecht. The walls and ceilings were covered with white peonies, with this difference: The half nearest the fence, or chancel rail, was of white peonies only, while in the half farthest away the white peonies were relieved by a free use of mountain laurel. The decorations were put in place by means of wire frames nearly ten feet high, reaching from floor to ceiling. These frames, of perhaps a foot in width, were nailed to the picture rail at intervals of six feet. With the aid of pockets, the open spaces as well as the frames themselves were completely hidden from view by flowers and foliage. The mantel in the room was banked with white orchids and just a few pink sweet peas. An aisle from the stairway to the chancel was outlined with white ribbons. Chiffons were used at points of vantage here and there.

The Bouquets.

There were two extremely handsome bouquets. The bride's was formed of lily of the valley and white orchids in shower; the bridesmaid's of pink sweet peas.

The wide porch, lighted with electric lights in many colors, was richly decorated with snapdragons and peonies; gay colors in pockets and in boxes, relieved by the deep green of palms, that formed a stately background.

Despite the fact that rain prevailed, the electrical and floral display planned for the grounds was the most extensive decoration ever arranged by William Berger Sons. For its beauty and taste Louis Berger received many congratulations from the family and their guests. Phil.

News from Abroad

London, England.—It was announced June 6 that no more permits will be issued by the British government for the importation of German goods into the United States.

Rotterdam, Holland.—When the Holland-America line steamer Noordam arrived here May 28, it was stated the heavy Dutch, Belgian and German mail brought from New York had been taken off the boat at Falmouth by the British authorities.

London, England.—The Chelsea show, the largest annual affair in England, which opened May 23, was a success, although by no means up to antebellum records, exhibits being less numerous, less elaborate and attracting smaller attendance.

London, England.—Two well-known British rose growers recently, in the presence of a trade scribe, were chatting together over the outlook in the rose world and both expressed the opinion that next season and the year following roses will be more expensive than has been the case for some years past. The fact is a good many general nurserymen were so short-handed last summer that they budded less than their usual quantity and, for the same and similar reasons, they have planted fewer stocks for the coming season's budding.

Erfurt, Germany.—Since the seizure of a large number of parcels of flower seeds in the mails on board the Scandinavian steamer United States it has been difficult for growers here to maintain business connections with American customers, as mails are censored by the British, both via Rotterdam and via Copenhagen. All steamers now call at British ports en route.

Newtownards, Ireland.—"In spite of the serious difficulties incidental to the war," says Alex. Dickson & Sons, Ltd., "we have done our utmost to preserve the continuity of our business and to develop it upon our accustomed lines. For more than a quarter of a century we have concentrated our efforts on the evolution of the rose on scientific lines, and over this long period we think we may claim to have added something to the cult year by year."

London, England.—Steps have been taken to draw the attention of the government to the inconsistency of the order in council of May 10, which prohibits the importation of bulbs except those grown in France, but does not prohibit the importation of cut blooms. The prohibition against bulbs includes those grown in Japan, Guernsey and Holland, thus depriving British growers of the profits of flowering the bulbs, handing that profit over to the shippers of cut blooms.

ACID PHOSPHATE OR BONE MEAL?

WHY ACID PHOSPHATE LEADS.

Its Action Quick.

H. E. Humiston, in an article in The Review for May 18, entitled "Building Up Our Soils," while expressing his personal opinion that the use of bone meal is preferable to that of acid phosphate, has stated two qualities in which acid phosphate is superior to bone meal.

That acid phosphate acts more quickly than bone meal, is a fact which rests on a sound chemical basis and is borne out by numerous comparative experiments, reports of which make up a considerable portion of the agricultural literature of the last two decades. And its rapidity of action has a greater practical significance to the florist than to any other agriculturist, since a layer of soil in the bench five or six inches in depth is used as a home for the plant roots, and changing the soil wholly or largely every year forces us to use every means of drawing from it during that year the maximum amount of nutriment for the plant.

The viewpoint of permanent benefit, which can well be kept in mind in enriching the soil in the field, is hardly one that concerns the florist under conditions of greenhouse practice, so long as the fertilizer applied can be depended upon to give maximum results during the limited time in which the soil-fertilizer mixture remains the basis of nutrition of the plant.

Safest of Commercial Fertilizers.

Acid phosphate has the advantage not only of acting more quickly than bone meal, but is safer to use. In the course of rose growing during the last three years, I have applied to the soil mixture more than a pound and a half of commercial acid phosphate to every foot of soil in a 5-inch bench, equivalent to more than thirty-five tons of it per acre, with at most only slight indication of injury to the plants. Surely among commercial fertilizers there is not one, unless ground limestone be included in the list, for which the same guarantee of safety can be given. At the same time, it is not my purpose to advocate the use of acid phosphate in preference to that of bone meal, but to supplement Mr. Humiston's opinion with our eight years of experience with acid phosphate. Choice between the two is a question of whether the florist is willing to accustom himself or his men to the use of a new fertilizer and of the relative price of phosphorus in the two fertilizers.

If acid phosphate containing seven per cent phosphorus sells for $14 per ton and bone meal containing fourteen per cent phosphorus sells at $28 per ton, the price per pound of phosphorus —140 and 280 pounds per ton respectively—is the same, the odds, so far as freight is concerned, being in favor of the bone meal, and, in consideration of the more rapid action of acid phosphate, somewhat in favor of that fertilizer. The calculation is equally simple for any content and price of the two fertilizers. The introduction of acid phosphate into the list of fertilizers applicable to greenhouse use enlarges possible sources of fertilizer available to florists, thus keeping in step with the rapid advance of the floricultural industry in this country.

Permanent Benefits Not Essential.

Neither acid phosphate nor bone meal puddles the soil; acid phosphate causes it to become so pulverulent that proper drying and satisfactory drainage conditions are greatly promoted by its use. This third advantage from the use of acid phosphate, the effect on the physical properties of the soil, is one of importance to the florist.

Commercial acid phosphate contains some fifty per cent of gypsum, which is known to hasten the decomposition of organic matter in the soil and so result in stimulation to plant growth. Where immediate benefits of fertilizing are required, not effects of several years' duration, stimulation of the soil is consistent with good floricultural practice.

I am heartily in sympathy with Mr. Humiston's remarks regarding the advantage of applying animal manures, apart from their strict fertilizing value. Not only may organic matter be applied in this form to good advantage, but the preparation of the soil in the field by green manuring with legume crops is, I believe, the cheapest and a most satisfactory method of supplying the soil which is intended for greenhouse use with organic matter and rapidly available nitrogenous constituents. I do not believe, however, that sufficient phosphate for a good rose soil can be applied by either method, but recourse must be had to commercial fertilizers.

Limestone as a Top-Dressing.

In stating the benefits from applications of limestone, or carbonate of lime, Mr. Humiston shows a thorough knowledge of soils and of the function of limestone, with the exception that one disadvantage of applications of lime is omitted, a disadvantage that in all probability outweighs the advantages which he has named. This is, that where phosphate is in the form of calcium compound the addition of limestone tends to a marked degree to cause it to assume an insoluble form, which cannot be used by the plant.

In rose soils, where phosphate is added in the form of either bone meal or acid phosphate, both of which are phosphates of calcium, it is the phosphate of calcium that is depended upon to a large extent to supply the plants, and not phosphates of iron and alumina. So that the use of limestone as a means of releasing phosphate under these circumstances can hardly be recommended. And I have found that limestone, when mixed thoroughly with the soil, does decrease the production of roses. At the same time, limestone is of benefit in neutralizing too great an acidity of the soil and preventing fungous growths on its surface. For this purpose limestone should be applied as top-dressings from time to time. This is the practice I would regard as a judicious use of limestone.

PORTLAND'S BIG SHOW

THE ROSE FESTIVAL.

Tenth Annual Fete Best of All.

The tenth annual celebration of Portland's June festival began at 6 p. m., June 6, and continued until the evening of June 9.

The opening of the floral center and crowning of the queen and king were the features of the first day. The school children's parade and dedication of the Columbia highway June 7, the decorated vehicle parade June 8 and industrial parade June 9 were the main events.

For the third time in four years the decorated vehicle winning the grand prize was the product of Clarke Bros. Outdoor roses were not so abundant as usual and were not used so extensively.

The car decorated with Gorgeous carnations by the Martin & Forbes Co. won first prize in the class of private vehicles. The weather was perfect and all the events of the festival were viewed by record-breaking crowds. It is estimated that more than 400,000 people entered the floral center during the festival.

The Floral Center.

This year, for the second time, the Portland Floral Society coöperated with the festival governors in establishing a floral center, in which all sorts of flowers and plants were exhibited. James O. Convill, superintendent of parks and one of the festival governors, was placed in charge of the center and given authority to enlarge it and make it the chief feature of the festival. The accepted plan covered the two park blocks used last year and, in addition, the streets along both sides. The Floral Society was represented by its committee on exhibitions,

James Forbes, chairman. F. A. Van Kirk was added to the committee and acted as its secretary. Julius Dossche was selected to act as the executive member of the committee and was appointed assistant by Mr. Convill, in order that the designing and constructing of the center would be his work. The success of the center is largely due to his ability and industry.

Soon after the first of the year plans for the center were completed and accepted by the festival governors and by the society's committee, and contracts were let to growers for materials to fill the plats. Over 184,000 potted plants were required, besides considerable stock in flats. The main beds were paid for at the rate of 15 cents per square foot and the trade beds at 7½ cents. The beds were built up of wet sawdust, and after plunging the pots were covered with sand. Pansies and some of the border plants were lifted from flats and did good service. The entire center covered about two acres, comprising 27,000 square feet of beds and eight booths.

Six of the booths were occupied by community exhibits of cut outdoor roses, entered in competition. The women's clubs distributed free roses to wear from the other two.

The Rose Fountain.

The chief attraction was located in the street intervening between the two blocks. It was the rose fountain, surrounded by beds of roses and tubs of standard roses. The fountain was thirty-five feet high and illuminated by about 1,800 electric bulbs, operated to produce a shower-like effect. The standard roses also held lights. More than 400 potted Dorothy Perkins roses, in 8 to 12-inch pots, were used, besides such varieties as Lady Gay and Tausendschon. Forty standard rambler and 200 Ulrich Brunner roses in pots were used alongside the promenades and at the street ends. There were two beds of Ophelia roses along the north promenade and two beds of mixed roses along the south promenade. Two beds of mixed newer varieties in the street completed the rose setting for the fountain. The effect at night was specially attractive.

Members of the Floral Society who prepared exhibits feel that this outdoor flower show is much more effective in drawing the attention of the public to the decorative value of flowers than is an indoor show, and, though the expense is considerably more than the compensation, they expressed their wish to take part again, if the center feature is repeated.

The Exhibitors.

The following were exhibitors: The Rahn & Herbert Co., spiræas, coleus, snapdragons; the Wilson, Crout & Gehr Co., cannas and geraniums; O. E. Panzer, fuchsias and bedding stock; Clarke Bros., cannas, Pelargonium Easter Greeting, coleus, calceolarias, snapdragons, lantanas, marigolds, mixed roses, hydrangeas, stocks and heliotropes; G. Indermuhle, nursery stock; August Zitzewitz, cannas, geraniums, coleus and Ulrich Brunner roses; Niklas & Son, miscellaneous stock; the Tonseth Floral Co., dahlias, hydrangeas and geraniums; the Van Kirk Floral Co., new seedling geranium, Old Glory; the Routledge Seed & Floral Co., Canna Portland; the Scott-Wood Co., red geraniums; the Mountain View Floral Co., tubbed peonies and hydrangeas, wistarias, roses and the festival slogan in an alternanthera border; Max M. Smith, miscellaneous stock; the Martin & Forbes Co., Ophelia roses, rhododendrons, hardy asters and snapdragons; John Zimmerman, perennials; E. J. Steele, Mastodon pansies; the Swiss Floral Co., miscellaneous stock, purple and mixed petunias and pink Pride of Portland petunias; J. B. Pilkington, tubbed ornamentals, flowering shrubs and newer roses; the Holden Floral Co., cannas and most of the potted and standard roses used in the fountain and promenades; George Goos, hydrangeas and miscellaneous stock; Zimmerman Bros., perennials; the Willamette Dahlia Co., dahlias and miscellaneous stock; Russellville Nursery, ornamentals. S. W. W.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

The Storrs & Harrison Co., of Painesville, O., has been badly handicapped by the late season and the freight embargo. However, it is expected the total business will equal, if not surpass, the best record. An example of the great strides made in labor-saving machinery was shown to me by Ben. George, who explained the workings of a 12-horsepower tractor, which has "fitted" 200 acres of nursery land this season, saving the work of ten horses and several men. It is proposed to purchase a still larger machine. "We can easily find use for another," observed Mr. George. E. George spoke about the marked increase in calls for hardy stock; many orders may have to be carried over. Hardy Ghent azaleas are in high favor. The seed and bulb departments have done well.

The L. C. Hecock Floral Co., of Elyria, O., is located some distance back from the main thoroughfare, but has a splendid frontage, which, while only recently cultivated, is a foretaste of what it will be later. An approach of about 1,000 feet is bordered with Rose Crimson Rambler, planted last season. It is strong stock and will soon make a grand showing. At the store some artistic funeral work was noted. ROSES AT ARLINGTON.

The long delayed scoring of the roses at the Arlington trial gardens maintained by the government in coöperation with the American Rose Society, was accomplished June 12, when a committee consisting of Adolph Gude, chairman; George H. Hess, superintendent United States Botanic Gardens, and George E. Anderson, superintendent of Twin Oaks, accompanied by Prof. F. L. Mulford, landscape gardener of the Department of Agriculture, who is in direct charge of the gardens, and the correspondent of The Review, inspected more than 100 varieties and scored thirty-three.

Unlike the trips made by the members of the American Rose Society, this visit to the gardens was under the best conditions, except that hail June 10 had damaged some of the plants. Only such plants as showed characteristic bloom were scored, the scoring being on the basis of: Floriferousness, 20; vigor, 20; color, 15; size, 15; form, 10; substance, 10; fragrance, 10.

When the members of the American Rose Society gathered in Washington some time ago it was found impossible to do this work and accordingly William F. Gude was directed to appoint a committee of men versed in rose culture to act as the official scoring committee of the society, and it was in pursuance of these instructions that the judging was done at this time. The scoring resulted as follows:

NEW YORK.

The Market.

June 12 gave us the first glimpse of the sun in five days. Such weather was bad for the cut flower business, but the rain and chill brought profit to the seedsmen, the plant-auction houses and nurserymen still filling late orders.

In the wholesale cut flower section peonies dominated. The cold storage walls are bulging with the thousands in reserve and cellars and iceboxes are tightly packed. The flood of peonies will end this week and the clean-up should materialize Saturday. It was a harvest for the department stores, the florists with chain stores and the sidewalk and peddling merchants, the latter carting the flowers around and disposing of them at "a centa each" in all parts of the city.

There are few good American Beauties. These sell readily at 25 cents. The best Hadleys are firm at 20 cents, Brunner and Prima Donna at 15 cents. The other popular roses have maintained the quotations of a week ago, Double White Killarney and Ophelia being most in demand. The short-stemmed and lower grades of roses sell at from $2 down to 75 cents per hundred, and even lower in thousand lots.

The close of last week found a larger orchid supply than was demanded and prices fell to 25 cents for selected gigas. Longiflorums were selling at $3 per hundred June 10. The best valley touched $4 per hundred. It was the only scarce article. The quality of carnations is deteriorating rapidly and only the best blooms sell above $1 per hundred.

Some grand sweet peas were offered last week at prices far below their actual value. The Spencers are long-stemmed and perfect. Most of the inferior shipments go out to sea, together with the overripe peonies. The usual variety of summer flowers is seen, especially daisies, gladioli, irises, stocks and pansies. Great quantities of cut branches of ramblers are in all the wholesale windows.

Club Meeting.

June 12 the final meeting of the club for the season took place in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building, President Weston in the chair. Next year's flower show committee was announced as follows: Charles Weathered, chairman; F. H. Traendly, Charles H. Totty, William Duckham, Max Schling, G. E. M. Stumpp, L. F. Reuter, H. Weston, John Young and Wallace Pierson. A meeting of this committee and that of the Horticultural Society is scheduled for June 19.

Chairman A. L. Miller's report of the 1916 spring exhibition showed total receipts of $41,721.76 and total expenses of $10,305.55, leaving a profit of $31,416.21. One-half of this amount went to the Grand Central Palace, leaving $15,708.11 to be divided between the Florists' Club and the Horticultural Society.

The secretary read Mr. Totty's report and communications from railroads and steamer lines with regard to the route to the S. A. F. convention at Houston, cost of the trip averaging between $80 and $85. The majority favored the all-water trip.

Anticipating the visit of the S. A. F. in 1917, the committee announced the certainty of securing the Grand Central Palace or Madison Square Garden for the trade exhibition and the meetings. A communication was read from Dr. Britton, of the New York Horticultural Society, with reference to the convention garden, looking to its location in Bronx park and its being made a permanent feature there. H. A. Bunyard announced that an available site can be secured in Pelham Bay park.

Nicholas Butterback and George Cohan were elected to membership. Mr. Kenna, a new member, pledged loyalty.

Arthur Herrington gave an interesting address on the International Garden Club's exhibition last week at Pelham Bay park.

W. C. Rickards spoke in behalf of the dahlia show at the rooms of the American Institute in September, and Secretary Bunyard for the meeting of the Sweet Pea Society at Bar Harbor July 12 or 15, where $3,000 will be given in prizes.

The next meeting will be September 11.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

GEORGE W. CRAWBUCK.

IF ever you are feeling down-in-the-mouth, out of sorts, not sure that a better day is coming, just drop in at 57 West Twenty-eighth street, New York, and scrape acquaintance with George W. Crawbuck, natural born optimist, believer in humanity and ardent advocate for the flower business. Mr. Crawbuck has only recently moved over from Brooklyn, but that makes no difference—he was as full of enthusiasm during all his eight years as manager of the Greater New York Florists' Association, at the other end of the big bridge, as he is now; in fact, it is the enthusiasm that accounts for the recently organized George W. Crawbuck Co., named for its president, with Herbert T. Phillips as vice-president and secretary and H. W. Gallaer treasurer.

Various Notes.

Walter Gott, representing Sander & Sons, of St. Albans, England, is in the city and was a visitor at the Florists' Club's meeting June 12.

Maurice Fuld has severed his connection with the Knight & Struck Co. and is located in the Brokaw building, with the title of "Garden Expert, Lecturer and Writer."

The King Construction Co., of North Tonawanda, N. Y., has closed greenhouse contracts with the following: B. Rodgers, of Patchogue, N. Y., one house 50x100, including heating and benching; Julius Chevalley, of Blue Point, N. Y., one iron-frame, flat-rafter house, 60x200; Mrs. Henry Burden, of Cazenovia, N. Y., two iron-frame houses, each 35x150, and service building, 18x85.

E. Dryer, for twenty-two years associated with A. Herrmann, now is foreman for Russin & Hanfling.

Quantities of blooming plants arrived at auction headquarters last week from the Flatbush, L. I., and Jersey growers. This is about the last opportunity to dispose of surplus stock. There is a probability that plant auctions will continue until July.

A large shipment of cycas plants from Bermuda was received at the MacNiff Horticultural Co. rooms last week.

George Vocke, at one time gardener for Ludwig Nessen and the Brooklyn navy yard, died recently at his home in Brooklyn. He was 66 years of age and some years ago operated greenhouses at Dutch Hills, N. Y. His wife, three sons and three daughters survive.

June 21 is field day at the A. N. Pierson establishment, at Cromwell, Conn. New York will be well represented.

The retail florists who have opened summer branches this season at Newport are Wadley & Smythe, Bunyard, J. G. Leikens and Armstrong. At Southampton, L. I., G. E. M. Stumpp is already busy.

Samuel Woodrow opens his branch at Narragansett Pier, R. I., July 1, with Miss Florence Cadieux in charge. Mr. Woodrow and family will spend July and August in the Catskills.

Daniel E. Weage, a peony grower of Coldwater, Mich., was a visitor last week.

July 6 is the day chosen for the Greek-American Florists' Association's tenth annual outing at Witzel's grove, College Point, L. I. The steamer Ajax will carry the crowd. Tickets may be had at the stores of George Cotsonas, 103 West Twenty-eighth street, and J. J. Fellouris, 116 West Twenty-eighth street. The price is $3 for adults and $1 for children.

Miss Adelaide Callahan, bookkeeper for Joseph S. Fenrich, was married June 14 to John McLaughlin at the church of Our Lady of Good Counsel. The bride will resume her place in the office on her return from her honeymoon.

The George W. Crawbuck Co. has added an auto to its delivery department, the Brooklyn trade demanding it.

The new manager and secretary of the Greater New York Florists' Association, Brooklyn, is F. G. Van Mater.

Pitot & Marcres, retail florists, now have eight stores or hotel branches in New York. L. Constant, formerly of their force of salesmen, is participating in the European war.

The stork left another boy June 9 at the residence of A. Tishman, who is salesman for George C. Siebrecht.

Guttman & Raynor say there has been a great demand for 3-year-old rose plants.

W. A. Sutherland has been appointed eastern representative of S. D. Woodruff & Sons. Mr. Sutherland was formerly with the Leonard Seed Co.

Among the visitors last week was A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind.

J. Austin Shaw.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business is holding up remarkably well and the stores are receiving some good decorative orders for weddings and school commencements. In addition, there is the usual demand for cut flowers, and funeral work is heavier than it has been.

Carnations are good, considering the season, for usually at this time of the year they are of little value. They bring from $5 per thousand up to $2 and $3 per hundred, according to quality. There has been a good demand for American Beauty roses at $3 per dozen. Roses of all kinds are moving well. Some fine America gladioli are offered at $6 to $8 per hundred and the sale of these has been satisfactory. The season is practically over for white and yellow daisies and, although as fine as one could desire, those now coming in are hanging fire. Indoor sweet peas are exceptionally good, holding their own as to quality, and they are moving well. Usually at this time of the year sweet peas are in the discard.

This season the local growers enjoyed exceptional business on peonies. Due to the lateness of the season in the north, the shipping orders were heavier than ever before. Buyers came here in the hope of being able to make purchases, but the growers were tied up with more orders than they could really hope to fill. Prices remain good throughout, and had there been more peonies the sale and price would still have remained as good as they were. This, however, would not warrant increasing the production next year, as it is felt that the increased demand was due wholly to climatic conditions. There still are some local peonies to be had, but the north is having its turn now in shipping into this market. The northern peonies are bringing $4 to $6 per hundred.

There are plenty of small flowers, all of which are of good quality. Mignonette is as fine as at any time during the season; pansies, forget-me-nots and other flowers of similar type are good, but none are in special demand.

A severe rain storm June 10, accompanied by hailstones up to three-quarters of an inch in diameter, did considerable damage to outdoor stock. More than one and a half inches of rain fell in an hour. Plants were beaten down and some glass was broken. The northeast section of the city and Anacostia were hardest hit.

Club Meeting.

Plans for the entrance of the members of the Florists' Club in the preparedness parade June 14 were discussed at the monthly meeting of the club at 1214 F street, northwest, June 6. Harry B. Lewis was designated chairman of the committee charged with carrying out the provisions of the resolution unanimously adopted at the meeting, under which the club would be largely represented. Several of the members present stated that they would have their employees in line, and C. A. Jackson stated that rose growers of Petworth were anxious to participate with the florists. It was estimated that the trade would have 250 marchers.

Captain W. H. Ernest rendered a report for the outing committee, of which he is the chairman, stating that the annual event will take place at Great Falls, Va., July 19. By reason of subscriptions said to have been pledged, the committee will be able to keep the price of the tickets down to 50 cents each and still offer refreshments. There will be the usual number of prizes in the athletic events.

The regret of the members at the death of Gottlieb Supper, formerly with George C. Shaffer, and their sympathy for his widow, Mrs. Nettie Supper, found expression during the meeting.

Various Notes.

Henry Witt, George C. Shaffer, Fred H. Kramer, Alex. B. Garden and the Gude Bros Co. were represented in the floral automobile celebration at Anacostia last week. Adolph Gude was one of the assistant marshals of the parade. The festivities were marred to a considerable extent by a heavy rain storm. One of the Gude Bros. Co. floats featured the Florists' Telegraph Delivery. At either end were telegraph posts, with wires strung between. Placards told of the nature of the display.

R. W. Taylor, of the A. Langhans store, of Wheeling, W. Va., and C. D. Miller, of Jacksonville, Fla., were among the week's visitors. C. L. L.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The disagreeable and cool weather of last week did not help business any. The market is glutted with stock and there is no great rush; in fact, business is remarkably quiet for this time of the year. There is plenty of outdoor stock in the market, and it moves slowly. Peonies, which are much later this year than last, are becoming plentiful. Some fine red and white varieties are seen. Carnations in white and colors are overplentiful and are sold cheaply to clear. Roses, too, are plentiful; there are more than the present trade demands. American Beauties are good and sell well. Outdoor roses are making their appearance. Easter lilies are in good condition and sell finely, while callas are slowing up a bit. Valley is unusually good, including the outdoor-grown stock, but the demand is not so large as usual. A few tulips are seen, but they are about over for the season. Sweet peas are plentiful and some fine varieties are seen. Pink and white sell in preference to other colors or shades. The demand for orchids is not overlarge; some choice blooms arrive every other day. Ten weeks' stocks are used extensively in basket and funeral work. Yellow and white daisies, bachelor's buttons, myosotis and baby primroses are used largely for decorative purposes. Palms and ferns, as well as good hydrangeas, are selling fairly well. Bedding plants and hanging baskets are moving satisfactorily.

Various Notes.

The secretary of the Rochester Florists' Association announces that at the next monthly meeting the members will be addressed by John Dunbar, assistant superintendent of parks.

The Aster Candy and Flower Store reports business as being good. The force has been busy with bouquet work.

The Shakespeare pageant held at Exposition park was in every way a marked success. Some of the florists secured bouquet orders for this event.

Schuyler Arnold, of the Crescent Seed Farm, says that business is more than good. He has been busy with bedding stock and much planting has been accomplished of late on his seed farm.

June 10, Rochester had the largest parade ever held in this city. Nearly 35,000 people were in line. Decorated with flags and accompanied by many bands, they showed that they were for national preparedness. To celebrate the occasion, florists decorated their windows and store fronts with bunting, etc.

OBITUARY

J. M. Fox.

J. M. Fox, founder of the business J. M. Fox & Son, of Milwaukee, passed away at his home June 7. His son, J. F., who had charge of the flower department, will continue the business.

Nicholas Kruchten.

While riding in a friend's automobile the night of June 13, Nicholas Kruchten, Jr., 5308 North Western avenue, secretary of the John Kruchten Co., wholesale florists, Chicago, met a most untimely death. The car in which he was seated was going west in Lawrence avenue at high speed and struck a steel upright at the river bridge approach, overturning on its occupants. Mr. Kruchten died shortly after being removed from the wreck. The two other occupants of the car were severely injured.

Mr. Kruchten was a native of Chicago, 29 years of age, and had been married five years. He began working in the greenhouses of his father, N. J. Kruchten, 5308 North Western avenue, at an early age, and continued there until March, 1916, when he became secretary of the John Kruchten Co., of which his brother is president.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Dolly, both parents and two brothers.

Elias A. Seymour.

Elias A. Seymour, florist and gardener of Herkimer, N. Y., since 1877, died unexpectedly of a stroke of paralysis on the evening of Memorial day. The deceased, who retired from business a number of years ago, was born at Paris Hill, N. Y., in 1846. He is survived by his wife and four children.

Mrs. G. M. Bridgeford.

The friends of G. M. Bridgeford, at Eagle Rock, Los Angeles, Cal., were greatly shocked by the entirely unexpected announcement of the death of Mrs. Bridgeford, which occurred June 5. She was apparently well when her husband and daughter left, as usual, for town, but on their return they found her dead. Mrs. Bridgeford was truly a home woman, seldom going away from there, but always giving a hearty welcome to visitors. She will indeed be sadly missed, both by her husband and daughter, to whom she was devoted. Interment was at Glendale, June 8. A large number of beautiful floral pieces were sent to the funeral. H. R. R.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The Market.

As usual, weddings have greatly increased business this month. Business along other lines is keeping up well. Peonies are to be had in quantity and are of good quality. Gladioli are showing up well. Sweet peas, snapdragons, etc., continue to be of desirable quality, a condition attributed to the cool weather that has prevailed. School graduations have started and for a time will help to increase business.

The average verdict is that Memorial day business this year was not what could be called a "rush." The reason therefor is said to be the large quantity of outdoor flowers available. Many had plenty of stock left.

Various Notes.

Arthur F. Crabb was busily occupied with wedding and funeral orders last week.

Henry Smith had some extra fine gladioli to offer.

Alfred Hannah has been exceedingly busy with church decorations and Miss Hartnett had a good week of bouquets for weddings.

The Crescent Avenue Floral Co. has purchased an Overland delivery car.

Eli Cross is cutting about 2,000 peonies per day. A. F. C.

HOUSTON, TEXAS.

Various Notes.

W. T. Hauser, of the Houston Floral Co., is busy getting another house ready to plant roses. He has four houses in now; two he is carrying over another year; one he is going to throw out for this season; one house of young plants and another he is going to plant later. His outside stock is looking well, although his gladioli are beginning to burn on account of the extremely hot weather. Several panes of glass were broken by high wind the early part of the week. Dead limbs were blown from trees near the north end of his houses onto the glass. Because the August storm blew down several houses, his spray green has been cut pretty closely and the plumosus and Sprengeri are just beginning to grow after a severe winter cut. He has had a successful calla cut this year, but it is over for the season.

The Glenwood Florists have had a good spring business, with considerable funeral work, and now there are a few wedding decorations.

Mrs. F. L. Cotney, of the Cotney Floral Co., while not doing decorating this year on account of the severe loss in the storm last August, says business has been good all spring but is beginning to slack up now. A few tuberoses are being cut and in another week or ten days there will be plenty of them.

Mr. Carlisle, of Carlisle & Son, of Alvin, Tex., was in town June 10 with some nice America and Mrs. King gladioli. He says cape jasmine trade was exceptionally good this year.

C. L. Brock is having exceptionally fine luck in moving trees on Main street, which is being widened about eight feet to make a boulevard to Bellaire, about nine miles, which when completed will be one of the finest in the south. Some of the live oaks are as much as ten inches in diameter and have been planted fifteen or twenty years. He is moving some of them with as much as ten or more tons of soil on the roots and so far has not lost one. G. R. L.

Jackson, Miss.—The southwest cyclone that cut a 200-foot path of ruin through the city on the morning of June 6 is reported to have completely demolished the range of the McKay Floral Co.

Paducah, Ky.—After an absence of fourteen years from his native home, John Van Aart, the Broadway florist, will sail June 17 from New York on the steamer Ryndam, for Lisse, Holland, to visit his mother and brothers. Mr. Van Aart expected to visit H. H. Cade, of Youngstown, O., and Joseph Thomas, of Greensburg, Pa., en route to New York.

Richmond, Va.—Richmond is to have a new wholesaler. Fritz Sitterding, a prominent financier of the city, has purchased the business, stock, fixtures, etc., of Ratcliffe & Tanner, who have been in the hands of receivers. Mr. Sitterding paid $20,000 for the business, which includes fourteen greenhouses and considerable stock. Eight acres are embraced in the purchase and Mr. Sitterding will erect two large houses this summer, making a total of sixteen houses to be operated by the new organization. The concern will continue to be known as Ratcliffe & Tanner, Inc. Frederick Sitterding, son of the owner, and E. L. Tanner, former joint owner, are officers. An up-to-date wholesale establishment will be opened shortly.

Chicopee, Miss.—A new automobile truck on its maiden trip ran amuck here recently and crashed into the greenhouse of William Paul. Then it continued on its mad journey until brought to a sudden stop by Mr. Paul's benches. The framework and glass of the house were considerably damaged, but the driver of the car said he would make good the loss.

Birmingham, Ala.—One of the finest appointed flower stores in the city is the floral department owned and operated by the Greene Drug Co. in connection with its drug business, in the Empire building. John A. Lambert is manager of the department, which is an important part of the "famous floor below." An orchestra furnishes music three hours daily; there is a rest room for tired shoppers, telephone booths and many other features that nowadays are included under the general head of "customers' service." J. C. Greene was the founder of the business, and everything is done in green—carpets, draperies, flower pot covers, flower boxes, tags and ribbons, even the delivery boys are outfitted in green. Mr. Lambert says that his department and the "floor below" are the talk of the town and that business is brisk. If any of the local florists are looking for a few ideas on what's what in art and store distinctiveness, they should drop in and examine Mr. Lambert's stand.

The Review brings results.

THE growers of sweet peas under glass have had an excellent season, possibly the best since the sweet pea became an important greenhouse crop.

A FLORIST in New England recently wrote to The Review to ask, "How can I send flowers by telegraph?" And yet most of the retailers seem to suppose the public knows all about it!

THAT fad for canary birds in flower stores struck us at the wrong time. Because the war shut off the Harz mountains supply, good singers are hard to get at from two to four times normal prices.

THE plantsmen should not complain. Although the spring bedding season was right on the heels of Easter and many did not have their crops ready, a benign Providence postponed much of the demand two or three weeks, thereby letting the growers get ready.

APPARENTLY the geranium stocks through the country are badly mixed. Dozens of inquiries reach The Review each season from subscribers who want to ascertain the name of some variety that has appeared in a batch of something else. And naming geraniums from a fragmentary specimen is not without its difficulties!

ONE of the features of the replanting season with the rose growers has been the ready sale for the old plants cleared from the benches. Not so many years ago these went to the brush heap and were burned, but now there is a sale at good prices for bench plants of whatever variety. This season the demand, from seed stores and florists who sell bedding stock, was greater than the supply.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3 or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

QUICK ACTION.

If you have a surplus do not wait until the season is over before you try to clean up. True, there is a Review reader somewhere who is pretty sure to be looking for the stock whenever you want to let it go, but now is the time to get quick action. Like this:

Please omit our pelargonium and fern ads, as one insertion sold out 2500 plants.—Heini & Weber, Terre Haute, Ind., June 12, 1916.

Please discontinue our ad for feverfew, as the two insertions sold every plant we had. Orders came from near-by New Jersey and from far-away Maine and Tennessee.—L. M. Smith & Co., Laurel, Del., June 7, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

THE PHILADELPHIA SUCCESS.

Treasurer W. F. Kasting has mailed to those who guaranteed the National Flower Show checks refunding the sums advanced, which were half the amounts subscribed, together with twenty per cent additional. The checks were accompanied by the following letter:

The gratifying result of the recent Fourth National Flower Show at Philadelphia has enabled the committee, in behalf of the Society of American Florists, to return to the guarantors a ten per cent profit on the full amount of money subscribed to the guarantee fund, instead of the ten per cent of the amount paid as per call.

The immensity of the National Flower Show was such that we feel that thanks are due you as one of its supporters, and surely the object is being achieved when 100,000 people view the fruit of skill and labor of America's most prominent growers and merchants.

Philadelphia has received a horticultural benefit which could not be had by any other means. One-half million lines of reading matter were published in the newspapers and magazines, besides the paid advertising. More people paid admission to this show than to any two flower shows ever held in this country.

OUR CRAFT.

The flower business is a business based on sentiment, conducted by sentimentalists. Few men engage in the flower business solely because of its financial rewards and still fewer remain in it for the one reason that it pays. The fact is, flowers make their strongest appeal to men and women of temperament, as an avocation as well as an object of virtu. What more natural, then, that the cold rules of the unsentimental business world do not always fit the needs of a group of temperamentalists?

But because one has temperament it is no excuse for the display of temper. Self-restraint and toleration, a willingness to consider the other man's necessities and viewpoint, are as necessary in an artist as in a bricklayer. We are not to consider that because we are temperamental we also always are right; nor are we privileged to feel that temperament places us above criticism or releases us from the necessity of meeting such obligations as other men must meet.

We of the craft are the richer for our temperament just in so far as we possess it in addition to the qualities that make the man in another walk of life.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The rose test garden established by the American Rose Society at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., will be opened for judging by the society Thursday, June 22. Members are invited to assemble in the offices of the department of horticulture, Roberts hall, and to go from there to the garden. The Syracuse Rose Society is planning to attend in a body. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Benjamin Hammond, Sec'y.

JOY'S ENJOYMENT.

Labor of certain classes has been scarce this spring and growers have been looking for it in unaccustomed places. The Joy Floral Co., Nashville, recently advertised in a Tennessee farm paper for laborers and a man to run a steam pump. Some of the applications were a delight, if they possessed no other value. Like this one:

Dear sir: I see your Add in Tennesean wanting 2 Labores and man to run steam pump What will you pay to run your pump. I never have run a pump but have run steam Engine. I owned and run an Auto near 4 weaks for hire and had one puncture and put in 2 felt washers so I think I could run your pump: how many hours in day do you work Would like to hear from you

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Norwich, N. Y.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed in the United States court at Albany by Walter N. Lockrow, showing liabilities of $1,286.28 and assets of $834.04. Mr. Lockrow, who was a retailer, was formerly of Schenectady, where most of his creditors reside. Brant Bros., of Utica, are creditors to the amount of $80.44.

Wakefield, Mass.—With liabilities of $16,427 and assets uncertain, Charles C. Ball, the Yale avenue florist, has been declared bankrupt.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Though a pronounced shrinkage has taken place in the volume of business being done, the Chicago market, taking it by and large, is in good condition. To be sure, the long, cold rain the latter part of last week and the first of this week caused a sharp recession in local demand, but it also operated to check the heavy flow of supply to the market. A week ago the market was so flooded with stock of poor quality that the situation began to assume an unpleasant aspect, but June 9 and 10 the department store buyers appeared on the scene and the market was practically cleared of all surplus stock. With the beginning of their activities the market stiffened perceptibly, and the opening of this week found a satisfactory, if a somewhat quiet, market. Commence-

Our Roses are Good Business Builders

Here's a Nifty Novelty

Did you ever see Bachelor's Buttons in any other color than blue? Well, we offer a good supply in two shades of pink, and moderate quantities of other colors. They are fine; 50c to $1.50 per 100.

CARNATIONS

The quality of this crop of Carnations is unusually good for this time of year—weather conditions have been favorable. Our supply now is so heavy we can quote the lowest prices of the season—low prices when you consider the high quality of the stock.

PEONIES

There is, perhaps, greater difference in the value of Peonies than in any other flower. Given the right varieties, grown and shipped by men who know how, there is nothing that makes a better show for the money; but if from men who never learned the "how," Peonies are likely to be absolutely worthless by the time the retailer unpacks them.

Our Peonies are RIGHT in every particular—you'll make good money on them in your June Wedding and Commencement work.

SPENCER SWEET PEAS

We are headquarters for the best grade of Sweet Peas—a large supply in all colors. They are the leading corsage flower of the month.

ments have a marked effect on demand this week, good shipping stock, of course, being in strongest request.

The Beauty market is practically nil, as there will be few good ones until the new crop is on. The cold weather, quite fortunately, reduced the cut of other roses to fit the demand. Russell and Sunburst are the favorites of the week, with any good yellow as second choice. Killarney Brilliant, too, enjoys a wholesome demand, as does Ophelia. The cut from young rose plants is seen here and there.

Carnations are slipping rapidly, though the market hardened at the end of last week. The supply is fair and the quality is unusually good, considering the fact that these are the decadent days for this flower. Valley is more scarce than it has been in many weeks. Many of the wholesalers, finding it impossible to secure valley, are substituting gypsophila, which is beginning to come into the market. The preponderance of dark days last week has reduced the supply of good sweet peas to the minimum. At best their end is rapidly approaching. Orchids are at a premium, with practically no supply. The express companies refuse orchid shipments in the east, for Chicago. Lilies are to be had if one wants them. Yellow daisies are selling particularly well, while snapdragons and calendulas meet with a fair demand. There are far less gladioli on the market than is usual at this time of the year. Gardenias are almost off the market, and another week will see the end of the jasmines.

The quality of the peonies coming into the market this week is much better than that of a week ago. Local crops are being received in splendid form. The best, of course, goes into storage at once, but demand is good enough so that the open flowers have been kept cleaned up at fair figures. The peony season will last well into July this year.

Greens are moving in a highly satisfactory manner. Good Asparagus plumosus is scarce. So, too, are good ferns.

Club Meeting.

With no announced program, the Chicago Florists' Club's meeting of June 8 was not a large one, and adjourned at an early hour. The following were elected to membership: Chester P. Guion, 2730 North California avenue; W. E. O'Morrow, 558 Fulton street; Carl Eisemann, Maywood, Ill.; John Canger, with John Mangel, and Thomas W. Head, of Lake Forest, Ill.

After some little discussion the club voted to abandon the annual picnic and also to adjourn club meetings until September 7. A communication from J. F. Ammann, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association, relative to the flower show to be held in Bloomington, was read, which contained the information that A. Washburn & Sons, of Bloomington, had contributed $250 to the premium fund, and suggested that further contributions would prove acceptable.

The final report of the special committee on the flower show proposition, as suggested by O. J. Friedman at the last meeting, has been deferred.

The members will be entertained and instructed at the September meeting by the reading of a paper by Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, on selling flowers to the department stores.

Various Notes.

A large number of young women sold carnations and other flowers on the streets June 9 for the benefit of Willard hospital. Large quantities of stock were disposed of, mostly as boutonnieres, to men who never before in their lives had bought a flower, so the retail florists were not hurt beyond such donations as they made. Most of the stock was paid for at slightly above the market rate.

The newly appointed vice-president and general manager of the Garland Mfg. Co., Loyd E. Shirley, has taken hold of the affairs of that company with much energy. Among orders recently booked is one from the United States government. H. W. Strietelmeier, who designed the mammoth Davis & Steiner house, is chief engineer, and Louis Wittbold, president of the Geo. Wittbold Co., is president.

The public spaces of the Congress hotel were thronged last week with delegates to the conventions, and O. J. Friedman reports that the politicians are remarkably good spenders, having a

OPPORTUNITY.

A Pathetic Fallacy.

For years humanity has labored under the delusion that opportunity knocks but once. Who ever started that fallacy I'm sure I don't know, but it's with us, in a very healthy condition, too. But don't let it disturb you. Though we do believe in popular government, the good judgment of the masses, we must admit that the people are wrong at times. There really are quite popularly believed untruths. You know that. But to continue. Do not feel too badly if you did not order KENNICOTT'S Quality Cuts last week, because your chances are not all gone. See, here we are, chief assistants of opportunity, knocking again.

An Explanation.

Now, do not misunderstand our use of the term "knocking." We are not trying to discredit any of our competitors—they are all well enough in their way—but the House of Quality Plus—KENNICOTT BROS. CO.—for over thirty years loved and respected by hundreds in the trade, long recognized as the first "Carnation House" and the biggest "Decorative Greens House" and "Headquarters for Peonies," has now for the past year been recognized as "Headquarters for Quality Roses" as well. The Kennicott Rose Department has won much praise from satisfied customers. Why? Because it handles the stock of quality growers ONLY.

A Bit of Advice.

Try some of the famous KENNICOTT stock and judge it for yourself—turn not opportunity away. The House of KENNICOTT is especially well supplied with the best quality of Ophelia. Try some. You'll want more. Suitable for all occasions and every purpose.

Deal with the House of KENNICOTT at all times. Whatever you want you can get it at KENNICOTT'S; then you will never be disappointed and always have the opportunity of getting the best on the market.

ness on Irving Park boulevard as the North Shore Floral Co., is planning to enlarge his facilities during the summer to enable him to handle a steadily increasing trade.

B. E. Gage and family are summering at Crystal Lake.

C. W. Outhwaite, of New Iberia, La., was a visitor last week, combining business with pleasure.

With the passing of the holiday rush, Max Ringier, of Kennicott Bros. Co., has gone on a vacation. He refused to go last year.

There are ways and ways of advertising. Customers and trade visitors who chance to drop into the Bohannon Floral Co., 57 East Monroe street, at the psychological moment may be entertained with a particularly choice cigar, neatly incased in a sanitary wrapping bearing the legend "Specially selected for——" and here follows the name of the florist.

With the advance of the season, Martha C. Gunterberg has begun to lay plans for the summer vacation. She is an indefatigable worker during the season, but takes a long rest after the growers have replanted.

Among those noticed in the Auditorium last week was Ed Gullett, of Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill. Mr. Gullett was a delegate to the Progressive convention.

CHESTER, PA.

Chester had its first flower show June 8. It was a success, private gardeners having beautiful displays of all kinds of seasonable flowers. The Michell seed house, of Philadelphia, exhibited seventy-six varieties of perennials, grown at its nurseries in Andalusia. Hart's Flower Shop, of Chester, had a real wedding and a fine dusky bride. Mr. Bloom, of South Chester, had a number of brides' bouquets and plants. The Rosary Flower Shop had a table decoration of orchids; Bickley, a fine lot of lilies and blooming plants; Macaw Bros., of Norwood, ferns. The Michell seed house gave as first prize a large silver medal, with a bronze medal as second prize. The judges were Frank B. Michell, Fred Cowperthwaite and D. J. Keohane.

DAVENPORT, R. ISLAND, MOLINE.

The Market.

Business last week was active. Roses and carnations are plentiful and of good quality, the carnations being unusually good for this time of the year. Peas are in fair supply, as are Easter lilies. Gladioli are arriving in small quantities and peonies have been in oversupply. Demands in all lines have been good and stock, with the exception of peonies, has cleaned up well.

Club Meeting.

The Tri-City Florists' Club met at the residence of Henry Pauli June 8, President Ludwig Stapp presiding. The meeting proved to be one of the most interesting of the year. Out-of-town visitors were Max Rasmussen, of Pontiac, Ill., and A. F. Longren, of Burlington, Ia. A letter from Robert Kift, of Philadelphia, in regard to Miss Jarvis and Mothers' day was read, and as it was too late to bring the matter before the meeting of May 3, it was left for the final decision of the national society in August.

The Sunday closing movement was again taken up and the following resolution adopted: Resolved, That the Tri-City Florists' Club, in monthly meeting assembled, believes the best interests of the trade and its employees require that places of business be closed at 12 o'clock Sunday noon. All members are requested to conform with this rule, the same to take effect at once.

It was decided to hold the annual picnic at the William Knees summer cottage on Rock river, July 13. The following committee was appointed: Harry Bills and C. J. Reardon, of Davenport; E. Patton, of Rock Island; J. Staack, William Knees and C. Sorensen, of Moline; P. G. Pearson, of Bettendorf.

Various Notes.

P. G. Pearson showed two cucumbers grown at the J. W. Bettendorf conservatories, the larger of which was twenty-six inches long, and weighed four and one-half pounds.

Julius Staack & Sons, of Moline, have closed their greenhouses at noon Sundays during the last year and are well pleased with results. W. G.

Belpre, O.—C. C. Miller is slowly but surely recovering from his illness. He says he can already do a decent half-day's work.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There is a slight improvement in conditions, owing to a lighter supply of flowers. Not a marked improvement, just enough to make way for hope later. The peony cut from local fields is nearly over; some fine flowers are coming here from eastern growers and some are coming out of cold storage, whenever they are required. Flowers have been so plentiful that prices continue extremely low. Easter lilies have been awfully overdone; with so many fine white peonies the market for Easter lilies has been limited, while the supply is heavy. Even valley was depressed by heavy receipts from frames down east, but now this crop has passed. There is so little that is good to be said of the market that perhaps the less said the better this week.

The Campbell-Stroud Deal.

Alfred M. Campbell, wholesale florist of 1510 Sansom street, Philadelphia, has purchased the Strafford Flower Farm from Edward A. Stroud, of Overbrook, Pa. The Strafford Flower Farm, situated at Strafford station, on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad, about fourteen miles from this city, consists of twenty-two acres of ground, 60,000 square feet of glass, a dwelling and buildings. The greenhouses are of the finest construction; one range was built by Hitchings & Co., the other by the King Construction Co.

The houses are devoted to carnations, grown for the wholesale market, and to chrysanthemums and to a miscellaneous collection of plants, grown for retail business on the Main Line. While the consideration is not made public, it is understood that Mr. Stroud, who has been anxious to retire from active business, will retain an interest for the present at least. It is further understood that Mr. Stroud was so impressed by Mr. Campbell's enterprise in pushing the Collingdale Greenhouses that he offered the Strafford Flower Farm to the new owner, with the idea of insuring its continued success in producing high-grade stock. The sale will go into effect July 1.

The retirement of Edward A. Stroud will be a serious blow to horticulture in this city. Mr. Stroud has always taken an active part in all our shows and meetings and could be counted upon whenever brains and energy were needed. The advancement of Alfred M. Campbell to so important a position in the flower world is looked upon hopefully. Mr. Campbell has energy, enthusiasm, broad ideas and the courage of his convictions—qualities that go a long way toward achieving success.

gether with a real estate organization, were the guests of the Bell Telephone Co. at a luncheon in its new Parkway building, 1631 Arch street, Friday, June 9. President George Burton and about fifty members of the club were present. They were cordially received, hospitably entertained and then shown over the entire building. Taking the elevators to the seventeenth floor, the party slowly descended, going carefully over the most interesting parts of the establishment.

There are some 700 employees in this main building, which contains only one, the Locust, exchange. Everything was in perfect order, neat as wax—despite the great quantity of machinery—light and cheerful. The operators have resting and recreation rooms, where they are allowed a half hour to themselves between each three hours of their strenuous work at the switchboards. They are furnished excellent meals at less than cost, in the building.

Payment is made to each employee by check. One of the interesting labor-saving devices is a machine by which the person signing the check moves ten fountain pens at once, signing ten checks with a single formation of the signature. The guests felt that their visit had been highly interesting and instructive. Their only regret was that every member of the club could not be present.

The Million-Dollar Pier.

The Car Builders' Association opened its annual convention and exhibition on the famous pier at Atlantic City June 14. J. J. Habermehl's Sons had, as in former years, charge of the decorations. They were elaborate, consisting of palms, ferns, window boxes of blooming plants and of vines, etc.

Besides decorating the meeting hall, the many exhibitors' booths were adorned with plants. Eight carloads of material were sent from Twenty-second and Diamond streets to Atlantic City. Fifteen men went down to the shore several days in advance to do the work. John P. Habermehl and Edwin N. Habermehl took personal charge of the arrangement. The effect was extra fine.

Topic of the Hour.

May 17 an arrangement was reached between the coal miners and operators in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania. This arrangement gives the miners an increase in wages and time concession that amounts to a further increase. It is binding on both parties to the agreement for four years. This increase of pay to the miners increases the cost of coal to the consumers. In addition to the higher price, the coal will be more difficult to obtain than usual. This is because the miners are largely foreign born. Owing to the European war they are receiving no additions to their numbers from abroad; on the contrary, some of them have gone home to fight for their country, on whichever side it may be. Another reason for the probable difficulty in getting coal next fall is the likelihood of a car shortage. It has often been talked of and sometimes felt. This fall and winter it is more than likely to be troublesome on hard coal. While the summer price is higher than last year, it will undoubtedly advance in the fall, making purchase earlier than usual a wise move for economy and for protection. In addition to this, there is no question that coal purchased now is better prepared in the steam sizes than that purchased later in the season.

Many of our most far-seeing florists are already placing their orders for coal for June and July delivery, believing that it will save money and worry to commence storing the winter's supply, early though it be.

Spring Plants.

Robert Craig was in the only single house in the center of the various ranges at Forty-ninth and Market streets, the house that was dropped into a courtyard, so to speak, to utilize space. When asked about the plant business at this season, Mr. Craig said that it was excellent and likely to continue so as long as the cool weather lasts. People keep on fixing up their gardens until it gets too hot to enjoy life at home; then they think of the seashore and the mountains and let the garden at home go. A great quantity of late propagated stock is just right now.

Pointing to a truck full of bedding plants just starting for the Main Line, Mr. Craig indicated Coleus Brilliancy; that is, the best coleus. One of our smart growers, James Griffin, of Frankford, grows a block of these, usually 5,000. He grows them well, with a little room between the 4-inch pots, gets 10 cents for them and finds it a good thing. When told this was a point of interest, Mr. Craig laughed. "You have a way," he said, "of describing little things seriously, as though they were most important." "I never kill space," his visitor protested. "No, but give your imagination play. Don't forget to give your imagination play," was Mr. Craig's parting shot.

Cold Storage Peonies.

Charles E. Meehan says that the whole secret of putting peonies successfully into cold storage, after they have been properly cut, is never to allow them to heat at any stage. This is more difficult than it seems, because peonies heat easily. The most successful packers take the flowers from the fields to the shed, sprinkle the foliage and pack with ice. This is necessary, because it takes many hours of the cold storage to thoroughly penetrate the boxes of peonies. They are often found to be heated away down underneath, long after they have been put into storage. Peonies properly packed can be safely kept in cold storage for a long time, even as late as August, while those improperly packed are nearly always unsatisfactory when taken out.

Various Notes.

Charles P. Poryzees has closed his retail store at the northeast corner of Fifteenth and Chestnut streets, causing gloom among the wholesalers and growers. This is Mr. Poryzees' second failure. The first occurred some years ago, when he did business, as do many of the Greeks, under his first name, Charles Pandella.

Frank P. Myers and Mrs. Myers are visiting friends in Kentucky.

Fred Cowperthwaite spoke on "Outdoor Roses, Their Care and Treatment," before the Salem County Horticultural Society, at Salem, N. J., June 10.

The peony show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held in the fire house in Bryn Mawr on the afternoon of June 7. It was a great success, the entries being so numerous that three hours' time was required for judging. The attendance was large.

The Germantown Horticultural Society held its annual rose meeting in the library of Vernon Park June 12.

Washington, O.—Shortly after 11 p. m. June 1, Washington and vicinity were visited by one of the heaviest rain storms of the season, followed by violent hail. The Robert Buck & Co. greenhouses suffered the most serious damage, there being about 3,000 lights broken. After the glass had been shattered, the hailstones, some of them as large as hen eggs, pelted the flowers inside.

RIDLEY PARK, PA.

The ninth flower show was held June 10, with 165 entries. Michell's Nursery, of Andalusia, had a large collection of perennials, 137 vases, staged by Frank B. Michell, which was greatly admired, being the first large collection of perennials ever seen in Ridley Park.

The Michell seed house presented the exhibitor securing the largest number of points with a silver medal and the second largest number of points with a bronze medal. Frank B. Michell was one of the judges.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The week closing June 10 was, generally speaking, an unsatisfactory one both climatically and for business. It was a week of almost continuous fog, drizzle or drenching rain, with low temperatures for the season. Good buying of flowers under such adverse weather conditions was hardly to be expected, and while receipts, owing to the cold, damp week, were not specially heavy, they proved far above the market's needs, and many flowers found their way into the rubbish barrels. Roses, except two or three varieties like Ophelia, Russell, Ward and Hadley, are not selling well. The stores want one or two particular colors and others are neglected. American Beauties are now of good quality, but the demand is not robust. Carnations had a serious slump last week and prices dropped as low as $2.50 per thousand. There now is some improvement, but, considering the fine quality of the flowers, prices are low. At this season, however, many people are tired of carnations and much prefer the many outdoor flowers now available.

Lily of the valley is selling well; the outdoor brand is already gone. Yellow marguerites are only selling moderately. Sweet peas of every imaginable quality are seen; good ones sell well. There is a heavy supply of lilies, with a feeble demand for both these and callas. Stocks, feverfew, candytuft and spiræas, belated Memorial day crops, are seen in abundance, but no one wants them. Large-flowered gladioli sell moderately well. America is easily the leader, with Mrs. Francis King next in favor. Peonies are not abundant yet. The season for these is unusually late, but the quality promises to be grand. Cattleyas are abundant; $3 per dozen for C. Mossiæ and $6 for C. gigas are prevailing prices. Adiantum sells well, but Asparagus Sprengeri moves more slowly. The trade in bedding plants was hurt by the cold, wet weather and some specialists in these report a considerable unsold surplus, especially of geraniums.

Reorganization of Welch Bros. Co.

At a meeting held June 1 a reorganization of Welch Bros. Co. was effected, following the resignation of David Welch and E. J. Welch, who have opened a new wholesale commission house at 280 Devonshire street.

Patrick Welch retains office as president and treasurer. Henry Haas was elected manager and Frank J. Reynolds becomes assistant manager.

Henry Haas has had a long experience in the wholesale handling of cut flowers, having acted as salesman for William H. Elliott for several years and of late for N. F. Comley, of Burlington. He is extremely popular among the flower buyers of Boston and is considered one of the most capable and energetic young men connected with the wholesale flower business.

Frank J. Reynolds has traveled extensively in New England, New York and Canada and knows practically all the commercial florists in this large territory. He started twenty years ago with Welch Bros., remaining with them eight years. He was later for a number of years with N. F. McCarthy & Co., as manager. For two years he acted as a salesman for a number of growers in the Boston Flower Market and has until recently been with McAlpine & McDonald. He is one of the best versed men in Boston's wholesale flower business, if not in the entire country.

Various Notes.

This week sees the opening of one more wholesale commission house in Boston. David Welch and E. J. Welch, brothers of Patrick Welch and formerly of Welch Bros. Co., opened a splendid new wholesale store June 12, at 280 Devonshire street, right in the heart of the wholesale flower district, near the south terminal station and within easy reach of the north station. The new firm, to be known as Welch's, has an up-to-date store in every respect, and the two members of the firm are so well known and respected by everyone connected with the local flower industry that they can hardly fail to succeed. The name of Welch has always been intimately associated with Boston's flower business, and we look to see the new firm become one of the leaders of its kind in New England.

The cold and damp weather, while hard on business, has caused peonies and other herbaceous plants, rhododendrons and hardy azaleas to bloom with wonderful profusion, and at the postponed exhibition of these popular flowers in Horticultural hall, June 17 and 18, there should be a grand display. For the rose show, scheduled for June 24 and 25, the dates selected should prove about right. Hardy roses have reveled in recent climatic conditions.

John McFarland, of North Easton, is sending in fine shipments of sweet peas, lilies and adiantums. He will commence benching chrysanthemums, over 100,000 in all, about the end of the present month.

Special flower days in various cities in Massachusetts have used a good many flowers of late. Carnations have been the best sellers. Everett took 15,000, Springfield 30,000, Brockton 20,000, and other cities considerable numbers. Except for these purchases, there would have been a heavy waste of carnations.

There promises to be a rousing attendance at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club June 20, in Horticultural hall. Business will commence at 7:30 sharp, in order to allow a longer social evening. Tickets are selling fast, but may still be purchased from the club officers or at the door June 20.

Wedding orders booked at Galvin's are more numerous than in any preceding year. The display of aquatic flowers at the Park street store is attractive, cool and restful.

Chandler Bros., of Tewksbury, are cutting a splendid lot of America and Mrs. Francis King gladioli.

James Philbrick, of Woburn, knows how to grow bachelor's buttons. He is displaying them with 24-inch stems and, of course, flowers of such quality find ready purchasers even in periods of glut.

F. J. Dolansky has a splendid lot of miltonias, in addition to Cattleya Mossiæ, C. Mendelii, C. gigas and Phalænopsis amabilis.

Holm Lea, the beautiful estate of Professor C. S. Sargent, in Brookline, was thrown open to the public June 10 and 11, for the annual inspection of the beautiful displays of rhododendrons, azaleas, irises and other hardy flowering plants. Unfortunately, the weather was on its worst behavior and visitors were much fewer than usual.

The Market.

Conditions in the cut flower market last week were unsatisfactory. There was an oversupply of stock and low prices were the rule. The retailers were buying sparingly and stock was hard to move. Business opened well the first of this week, the supply being somewhat lighter than previously.

Peonies are about over; only a few are coming in. Taken as a whole, this year's crop of peonies was unsatisfactory, both as to quality, the inferiority of which no doubt was due to the unfavorable weather, and sales, which were not up to the average. Roses are in the usual supply, as well as carnations. Peas are short-stemmed and of none too good quality. There are a few outdoor roses, irises, etc., and they move slowly.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held June 12. There was nothing of much importance scheduled and the attendance was light. It was decided to cancel the regular summer outing and to hold more social affairs in the clubrooms during the winter season. The schedule committee presented the final list of prizes for the show to be held in connection with Maryland week, November 14 to 18. The list was adopted by the club. The committee which had the amateur rose show in charge reported, and a vote of thanks was extended its members for their good work in connection with the show.

Various Notes.

L. L. Lancaster, who formerly resided in this city, is here visiting relatives.

Charles Uffler, who for many years has been in charge of the J. Harrison Garrett estate, near Glencoe, has resigned his position and accepted another in California.

P. B. Welsh recently was noticed riding around in a new 6-cylinder touring car. Business at Glen Morris must be booming.

Sidney Bayersdorfer, J. J. Goudy and D. T. Connor, of Philadelphia, called on the trade this week.

George Fauth is closing out the stock of his son's greenhouses and will offer the place for sale in the fall.

George S. Kalb is confined to his bed with a severe attack of rheumatism.

Charles Siegwart is cutting some fine Cattleya Mossiæ. A specimen plant, which he says is only in its second season, carried thirty-two blooms and a few buds.

The name of William E. McKissick was inadvertently omitted from the list giving the members of the show committee. W. F. E.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Business last week was reported good by the leading retailers. The many weddings, school commencements and funeral work caused a big demand for stock. After another week of good business, perhaps trade will begin to recede toward summer's dullness. The Democratic national convention, to be held here this week, should bring extra business to florists.

Continuous rains and high winds have caused a shortage of outdoor stock. Last week roses were not too plentiful and they had a good sale. The same may be said of carnations. Good sweet peas sell well at all times. Gladioli and candidum lilies have a good demand. Growers say the gladiolus cut will be greatly reduced this year on account of the heavy rains. Coreopsis and hardy phloxes are good sellers at present. Shipments of cape jasmines from Texas are not so heavy as formerly. Fancy ferns and good, long smilax are scarce. Other greens are plentiful.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held its monthly meeting June 8 at Kirkwood. W. J. Pilcher, who invited the members to hold the meeting at his place, had everything in readiness to receive the members. Nearly fifty members met in the wholesale district and made the trip to Kirkwood in automobiles gayly decorated with flags.

After an inspection tour of the big rose houses, which were found in the usual splendid condition, the meeting was called to order by President Bourdet. After disposing of the preliminaries, the trustees reported that the annual picnic would be held July 19 or 20, at Romona park. All arrangements will be perfected by the next meeting.

John S. Carter, chairman of the associate membership committee, presented his report. He favored an associate membership and advocated a change in the by-laws to create such. The first reading was favorably voted upon.

W. W. Ohlweiler, of the spring flower show committee, reported the various committees doing good work. A meeting of all chairmen of the committees was set for June 13.

SMITH FLORAL CO., 1112 Broadway

W. S. Wells reported for the committee appointed to organize a Missouri State Florists' Association. He stated that such an organization had been perfected May 24, at Columbia, Mo., through the efforts of his committee and that his committee had no further work. On motion the committee was discharged with a vote of thanks for its good work.

Several communications were read and filed. The St. Louis convention bureau asked the members of the club to name an official flower of the city or state, to be worn by members of the various conventions coming to St. Louis this summer. Geo. Pring, H. C. Irish, C. C. Sanders, W. W. Ohlweiler and David S. Geddis were appointed a committee to act on this suggestion. The committee took counsel and named the coreopsis as the official St. Louis flower. Applications for membership were filed by H. M. Studdard, Henry Ochs, Ed. G. Sedvic, Emmett McDonald and Alexander Volkman.

Treasurer Smith's report on the financial standing of the club brought smiles from the members. President Bourdet invited the club to hold its next meeting at his place. This invitation was accepted with thanks. W. J. Pilcher then invited the members to partake of an excellent lunch and before leaving cheers were given the host and hostess. the club will long be remembered by the members.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its monthly meeting at the Eleven Mile House June 7. President Winter and all other officers were present. David S. Geddis gave a "get-together" talk, which proved quite interesting. The members voted Mr. Geddis their thanks for the speech. The next meeting of the association will be held July 12.

The Retail Florists' Association will hold its meeting June 19, at the Mission Inn Garden. As the busy season will then be at an end, President Young and Secretary Weber expect to have all members present. Much important business is to come up for discussion.

Miss T. Badaracco has completed the redecorating of her store. Other improvements will follow during the summer months. Miss Badaracco has had splendid business this season.

The loss from the storm of June 2 at the H. G. Berning place, Columbia, Ill., was heavy. A large quantity of glass was broken, a windmill was blown over and plants in the field were badly broken.

to young trees by storm. Frank Weber says the wind and hail of June 2 broke about 75,000 young peach trees and the bark of thousands of shade trees was struck off. The loss in this line approximates $50,000.

W. A. Rowe, of Kirkwood, had a big force of men at work repairing the loss from the recent storm. A fine batch of carnation plants in the field were badly cut. Mr. Rowe is making preparations to build two houses, 300 feet long, this summer. He expects material from Chicago soon.

The spring flower show guarantee fund committee met at the office of August Hummert, who is an officer of the St. Louis Seed Co. and chairman of the committee. It was announced that the fund of $10,000 was more than half subscribed at that time.

Ludwig Zimmer, the Biddel market florist, reports that he has fallen heir to a large sum of money through the death of a relative, who recently died in Germany. Mr. Zimmer hopes the war will end soon, in order that he may again visit his old home.

The Shackelford Nursery Co. is cutting a fine lot of candidum lilies; also extra fine white phloxes. The latter are in big demand by the west end florists.

City Forester Koenig's force of men was busy last week repairing the heavy damage done to city trees by the recent storm. Many of the fine old trees were blown down.

W. S. Wells, secretary of the Missouri State Florists' Association, says the local florists are rapidly joining the association. He looks forward to many applications from all parts of the state the latter part of this month, when the busy season is at an end. J. J. B.

The daily papers for June 10 recorded the incorporation of the St. Louis Cut Flower Co., authorized to do a general florists' business. The capital stock, fully paid, is $20,000. Twenty shares are held by D. S. Geddis, ten shares by J. J. Beneke, and 170 shares by F. P. Maid.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Fresno, Cal.—Miss Kate Parsons has moved her store from the Holland building to 1136 J street.

San Jose, Cal.—Mrs Alma C. Lehmann reports a good season's trade, the Memorial day business far exceeding that of the same day last year. The only complaint is against the weather, which has been unseasonably cool during the day and unusually cold at night.

PACIFIC COAST SHOWS.

Lack of space in this department makes it necessary to print in another part of the paper this week accounts of two Pacific coast exhibitions, the sweet pea show at San Francisco and the rose festival at Portland.

For the sweet pea report see page 14.
For the rose festival see page 17.

SAN DIEGO'S FINEST.

Capt. F. Edward Gray sends The Review a photograph of a bed of excellent lilies and says:

"The picture is a partial view of a bed of 2,000 Lilium longiflorum in the formal garden of the southern California exhibit at the San Diego Exposition. The lilies are planted among Cryptomeria Japonica, having as a carpet blooming ivy-leaved geraniums of the variety Charles Turner.

"It is a remarkable growth of longiflorum, one plant having fifteen blooms; about 200 had fourteen flowers each; of the remainder, plants each bearing twelve blooms predominated. They started blooming May 1 and at this date, June 1, they are in full, glorious bloom."

AN ALAMEDA BUSINESS WOMAN.

Ordinarily the idle rich, particularly those whom the novelists classify as "social butterflies," are spoken of by the vast, hard-working, producing middle classes in terms not in the least complimentary. But not infrequently one of these, born with a silver spoon and bred in affluence, will emerge from his or her sphere and tackle a difficult business proposition so capably and with such success that the business world again is compelled to admit that brains, practicability and common sense are no respecters of class distinctions. The case in point is well exemplified by one Miss Edna Siegfried, a society girl of Alameda, Cal., but better known as owner and manager of the Western Orchid Co., one of the largest of its kind in the west.

Miss Siegfried probably is the first woman to invade this particular line of industry, the cultivation of the orchid on a large scale. She is said to be the only woman importer on the west coast and is the sole agent for Pacific orchid peat, which the eastern trade is awakening to the value of. She not only knows how to cultivate many varieties of cattleyas, phalænopsis, vandas and cypripediums in her greenhouses at Alameda, but also knows the selling end of the game, in which she is sometimes assisted by Albert O. Stein, the San Francisco florist.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Although funeral work for some weeks has been the mainstay of the business, the amount that developed during the last week was greatly in excess of anything for a long time. This and a few weddings helped to clean up a great deal of stock, of which there has been an unusually large quantity. Gladioli are extra fine this week, and the red dahlia, Minnie Burgle, has made a great hit with the public. Roses are still a little off color, but are better than a week ago. The only outdoor rose arriving in any quantity is Ulrich Brunner, which delights in the cool nights and misty mornings that we have had of late. Mrs. J. Laing also has appeared in a few places, and this rose is always a favorite when obtainable. Carnations have shown considerable improvement in the last two weeks, the new crop from the beach towns helping out. Sweet peas also like the cool weather and are still coming in fine shape.

The Mexican poppy, or hunnemannia, is a good, showy flower for window decorations and looks fine when used in conjunction with the blue delphinium. Valley is an uncertain quantity. At times there is more than the market will absorb, while at other times it cannot be had. Orchids are letting up a little, but there seems to be enough to go around. Greens are plentiful and good.

Various Notes.

Arthur Gleave, of Gleave's Flower Shop, Santa Barbara, paid a flying visit to the city last week. He reports business good.

Norris & Son say they are well satisfied with the business done so far at their new store in the Rosslyn hotel building.

Albert Goldenson is now back with his brother, at Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson's. Manager John Gordon reports that June 5 they had one of the biggest days in their experience.

The monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was postponed from June 6 to June 7 on account of election day, and was held in the evening of the latter date, at Kruckeberg's hall. No special speaker had been decided upon, so the welfare of the society was the topic up for discussion.

More than a fair share of misfortune has certainly been coming to E. Hill, nurseryman of Alhambra. He had lost his baby and his wife was in the hospital, seriously ill. Then he took his 6-year-old daughter for a ride in his side car. A large automobile struck him, killing his daughter instantly and seriously injuring him.

The sympathy of everyone in the trade goes out to G. M. Bridgeford, of

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Market conditions were satisfactory last week. The closing of the city schools created a large demand for flowers for commencements; a large number of weddings absorbed a great many more and funeral work was quite active, all of which, in addition to a liberal quantity of decorative work for other functions, and a good counter trade, cleaned up nearly everything without much difficulty. The quality of the present offerings is good. Outdoor stock is in excellent shape, owing to favorable climatic conditions in practically all the growing sections that supply this market. The recent severe winds did slight damage in certain neighborhoods, but its effect was not far-reaching.

Quantities of small stuff, such as statice, gypsophilas, coreopsis, marigolds, etc., are being used to good advantage. Outdoor gladioli are plentiful and find a good demand. Dahlias are coming in nicely. Some of the finest zinnias ever seen here are arriving. They have stems two feet long and well formed flowers, some as large as dahlias. Sweet peas are fine and have a good sale. The same may be said of carnations. The rose situation is all that can be desired; there is plenty of stock and enough demand to absorb it. Russell shows exceptionally fine quality and it maintains its popularity well. Hadley, Ophelia, Prima Donna, George Elger, Irish Elegance and Cecile Brunner also are favorites. Potted stock is not overplentiful, although there still are many fine French hydrangeas, a fair supply of begonias and some spiræas. Pansies are having a splendid run in basket arrangements. The supply of orchids barely meets the requirements of the trade.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

The attendance at the monthly meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society on the evening of June 3 was rather light, as several members were out of town. On behalf of the field day committee, D. Raymond reported a pleasant trip May 21 to R. Lohrman's place at San Rafael and the Marin flower show in that city. He announced that the only other field day in view is a visit to the plant of the Garden City Pottery Co., at San Jose, in September. The picnic committee announced that it will make its final report at the next meeting. For the committee appointed at the last meeting to confer with exposition officials regarding awards for exhibits, which have not been received by certain members, H. Plath stated that representatives of the exposition have promised to take up the matter of prizes for horticultural exhibits in July.

An invitation was tendered to the members of the society to attend the annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary, to be held at the home of John Gill, in West Berkeley. Those present were glad to welcome Charles Abraham, who has not been attending the meetings for a year or more on account of poor health. He appeared quite hearty. The evening's exhibits were somewhat lacking, the only exhibit being a large pot of Nephrolepis Amerpohlii, by H. Plath, which took ninety-eight points.

Various Notes.

The wedding of Miss Tillie V. Pelicano, daughter of Frank Pelicano, to A. Costa, was one of the pretty church affairs of last week. The happy couple are motoring to San Diego as a honeymoon trip.

W. D. Fraser, owner of a large seed farm at Seattle, Wash., was a recent visitor.

The California State Floral Society held a meeting on the afternoon of June 9. Mr. Wilson, of the weather bureau, entertained the members during the afternoon at his headquarters in the Merchants' Exchange building.

H. Plath has a large house of Primula obconica in flats about ready for potting. His old stock is about cleaned out.

Schwerin Bros. are building another house, 26x150 feet, to be devoted to adiantum.

Appleby & Letts, near Haywards, in Alameda county, are completing two greenhouses, each 18x150 feet, for cyclamens and flowering plants.

E. James has a fine lot of celosias coming on, mostly Pride of Castle Gould and some new Scotch varieties just imported. He is about cleaned out of hydrangeas, but says spiræas have sold poorly this spring. He had success with Tausendschon roses this year and still has a few left, although the demand is about over now. They lasted unusually well.

The E. Gill Nursery Co. has an exceptionally fine stand of roses at its Edenvale place in Santa Clara county.

John Gill and John Vallance plan to go to Medford, Ore., about June 20, to attend the convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen.

Included in the estimates filed by various municipal departments of Alameda, Cal., for the next fiscal year was $2,500 for a new greenhouse for McKinley park. S. H. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Last week was a busy one for the florists. Establishing the floral center and decorating floats for the parades required extra help and used all available stock. A grand lodge convention of the Eastern Star added to the strong demand for flowers and many roses were sent to friends during festival week.

The Rose Show.

The annual show of the Portland Rose Society was held on the fifth floor of the Meier & Frank department store, June 7 and 8. The lateness of the season caused the quality of the roses to be better than usual, and added to the success of the show. Although a separate event, the rose show is financed by the festival association. The grand prize for the best flower was awarded to the exhibitor of a bloom of Mme. Melanie Soupert. The principal competition was between two blooms of the same variety. The usual number of exhibits were entered and the attendance was large.

Festival Notes.

The following were noted among last week's visitors: J. C. Smith and son, of the Smith Floral Co., Tacoma; P. F. Rosaia, of Rosaia Bros., Seattle; R. J. Taylor, of Vancouver, B. C.; W. S. Duncan, of Albany, Ore.; J. Z. Holze, of the Queen City Floral Co., Seattle; C. T. Kipp, of the Spokane Florist Co., Spokane; S. E. Sanford, of the Washington Floral Co., Seattle; S. Goldsack, of Seattle; G. Bjorkman, of the Ballard Greenhouses, Seattle; A. D. Smith, of Salem, Ore.; George Haslinger, of Hood River, Ore. "Jack" Holze assisted in initiating C. T. Kipp and G. Bjorkman into the Society of the Yellow Dog.

Clarke Bros. sent more than 1,000 flats of potted stock to the floral center.

Julius Dossche, "Scottie" and Tom Polluck worked all night placing the potted roses on the rose fountain.

Yellow shrubby calceolarias will be in great demand next year. They were much admired in the exhibits.

The regular meeting of the Portland Floral Society will be held June 20. Final reports on festival matters and the annual election of officers will be the features of the session.

The new rose, George Arends—Pink Druschki—is mentioned as a strong competitor of Mme. Caroline Testout, now the official rose of Portland. Some fine bushes of the new rose were exhibited by the Mountain View Floral Co.

The "flower lady" in the trade exhibit of the Swiss Floral Co. attracted much attention.

Among the prize-winning floats was one by the Jefferson high school, decorated by Max Smith; one by Washington high school, by Clarke Bros., and a private automobile decorated by the Floral Studio. Several fine floats were decorated by the florists and entered as non-competing. Not one of the florists entered his car, as he had too much work on hand.

Several blocks in the central business district were decorated, at the expense of the business men, with cedar garlands and hanging baskets. The movement was started too late to get the baskets in good shape and the garlands would have looked better without the baskets.

James Forbes was "mightily tickled" because the rose exhibit of his home community won first prize.

B. Van Kirk was seen on the street wearing a crown of the size of two large wash tubs. Later it was discovered that he was not competing with King Joy, but was taking up the headpiece for the float of the Royal Arcanum.

The large urns that lined the promenades were from the Pacific Stoneware Co. The Martin & Forbes Co. furnished the hydrangeas that filled them.

The rose fountain was thirty-five feet high, comprising about 400 potted Dorothy Perkins roses. The fountain was lighted by 1,800 electric bulbs, operated with shower effect. S. W. W.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20 to 22, 1916.

THE wholesale lists now coming to hand, offering turnip, etc., show "Sold out" after an unusual number of items.

CONSIDERING all things, spinach seed seems to be worth more money than the current wholesale lists quote it at, although advances are 5 cents to 7 cents per pound since January 1.

IOWANS HAVE GOOD MEETING.

Officers Elected.

At the highly successful meeting of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association, now held annually at Des Moines, June 7 and 8, the following officers were elected:

President—W. C. Grote, of the Younkerman Seed Co., Council Bluffs.

Vice-president—E. M. Cole, of Cole's Seed Store, Pella.

Secretary—A. M. Eldridge, of Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, reëlected.

Treasurer—John T. Hamilton, of Hamilton Coal & Seed Co., Cedar Rapids, reëlected for the tenth consecutive time.

Three Sessions Held.

There were three business sessions and a day of recreation. Matters pertaining to the welfare of the organization were discussed at an executive session and the matter of pound and bushel weights was taken up, it being thought advisable to adhere to the former ideas, and so far as possible sell seeds by the pound instead of by the bushel.

The officers of the Iowa Seed Co. did themselves proud as entertainers and decorators. The annual banquet was held in the assembly room of the Savory hotel. Mel L. Webster, who was for a time in Waco, Tex., arrived in time for the banquet.

The association members were given a lunch by Successful Farming and also visited the new plant recently constructed by the Iowa Homestead. Not all of the members availed themselves of the opportunity to inspect the college and test grounds at Ames, Ia., the second day, on account of unfavorable weather conditions.

Secretary Eldridge, who is given credit for infusing new life into the association, went home filled with fresh enthusiasm. "Next year we will try to make the convention bigger and better and we want as soon as possible to really do things," he told The Review. "We are increasing our membership as rapidly as consistent. We were much disappointed in not having H. G. Hastings, of Atlanta, Ga., with us, this year as expected, but he was detained on account of the illness of Mrs. Hastings. Other speakers whom we were expecting were unavoidably detained, but we had a good time anyway."

Those Present.

The following firms were present or represented at the meeting:

J. F. Sinn, Harry Sunfield and C. E. Peck, of A. A. Berry Seed Co., Clarinda, Ia.
E. M. Cole, of Cole's Seed Store, Pella, Ia.

ANOTHER WARRANTY ANGLE.

There are innumerable angles to the disclaimer cases that come up, scarcely any two of them being alike. For this reason seedsmen will be interested in a recent decision of the Washington Supreme court in the case of Meehan versus Ingalls, bearing on the right of a nurseryman-buyer of apple and pear seeds to defend liability for the purchase price on account of the claimed non-germinating character of the seed.

The plaintiff, or seller, sued to recover the price of crab apple and pear seed sold to the defendant. The defendant nurseryman, or buyer, counterclaimed damages on the ground that the seed, although properly planted and cultivated, did not germinate. The trial jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendant, but the Supreme court reversed the judgment on appeal, and entered a judgment in the plaintiff's favor.

fendant in the negotiations for the sale that the seed would be of the "usual first-class germinating quality that we have furnished in the past," the letterhead contained this statement: "Guaranty: While we try to procure the best seed on the market, we give no guaranty, either expressed or implied. Samples will always be furnished when applied for. If the seeds are not accepted on these terms, we must be notified at once. If they are kept it will be taken as proof that they are satisfactory."

On receipt of the shipment, the defendant placed the seeds in a creek, where they soaked for about a week, after which they were placed in an ice-pack for several weeks. Before the plaintiff made the shipment, the seeds were given the usual test to determine their character, and this test showed that they were good and would germinate. On the other hand, the only evidence offered by defendant to show that the seeds were not good was the fact that they were planted in good soil in the usual manner, but did not grow.

An expert testified that two days at the longest was the time required for wetting seeds, and that if they are placed in an ice-pack, which is permitted to melt, the seeds will heat and destroy their germinating quality. Under these circumstances, the Supreme court said:

"We think it is apparent from these facts that there were at least two causes for the destruction of the germinating quality of the seeds after they were received by the defendant. If the seeds were left too long in water, they would germinate, and ice would then destroy the germination; and, secondly, if they were properly placed upon the ice, and the ice was permitted to melt, the seeds would heat, and the heat would destroy the germinating quality. Both of these conditions are present in this case.

"Assuming, without deciding, that there was an express warranty of the quality of the seeds, the testimony is not disputed that the usual test was applied to the seeds by the plaintiff to determine the germinating quality of the seeds, and the test showed the

THE KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

Seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22. GIANT KENILWORTH STRAIN. The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches. It is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.
24. GIANT KENILWORTH SHOW. An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance. A beautiful collection of colors and markings.
26. GIANT KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.
28. GIANT MASTERPIECE. A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stem.
30. GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES. A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich, velvety colors; reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large, dark blotches.
32. GIANT PARISIAN. The flowers are of enormous size and beautifully marked, mostly fine dark blotches on white and yellow ground; an unusually showy mixture.
34. GIANT BRONZE. A fine mixture of all shades of velvety brown, bronze, Havana brown, mahogany and copper shades.
45. GIANT APOLLO (Masterpiece type). New bronze, veined and blotched. Strongly frilled petals. A superb Pansy.
47. GIANT ERFORDIA (New Red). Of the Masterpiece type. The largest and best red. The result of ten years of selection. The color is of a deep, smooth, velvet red shading to scarlet, with curled petals and sweet scented.
49. GIANT MERCURY. New. A deep blackish purple, really self-colored, without blotches or spots. The flowers are extraordinary in size and substance, being the largest flowers of all self-colored Pansies.
52. ORCHID FLOWERED, Mixed. A dwarf, free bloomer, with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other Pansies; a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois.

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming Giant Pansies

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the Summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations.

500 seeds 50c., 1000 seeds $1.00, ⅛ oz. $2.00, ¼ oz. $3.75, 1 oz. $15.00

20. PRINCESS. The New Upright Pansy.

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weatherproof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy, velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 Seeds 20c., 1000 Seeds 35c., ⅛ oz. $1.00, ¼ oz. $2.00, 1 oz. $7.50.

FREE OFFER RAINBOW is a mixture of the most beautiful, gorgeous colors, blotched, striped, veined, margined, etc. With every $1.00 worth of Pansy seed I will send, free, 1000 seeds of Rainbow and with other amounts in like proportion.

Prices of Kenilworth Pansy Seed

All sorts and mixtures except the new Pansy Princess and the Early Flowering or Winter Blooming are $5.00 per oz., $1.25 per ¼ oz.; 5000 seeds $1.00; trade pkt. of 1000 seeds 25c; any 5 pkts. $1.00. Please order by number.

seeds to be good. There is no evidence to dispute the good quality of the seeds, except that the seeds when planted did not grow. But the method of handling the seeds by the defendant after he received them is sufficient to show that it was through his own neglect and failure to properly treat the seeds that their germinating power was killed. We are satisfied, therefore, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the agreed price of the seeds, and that a judgment should have been entered in his favor.'' S.

SHIPMENTS TO ARGENTINA.

Seedsmen wishing to send seeds to the Argentine Republic should conform to certain requirements, which, as stated by the consul-general of the Argentine Republic at New York city, are: The seed grower must make an affidavit before a notary public, the notary public attaching his jurat and official seal, stating that the seeds are free from diseases. A similar affidavit should be obtained from the county clerk and both certificates, or affidavits, sent to the consul-general of the Argentine Republic at New York, for certification, the fee for which is $2.

Sweet Peas from Zvolanek seed, exhibited by Mr. Zvolanek and other prominent growers, have gathered first prizes everywhere. The four latest honors were First Prizes at the Philadelphia National Flower Show and the New York International Flower Show, and the Gold Medals of Honor at both the San Francisco and San Diego Expositions. Last year's crop was sold out very early. Orders are filled in the order of their receipt. We urge ordering now—from the novelties offered below or from the price list we will gladly send.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

CUCUMBER WILT.

I have eight greenhouses in which cucumbers are growing. Two of the houses contain solid beds and the other six have raised benches. I grow Rawson's Hothouse and Vickery Forcing varieties. We started these plants in pots from January 1 to 20, and planted them in the beds from March 1 to 20. They are grown in a good field loam, with some rotted horse manure, and we had a fine lot of lettuce in these houses, using nitrate of soda between the rows. After planting the cucumbers, about two feet apart, we gave about a gallon of well rotted cow manure to each hill. When the plants were twelve to eighteen inches high we gave an application of fresh horse manure, one or two inches thick. We sprayed them with nicotine to kill green fly and the foliage is bright and clean. The trouble is that some of the plants, with cucumbers nearly ready for the market, suddenly wither, and we are at a loss to know what causes this trouble and how to prevent it. We gave the beds a coat of slaked lime, which seemed to help a little. We cut back some of the wilted plants and they made new growth. The roots of the plants are healthy looking and white. We have been careful in watering, so as not to get the plants too wet and soggy or let them become too dry. We have used Bordeaux mixture, but have not yet had time to see any effect. Some of our friends have said the trouble is cucumber wilt, but no remedy has been suggested, except to remove the affected plants so that the disease will not spread. Any information will be appreciated. L. H.—Tenn.

For cucumber blight or wilt there is as yet no known remedy. That it is infectious the majority of cucumber men are agreed, and pulling out affected plants, or at least cutting out wilted portions as soon as they appear, is to be recommended. This and other bacterial affections are largely prevented by sterilizing the soil well before planting. This applies to both cucumbers and lettuce. Do not use any nitrate of soda on cucumbers. There is no better food for them than cow manure, either as a top-dressing or in liquid form, if you can procure it.

Your treatment of the cucumbers seems to have been as nearly correct as possible, but this wilt appears in the houses of our most expert growers from time to time, so do not get discouraged.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

HERBERT E. LATTER, Norman P. Coffin and C. L. Rimlinger, of Wilmington, Del., have incorporated the W. B. Davis Greenhouse Co. at $200,000. Fruit and shade trees are the principal products.

THE season has been most favorable for the nursery trade. The late spring gave excellent opportunity to get orders out and planting done, while recent rains have helped greatly in giving the stock a good start.

THE McKinney Nursery Co., of McKinney, Tex., has been a successful bidder for government contracts covering the planting of shrubs and trees on the grounds of federal buildings in several southern cities.

THE D. Hill Nursery Co., Dundee, Ill., has found so good an opening in the florists' trade for evergreens and other ornamentals, that it is going in on imported forcing stock, azaleas, aucubas, lily bulbs, etc.

NURSERYMEN will be interested in the decision of the Washington Supreme court in the case of Meehan vs. Ingalls, reported in the Seed Trade Department of this issue. It concerns the recovery of the price of apple and pear seeds that failed to germinate.

WILLIAM A. PETERSON, Chicago, is absent from home in peony season for the first time in many years. The Peterson family for a part of this week is at Richmond, Ind., where the eldest son, Harold, is graduating from the Quaker college of Earlham. Harold Peterson purposes to become a missionary. The younger son, Norman, is in the office of Peterson Nursery.

Resolutions.

LAST WEEK'S IMPORTS.

According to a manifest on file at the New York customhouse, the Dutch steamer Maasdyke, from Rotterdam, which arrived at New York June 5, had on board only five consignments for the trade, as follows: J. Roehrs Co., 130 tubs trees; A. Rölker & Sons, 2 cases trees; Wadley & Smythe, 254 tubs trees; Maltus & Ware, 1 case plants; Gray Bros., 13 packages bulbs.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Pittsburgh has been experiencing cool weather, with a few rains every day. Flowers have been arriving in great quantities, especially roses and carnations. There was not enough business to move the daily cuts, and by Saturday the street boys were able to buy stock at a song, and nearly every downtown doorway was occupied by a flower merchant Saturday night. It looks now as though the worst was over. Peonies are done. The outdoor roses are at their best, but a few days will finish them, and after that good flowers will be more in demand and harder to obtain.

Some fine Spanish irises are coming in and are in great demand. Cattleyas have been fine, especially C. gigas, which brings $9 per dozen without any trouble. There are a few large weddings in view to close the month, and these, combined with school commencements, will put life in business during the remainder of the month. After that time all hands probably will experience the usual summer business, or lack of business.

The Market.

Trade is diminishing somewhat now that the bedding season is drawing to a close, but there still is plenty of work to be disposed of. The demand for porch boxes, etc., has been unusually heavy and has broken all records. Bedding stock as a rule has cleaned up in good shape and there has been much hustling done to obtain enough vincas to meet all demands. The demand has been heavy for potted roses, and there still are many of them moving. The frequent rains have made it difficult to finish outdoor work and the cool weather has retarded the development of most outdoor stock.

Roses are of fine quality and are moving nicely. Beauties are more plentiful and the demand for them has been increased by the school commencements. Carnations are of inferior quality and there is an abundance of them. Sweet peas are moving nicely, for corsages, as valley has been particularly scarce. Some good gladioli and Spanish irises are to be seen at this time.

There are a number of prominent weddings booked for this month, and it is likely that some of the craft will be working overtime. According to reports, everyone is well satisfied with this spring's trade. J. M.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

FIVE YEARS AGO we offered you Pocahontas, with the assurance that it would soon displace all other crimsons. Some of you bought it and were glad. Others turned it down and later on regretted having done so. That is why the demand for the cuttings was fully double the supply this past winter. This is not meant for a complaint, but merely to caution you not to make the same mistake with Merry Christmas. We believe that Merry Christmas will take the same place among scarlets that Pocahontas holds among the crimsons. If you have confidence in our judgment, send us your order now and get in on the early deliveries. Dissemination begins next December.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The market, which was glutted with stock at the beginning of the week, was in somewhat better condition at the close of the week. The four days of steady rain shortened the cut to some extent and kept the surplus down so that it was not troublesome. Good stock cleaned up well and, taken as a whole, business was good last week. Shipping trade was exceptionally good and the stock was in fine shape. Both carnations and roses are plentiful and good, but the receipts of sweet peas fell off tremendously and these were really scarce for a time. The weather has improved, but the needed drop in the cut brought the supply down so that it could be handled without difficulty.

Valley and greens are having a large sale, on account of the June weddings. The supply is sufficient to take care of the demand. Outdoor peonies are beginning to come in, but the supply is small and easily handled. Orchids are in good supply and are selling well. Plant sales continue large and a large quantity of stock is being moved. The late spring will probably carry this business through to the end of this month.

Various Notes.

J. M. Fox, of J. M. Fox & Son, 437 Milwaukee street, passed away at his home Wednesday, June 7. J. F. Fox, his son, who had charge of the flower department, has the deep sympathy of his many friends in the trade.

William Lubliner, of 225 Grand avenue, has attracted much attention with his display window this spring. Mothers' day he had a model of a benevolent lady, with a messenger bringing her a box of flowers. Memorial day a grave, with models of an old soldier and a little girl, made quite an impression. He now has a replica of a blushing bride for the merry month of June.

The Market.

Irises and gladioli, which made their appearance a couple of weeks ago, are arriving in large quantities. Sweet peas are plentiful and cheap. Funeral work has been heavy during the last few weeks and has helped to keep the supply fairly well cleaned up. Now that the greenhouses have been cleared of bedding stock, the growers are beginning to plan more actively for fall. They are planting mums and roses, of which some excellent stock is to be seen.

Various Notes.

Rudolph Timmler is sending in the first Shasta daisies of the season. They are especially fine, having stems fifteen to eighteen inches in length.

Paul Floth did the bedding work for King park, and it was a good job.

The Stewart Seed Store is experiencing the best season it ever had. Mrs. Stewart still takes an active interest in the business.

Memorial day business was exceptionally good with most of the local florists. Roses and carnations were in good supply, but peonies were somewhat scarce. Shipped-in stock of the latter in most cases was of poor quality. The home-grown stock arrived three days too late.

John Bath has been busy of late with funeral work. He says that the total business of the passing season will be far in excess of that of last year.

At the Hess & Swoboda range rose planting will be finished this week. The young stock of mums never looked better, and as fast as the benches can be cleared of left-over bedding stock, etc., young stock will be put in.

Rosenfeldt's peony farm is one of the show places of Omaha just at present. The thirty or forty acres are one mass of bloom from one end to the other. These peonies, arriving a few days too late for Memorial day, resulted in a loss of several thousand dollars.

The Bowlers' Scores.

Only a few of the boys turned out for the bowling match June 7, which was won by the Council Bluffs tradesmen by the small margin of eighty-eight pins. The score follows:

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held June 6 at the botanic garden of Smith College, Northampton, Mass. Before settling to business members found many things of interest in the herbaceous garden and greenhouses of the college. The principal business transacted was the adoption of a schedule for the annual flower show, to be held in Northampton, November 1 and 2.

George Strugnell read a paper on hydrangeas, in which he is a specialist. G. J. Canning exhibited sprays of an interesting collection of flowering shrubs, including some of the little known kinds. In the greenhouses the visitors were chiefly attracted by a display of zonal and regal pelargoniums, Canterbury bells, Gladiolus Peach Blossom and Clerodendron fallax.

The Market.

The market is well supplied in all seasonable lines. The receipts of flowers are so heavy that buyers practically dictate prices. Roses are plentiful. The offerings of Taft, My Maryland, Ophelia and Sunburst, as well as American Beauties, are of tolerably good quality. Carnations, too, are plentiful, but there is only a limited quantity of first-class stock. Gladioli are fairly abundant and sell well. The cut of Easter lilies is large. Excellent valley and orchids may be had. Snapdragons have a fair market. Sweet peas are in moderate supply. Other flowers in the market are callas, cornflowers, water lilies and coreopsis. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

One of the interesting events of last week was the marriage of Miss L. Rosalia Gillett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett, to William F. Mayhall. The ceremony took place at 5:30 a. m. at the Holy Family church, at Price Hill. Only the immediate members of the families were present. The wedding breakfast was served by the Sinton hotel. The happy couple left at noon Saturday, June 10, on an extended honeymoon trip to the east. They will be at home July 1, at 560 Purcell avenue, Price Hill.

Other victims of Dan Cupid last week were: Arthur E. Becker, the popular Avondale florist, who married Miss Hannah M. Baer; Neil Forder, the Hyde Park florist, who married Lillian A. Ward, and Miss Muriel J. Murphy, a daughter of the late George Murphy, who married Bernard J. Slaughter, of Dent, O.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been receiving an excellent cut of Taft roses from the Bloomhurst Floral Co., at Lockland.

Recent visitors included Fred Bruggeman, of Newcastle, Ind.; Joseph Hill, of Richmond, Ind.; Miss Fannie White, of Lexington, Ky.; Henry Ehrhardt, of Sidney, O., and I. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

Thomas Windram has been sending some excellent rambler roses to C. E. Critchell. C. H. H.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

MAKING A COIL BOILER.

My greenhouse is 10x80 and ten feet high to the ridge. My present heating system consists of a furnace and a single row of stovepipes running the length of the house, under one bench, but this arrangement is unsatisfactory. The furnace is about 3x4 feet and about two and one-half feet high. Would I get better results by putting coils in the furnace? If so, what size of pipe would you suggest for the purpose and how many coils should the furnace contain? What piping would be needed in the greenhouse, to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather?

P. W.—Wash.

We would prefer to put in a regular hot water boiler, rated for 480 square feet of radiation, or even to use a secondhand tubular steam boiler with a grate twenty to twenty-four inches square. However, if the furnace described is so located that the top will be below the lower ends of the return coils, it will be possible to put heating coils inside and use them as a hot water boiler.

We would use eight 2-inch pipes for the coils, with the necessary ells and close nipples, and would have the pipes the length of the inside of the furnace. Start one coil on each side of the furnace at the back end and about eight inches above the grate. Carry these pipes to the front end of the furnace, and return each of them to the back of the furnace along the side, about three inches above the first pipes. There connect each of these pipes with other pipes running to the front of the furnace over the fire-box, and then return these to the rear end. You will then have two separate coils in the furnace, each consisting of two pipes, one above the other, on each side of the furnace, and two others on their respective sides overhead. Connect the lower end of each of these coils with the returns from each side of the house and the upper ends with the flow pipes.

Kroeschell Boiler—Half the Coal and Half the Work

Your No. 13 Boiler is carrying 25,000 sq. ft. of glass, and I can keep it at 60° in the coldest weather without any trouble. I have three cast iron boilers also, heating a range of 25,000 sq. ft. of glass, but the No. 13 Kroeschell Boiler only takes half the coal and half the work to get the same results.

Kroeschell Boiler Better Than Tubular Boilers or Cast Iron Boilers

Washington Court House, Ohio.

Have used upright boiler, tubular boiler and cast iron boiler. The Kroeschell Boiler heats up better and easier than any other boiler we have ever had anything to do with. If we ever buy another, it will certainly be a Kroeschell.

Very truly yours,
POOLE & PURLLANT.

Cast Iron Cannot Be Compared with Kroeschell

We bought a No. 2 Boiler in 1904. It takes care of 5000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 2000 more. We are very well satisfied. We used a cast iron boiler before we had yours. It cannot be compared with the Kroeschell boiler. Your boiler has certainly a great capacity for heating water.

HALL & ROBINSON,
Montreal, Canada.

Cast Iron Boilers Break Down

Have fired greenhouse boilers since 1885, both steam and hot water. Yours suits me the best. I have two of your boilers. At one time I had two cast iron boilers working together, and during a blizzard the rear section of one boiler gave out and the front section of the other sprung a crack a couple of months later. No more cast iron boilers for me. I came very close to freezing out in both instances.

G. M. THOST, De Soto, Mo.

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years

We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount.

I first had a new cast iron boiler which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler.

I consider your boiler the best paying investment I ever made.

You can refer anyone to us.

MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO.,
Marysville, Ohio.

Cast Iron Boilers Cause Freeze-out—Kroeschell Boilers No Worry

I bought a No. 2 boiler in 1902. Takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass—would take care of 2000 more. I have had a cast iron boiler, but it broke down twice in four years, always in the coldest weather. It broke down Dec. 29, 1904, and I lost all my stock in consequence. I have now two No. 2 and one No. 6 Kroeschell boilers and do not worry about their breaking down.

GRANT NEWPORT,
Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Kroeschell Versus Cast Iron

The No. 7 Boiler I bought from you is heating 14,000 sq. ft. of glass; I think it can take care of 16,000 ft. I do not have any trouble to keep up temperature of 50° in the coldest weather. I fire only once after 12 o'clock midnight. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. I have four cast iron boilers—like the Kroeschell best of all. If anyone wishes to inquire about your boiler, let them write me, for I think your boilers are good ones.

CHARLES SCHULTZ,
Menominee, Mich.

The Kroeschell Does Our Work Easier Than Cast Iron Boilers and Saves 20 to 25% Fuel

The No. 4 boiler is heating 10,000 sq. ft. of glass—it would take care of 13,000 sq. ft. easy. Have no trouble to keep temperatures of 50 and 60 degrees in coldest weather. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. We had two cast iron boilers, one rated for 1200 ft. of pipe and one rated for 1500 ft. These boilers never did the work at their best and when the greenhouses were new. According to our experience with yours, we will save 20 to 25 per cent of fuel.

Josh Billings' Cow

HOW IT CONCERNS YOUR HEATING

JOSH had a way of saying serious things in an amusing way. One of them was: "Always take hold of a cow by the tail, and then you can let go when you want to."

Some growers follow Josh's advice and completely let go their greenhouse heating the minute their fires go out.

They let it go so completely that they never take hold again until Jack Frost tells them it's "firing time."

Such fellows ought to take hold of their heating by the horns and then they wouldn't dare let go.

We have a notion you are one of the never-let-go kind; in which case you will, right now, want to talk heating with us.

And in which case we are right now ready to talk heating with you.

For the heating system in the house, for a temperature of 60 degrees, use a 2-inch flow pipe on each plate and two 2-inch returns on each wall, or under each side bench. Join the lower ends of the pipes in the return coils and connect each coil with one side of the furnace by means of a 2-inch pipe. Arrange the pipes so that they will run downhill, with the highest part of the system at the heater, and connect each of the flow pipes with a pipe leading to a 5-gallon expansion tank, which, if possible, should be placed ten feet or more above the boiler, although it will answer if it is located just under the ridge of the greenhouse.

EXTENDING PRESENT HOUSE.

Will you please give me some information regarding the heating of a greenhouse I am building? At present I have a small greenhouse, 12x26, running from northeast to southwest and leaning against the residence. Thus the greenhouse has a southeast exposure. I am building an extension, forty feet long, and running in the same direction as the present house. As indicated in the enclosed sketch, the new house stands clear of the residence. I have a 6-section Ideal boiler, which formerly heated a 7-room residence. Will this boiler be large enough to heat the two greenhouses? If I decide to make the new addition fourteen feet wide instead of twelve feet, will the boiler have the necessary capacity? The present house is at the rear of the residence and is connected with the basement. Will it be practicable to install the boiler in the basement if I excavate a room 10x12 under the kitchen? What is the best way to arrange the piping?

Will you also name a few roses that I can grow in pots? Will the house be too small for growing a few carnations for local customers? I wish to use the house for general purposes in connection with a retail trade. If my plans are carried out, I shall enlarge the space under glass until the whole lot is occupied. J. M.—Ind.

The description and sketch are not entirely clear and we cannot be sure whether the addition is to be a lean-to, like the original house, or an even-span house. The sketch shows three feet of glass in the side wall of the lean-to, but whether there is glass in either side of the new house is not stated. However, we shall consider it even-span, with glass in one wall. Had the size of the grate been stated, we should be able to make some estimate of the capacity of the boiler, but we can only say that if it has a grate twenty inches in diameter it should heat the two greenhouses to 60 degrees in zero weather, with the new house fourteen feet wide.

The heater can be placed in a cellar under the kitchen, and from it one 2½-inch flow pipe should lead into the present greenhouse. If the new house is even-span, we would run this flow pipe overhead, just under the ridge, and would connect it at the farther end of the extension with six 2-inch pipes, of which three should be on each side wall and should be carried as far as the door at the southwest end of the present house and the one in the northwest wall leading to the basement. At those points connect each coil with a 2½-inch main return leading to the boiler.

This will give sufficient heat for growing carnations and bedding plants, but we would discourage giving much attention to roses. A few Baby Ramblers might be bought in the fall, either field-grown or from 3-inch pots, and brought into bloom for sale as house plants at Easter.

A NEW SEMI-IRON HOUSE.

I expect to build a greenhouse, 21x40 and five and one-half feet to the eaves. There will be twenty-eight inches of glass in each side wall; the lower part of the walls will consist of concrete blocks. One of the gables will be exposed; the other will adjoin the service building. I shall use hot water heat. The house will be a semi-iron frame stock house, of Lord & Burnham construction. The roof will have a 6-inch pitch. How much pipe will be needed for the flows and coils? Will a Rippley hot water boiler heat this house to 60 degrees in zero weather, or will it be necessary to use two, yoked together? Should the coils be hung on the walls or placed beneath the benches? If beneath the benches, please state the distance from bench to pipes.

D. E. W.—Ind.

For heating a house 21x40 feet, with twenty-eight inches of glass in the side walls, to 60 degrees in zero weather, a boiler with a rating of 500 to 600 square feet of hot water radiation will be needed. For an establishment requiring less than 1,000 square feet of hot water radiation, we would use but one boiler, owing to the extra labor in operating two boilers. For larger ranges it is desirable to have an extra boiler held in reserve, to be used in case of trouble with the regular boiler.

To provide the necessary radiating surface, we would suggest the use of three 2½-inch flows and twelve 2-inch

Metropolitan Greenhouses

Thorough In Every Particular

The three things of utmost importance after signing the contract to build a greenhouse, are Quality, Speed and Economy. This is a basic truth and absolutely essential to the success of any greenhouse building operation.

Our organization is letter-perfect down to the minutest detail.

Along with many other prominent Metropolitan Greenhouse owners, Mr. Martin Metzner, for whom we built the above greenhouse on his estate at Lake Ronkonkoma, Long Island, will verify our claim that we are capably equipped to build satisfactorily, rapidly and economically.

returns. One flow should be upon each plate and the other about two feet below the ridge. One coil of four returns may be placed as a horizontal coil on each side wall, or, if more convenient, they may be under the side benches, eight to twelve inches below the bench bottoms. The other return pipes should be under the middle bench. In case the end of the house is much exposed, the middle flow pipe may be extended to the end wall and two returns taken off to run in either direction to the corners of the house and thence along the side walls. This would mean that the middle flow pipe would supply six 2-inch returns, while there would be only three attached to each of the other flow pipes.

We would have the highest point in each of the flow pipes near the heater and would give each of them a drop of one inch in fifteen feet toward the farther end of the house. The returns should have a similar drop toward the boiler. The expansion tank should be attached to the highest point of each flow pipe.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

All the growers had a fine trade in spring plants. It is impossible now to buy hydrangeas or marguerites in the Twin Cities. Vincas, too, are nearly sold out. Roses in pots are done and the florists are at their wits' end to get presentable stock together for vases and window boxes. Some splendid decorations are to be seen. Color schemes are followed out with great taste. Cut stock in general is scarce and high-priced.

Various Notes.

Max Kaiser is busy preparing for fall business. A fine lot of Pteris tremula were being potted up. In the cold-frames were a few thousands of cyclamens in many sizes. They were a fine lot of plants. No doubt our Chicago friends will remember Mr. Kaiser's cyclamens at the Chicago exhibition last fall. French hydrangeas were in evidence.

The Chicago Avenue Greenhouses have cleaned out the spring stock and are busy planting asters in the benches. They have two nice houses of Boston ferns.

Thomas Hall has a fine lot of roses and sweet peas. He is working a 16-hour day trying to keep up with orders.

The Lakewood Cemetery Greenhouses are cutting a fine lot of sweet peas. The varieties grown are Yarrawa, King Edward VII, Lady Spencer, Fordhook Pink and Christmas Pink.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. has cleaned up the stock in several houses and is now busy planting chrysanthemums. The firm will shortly tear down part of the greenhouses.

Will Desmond, formerly manager of the flower department of the L. S. Donaldson Co., is making things hum at the Lyndale Nursery, which he has taken over from Mr. Cargill. He proposes to develop and enlarge the business. His long association with the L. S. Donaldson Co. has made him well known throughout the Twin Cities. He can succeed if he will, and I guess that Will will. At the Donaldson greenhouses there is a fine lot of Boston ferns. All spring stock has been sold out and about twice the quantity could have been sold if available.

The California Fruit Store has had a fine showing of roses and irises.

Wm. F. Holmes has had his usual splendid window displays.

The Mazey Floral Co. has had a fine showing of peonies and roses during the week.

Thos. S. Lynes has a splendid stock of roses, carnations, etc. He always endeavors to have plenty of the best stock. He is exceedingly busy with design work.

The New York Florists have a special line of ferns and are doing a splendid business.

O. C. Swanson has a beautiful showing of unusually artistically arranged baskets.

The R. M. Chapman Co. always has splendid window decorations of cut flowers, ferns and baskets. The firm has a large retail trade and does a great deal of decorating of homes, churches, etc.

O. E. Amundson is as busy as ever. Here good taste reigns supreme in everything.

Rice Bros. are exceedingly busy.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The weather last week was unfavorable to the florists' business. There was almost a continual rain from Monday morning until Saturday noon, with the result that centennial week, for which great preparations had been made, was exceedingly poor as far as business was concerned. Counter trade was exceedingly slow, despite the many out-of-town visitors in the city. The pageant, representing the history of Indiana and Fort Wayne, was postponed several nights and the industrial exposition, in which many of the local florists had booths, was so poorly attended that the merchants have extended the time of their exhibits to this week.

Wedding work was good last week and there were decorations for receptions and a goodly quantity of funeral work. School graduation exercises, as usual, are creating a demand.

Stock of all kinds is exceedingly plentiful. Peonies are the flowers mostly in evidence at present, the retail stores displaying them to fine advantage in window decorations. They sell at $1 per dozen. Roses are plentiful and of superb quality. The short and medium lengths meet with a better demand than the select grades. American Beauties are scarce. Carnations are of fine quality for this season of the year, due principally to the cool weather. Giganteum lilies and callas are plentiful and bring $8 and $10 per hundred. Snapdragons are good and retail at 75 cents to $1 per dozen. Gladioli bring $1 per dozen. Cattleyas are in fine supply and are offered at $1 to $1.25 each. The supply of sweet peas is moderate, and the outdoor flowers are in large supply. Yellow daisies, forget-me-nots, German iris, pansies, sweet williams and oriental poppies are plentiful. Green goods of all kinds are in large demand.

Various Notes.

The annual flower festival of the Fort Wayne normal school will be given Saturday, June 17, at 3:30 p. m.

Miss Georgia Flick appeared in the pageant as a dancing girl in the Irish group of ballet dancers. Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Shive, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom and Misses Mildred and Alice Flick motored to Rockford, O., last Sunday. The Flick Floral Co. has a number of large wedding orders booked for this week.

Judge W. J. Vesey, Miss Margaret Vesey and Mr. and Mrs. Will Vesey, Jr., left June 12 for Delaware, O., where they will attend the commencement exercises of the Ohio Wesleyan University, from which Miss Catherine Vesey will be graduated. R. F.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The weather has been playing havoc with outdoor stock, especially peonies, and the growers have had a rather hard time trying to get the carnation stock planted in the fields. Last week Buffalo and vicinity had a continuous downpour of rain. Beauties are poor in quality, with the demand none too large. Graduation exercises are creating a large demand for yellow roses, of which the supply is limited. Wedding decorations consume all white roses obtainable. Carnations are becoming smaller in size and some varieties are showing the effects of the weather. Easter lilies are sufficient in supply for present needs. The only occasions on which they are used are funerals and weddings. Valley is uncertain; the outdoor stock is poor and somewhat scarce, while indoor stock leans to the short side. Cattleyas are scarce. Baby gladioli are popular and meet with ready sales. Sweet peas are used extensively for corsages. There was quite a big demand for yellow daisies for school commencements. Marigolds, too, were used for that purpose. Cornflowers are arriving in larger quantities.

Various Notes.

Barney Myers, of Lancaster, is sending in carnations of superb quality, considering the time of year. They actually are as good as in winter, when at their best.

Mr. Allen, of Onondaga, was a recent visitor. He says business is good.

William Ehmann, of Corfu, N. Y., has purchased a Studebaker touring car.

W. J. Palmer is in New York looking over the orchid situation. A. E.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Following an exceptionally busy Memorial day trade, the first two weeks of June saw the florists on the hustle, notwithstanding the long spell of rainy weather. With the large number of weddings and the usual school graduations, the month is expected to be one of unusually good business. There is an abundance of stock at moderate prices. In addition to large sales of cut flowers, the demand for potted plants continues especially lively.

Various Notes.

M. B. Saunders has purchased a large delivery car.

S. Bornstein, of Houghton & Dutton, Boston, has taken over the flower department of L. Dimond & Son. William A. Bowers, the former manager, has opened a store at 136 Washington street.

Smith, the Florist, Washington street, had forty large baskets and designs for the opening of the Nip last week.

Louis J. Reuter was a member of the personal staff of the chief marshal of the Knights Templar parade at Westerly on St. John's day.

Joseph Lizotte, of Centerdale, has purchased a canoe, in which he intends to spend leisure hours this summer on the Pawtuxet.

A. Lamont, of the Public Street Greenhouses, reports an exceptionally busy spring of outdoor work.

O. H. Williams is having a handsome bungalow erected on his farm for one of his sons.

Charles Smith was a business visitor to Boston last week. W. H. M.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Inclement weather several days last week affected business adversely, especially transient trade. As a whole, the florists' business in Newark is good for this season of the year. There continues to be much funeral work and the wedding season has arrived. Notwithstanding the fact that the weather has been cold, there is an abundance of flowers in the market and the prices are low. Roses, which were scarce and high, now are plentiful and cheap. Carnations and sweet peas are abundant. Orchids are selling three for $1. Calla lilies are quite plentiful, but the quality of some of those coming into the market is not up to standard. Easter lilies are arriving in good numbers and are of good quality. Iris is rapidly passing away. The blue and white varieties have practically disappeared and the yellow will last but a few days. Lilacs have gone for this season. Peonies are coming to their own, each week seeing a larger quantity and a larger variety. They sell readily at medium prices. Gladioli are of fine quality and more abundant. Snapdragons are sufficient for the demand. Fine marigolds are on sale and ragged sailors are plentiful. Foliage plants are in great demand and there still is a fair demand for bedding plants, such as geraniums, fuchsias, heliotropes, etc. Some of the florists are closing out their last hardy roses, and, although a little late in the season, considerable numbers are being sold. There is a fair demand for Boston and other ferns.

Various Notes.

The new Newark directory lists the names and addresses of fifty-six florists and nurserymen.

The company heretofore known as Kimmerle & Minder, at 488 South Orange avenue, now is Kimmerle, Minder & Son. The company reports good business.

William Weismantel is bidding for the graduation trade. He reports that business has been good. No cut prices, but fair profits and quick sales, is his motto.

The Ivy Flower Shop reports a large quantity of funeral work. Many orders for wedding decorations have been booked.

Hutchinson's, of Elizabeth, are much pleased with the general condition of trade and report that it has been a most satisfactory season. There has been some graduation trade, but not so much as a few years ago, before the giving of flowers was prohibited at the graduation exercises of some of the schools. R. B. M.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Coleman the Florist is the successor to Joe Tossini, one of Sioux Falls' pioneer florists. Mr. Coleman has remodeled the store and made improvements at the range. Mr. Tossini is retiring—"he brought home the bacon," says Mr. Colemen.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

SHOULD A MOURNER SEND A BASKET?

Should we encourage the use of baskets for flowers at the sad affairs? Will the frequent use of baskets at funerals have the effect of destroying their popularity for presentation purposes? Would it be well to hold this style of arrangement in reserve for joyous occasions?

NOBODY will dispute that a man gets to be known by the company he keeps. What, then, is the status of the basket found frequently in association with the calla, the tube-rose, or that taxidermists' pot-boiler, the snow white dove with outstretched wings and beady eyes? What, it is repeated, will be the fate of the basket if it comes to be associated with the men with the white cotton gloves?

But, you say, the basket is not known as a receptacle for funeral flowers, that, on the contrary, it is not seen often amid the sad surroundings. True, but listen.

Its Use Increasing.

Florists have got so into the habit of using baskets, a basket for this, a basket for that, a basket for everything, that they are recommending baskets for funerals—one sees them there much more frequently than in the quite recent past. If it isn't custom, it's growing.

The day was when a wire frame was the first thing that flashed to mind when funeral flowers were mentioned. If it is not so today it is because of the creation of the spray. But who would think of sending a spray to any affair but a funeral? Do we want it to be like that with the basket?

Take the case of the calla. Why do the callas go to waste if there is not enough funeral work to use them up? Do you know any finer flower than the calla? No, but it's white, you say. Sure, and in the early days there were so few suitable white flowers that, no matter what else there was at a funeral, there always were some callas. So people got to associating callas with funerals, until today callas can be used for no other purpose.

To get the basket into the same class as the calla we have only to fill one with the other and perch a dove on the handle. Do it often enough and the result is certain.

This is not an argument against it; it is merely a statement of fact.

A Wonderful Popularity.

It is fair to say that no accessory ever placed in flower stores has had the wonderful popularity of the basket. The trade was slow to take it up and the brainy men in the supply business met many obstacles in their efforts to get retailers to try to sell baskets as well as flowers, but, once fairly started, the vogue of the basket quickly became general. It is really marvelous what great quantities of baskets some of the stores now use and in practically all of them there is a good stock, with glass or tin liners to hold water. Some large retail stores even have their own decorating departments, with air brushes for staining in any desired color baskets bought in the natural. In many a store the dollar basket of flowers has run a dead heat with the dollar box.

The great increase in the sale for baskets has been coincident with the fall in prices; realizing that the earlier costs were too high for the average store, the supply men sought materials and manufacturing processes that would permit the pricing of baskets "within the reach of all," until today baskets are to be had in exchange for pennies as well as for dimes and dollars, a "price for every purse."

But the best part of the big sales of baskets has not been the profit thereby made, but has been found in the opportunity afforded to diversify the retailer's offerings to the public.

Try as we will, flowers are much alike from year to year, but there is infinite variety in baskets.

Variety the Spice of Sales.

Prior to 1915 practically all the baskets used by florists were of foreign manufacture, principally the product of German hearthstone industry. When it was seen that the war had shut off this supply there was consternation and a scramble, but the alarm was needless—American ingenuity has met the emergency and today American supply houses are manufacturing all the baskets American florists need. As a further gain, besides keeping the money at home, American baskets are better than imported baskets; they are as well made, are only slightly more costly and are more "classy" in appearance. Then, too, there is a distinct gain in the way ideas can be worked out. The Europeans never changed a style—as long as a basket could be sold, they made it. The new styles almost all were originated by the buyers, who in the case of American supply houses, after they had written describing the basket they had in mind, had to wait months for a sample and then other months for stock, if the sample had embodied the idea. Now all this is changed. The supply man gets an idea; he goes to his factory foreman; the foreman calls in a workman; in an hour or two the sample is ready; there is a conference; a second sample is made; next day the new number is on sale; it is a hit.

The retailer who has a happy thought goes to his supply man, tells what he wants and in a few days has a nifty novelty all his own.

Callas and Doves Suggest the Men with White Cotton Gloves.

Let Us Boost.

The basket business is so fine an adjunct to the flower business that we all should boost. But will it prove a boost to the basket business to recommend the use of baskets for funeral flowers? Will it increase the sale of baskets for presentation and decorative purposes or will it curtail the sale through the association of unhappy ideas? It is a question to which this article does not profess to afford an answer. Who can tell?

RIGHTS OF CEMETERY.

I have a few questions on which, if it is possible, I would like to have your opinion and also the opinion of the trade.

There is a greenhouse located in the cemetery in a city under 35,000 inhabitants. The greenhouse does not pay taxes to the city, because it is located in a cemetery which is not taxable.

No outside florist is allowed to make and fill flower beds, urns or plant shrubbery for any of the lot owners. As near as we can estimate we could plant between 100 and 150 beds if we were allowed to plant inside the cemetery. Some of these beds are planted by the association, while other lot owners will not have them planted unless we do the work, and so no one profits by not allowing us to plant them.

Inside the cemetery they charge for outside the cemetery without paying taxes; also, if they come out and pay taxes on the greenhouses only, whether they would have any more right to sell inside than any other florist.

We feel that it is a burden to compel us to pay taxes when another who enters into competition with us does not pay a cent and besides will not let us sell inside the cemetery to people who will not patronize them.

We wish to get what information or opinions the trade has on this subject. Please omit the name of the town and person inquiring. You may mention the state if you wish; it is Ohio. B.

The rights of a cemetery association are based on the law of the state in which the cemetery is incorporated and on local laws not in conflict with the law of the state. The scope of the cemetery's operations under the law are defined and limited by its charter and by its constitution and by-laws. No man could pass an intelligent opinion in any case without a full knowledge of the facts in that case and the study of the state law and the association's charter and by-laws. Most of the states make special and liberal provision for cemeteries in spite of the fact that in recent years many cemeteries are no more than private corporations, conceived, organized and operated for individual profit, just as is a florists' business. But, liberal as are the laws, cemeteries in some cases doubtless exceed their legal rights, for the simple reason that no restraint is put upon the managers. It was reported in The Review for June 8 that the florists of Lincoln, Neb., have joined in injunction proceedings in the effort to check a specific instance of cemetery competition and The Review will be pleased to publish letters from readers giving, not opinions, but definite information of how cemetery competition and restrictions have been met in other instances.

making the beds, but the cemetery florists will go outside and not charge a cent outside of the actual cost of the plants. They sell shrubs, cut flowers, potted plants, vegetable plants or anything else in the florists' line to be used outside the cemetery.

We would like to know if, in your opinion, they have a right to sell plants

SUCCESSFUL ADVERTISING.

[An extract from an address by Frank B. White at the Seedsmen's Convention, Chicago, June 20, that affords "food for thought" for those in every branch of the horticultural trades.]

Good advertising is a plain, honest statement of fact. Good advertising is truth-telling. Good advertising is intended to acquaint the man in need with the man who has to sell.

The advertising should square up with the article. If it is good, it will, but it is more important to have the article support the advertising—in fact, it is best to give a little better than you promised to. Better underrate in your statements than to exaggerate. I am talking about good advertising—Fair Play Advertising—the kind that will make your customer happy and satisfied to remain a customer.

Various Kinds of Advertising.

There are various kinds of advertising. One kind is for those who wish to make themselves or their product familiarly known, thus inducing the purchaser to inquire for it when he buys through the regular established channels of trade. Another is what is known as mail order advertising and is intended to reach out and find the customer, inducing him to send his money and his order by mail. He must be instructed in a different way. In either case the goods themselves will prove to be the best or the worst advertisement. If they are according to representation, they will make a lasting impression and prove to be the best kind of advertising. If they are not as represented, woe betide the man who sold, so far as this particular customer is concerned. Honesty in advertising is not different from honesty in business in any other capacity.

One of the things to be hoped for is that the true-to-name principle may obtain and that many of the high sounding names applied to common varieties may be dispensed with.

There are laws affecting advertising. Justice McKenna recently commented upon a decision of the Supreme court in the following terms:

> Mere "puffing" might not be within its meaning—that is, mere exaggeration of the qualities the article has; but when a seller goes beyond that, assigns to the article qualities it does not possess, invents advantages and falsely asserts their existence, he engages in false representations and pretenses.

The decision construes only the act against unlawful use of the mails and directly applies to schemes worked through that medium of publicity, but it is evident that the same reasoning would apply to other modes of advertising. In short, it is unlawful to put into an article in word description what it does not possess in fact. Too much advertising is done thoughtlessly or without due regard for the consequences.

Too Much Expected.

Another difficulty is that too much is expected from advertising copy. You plant the advertising today and you expect to reap a profitable crop tomorrow. Time is an element to be reckoned with in business as in all things else. It is particularly so in advertising. An obstacle to be overcome is that of prejudice. Here the element of time, as well as constant application of advertising, must do its work.

"The Sweet Girl Graduate" and Her Flowers in the Window of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco.

Advertising is a growth. Your advertising may require years of continuous effort in order to make it as profitable as it should be. It requires years of skillful effort to perfect a new plant. You expect to wait in your own business. You must be just as patient and reasonable in considering the time element in advertising. Success ultimately comes to the man who waits, and works while he waits.

I have yet to hear of an advertiser who has persistently, judiciously and intelligently advertised for any considerable length of time, and has supported that advertising in the proper conduct of his business in other directions, who has not succeeded. Loss through advertising is largely due to inadequate support, indifferent or useless extravagance. Your business, like your soil, must not be robbed. It is a law of nature that where we receive much, we must give something in return. Your soil will wear out if you do not fertilize and properly care for it. Your business will run down if you do not advertise and keep it in a healthy state of cultivation.

Warmth and Zeal.

It is activity that causes growth and development; in fact, it is activity that makes us strong. An active advertising campaign will make your business healthy and strong. Plan your advertising campaign wisely during the quieter months, so that proper time can be given to every phase of it, and be sure that you eliminate guesswork and uncertainty as much as possible. Put warmth and zeal into every phase of your business and make your advertising of a warm, inviting nature, so that customers will not only buy but be satisfied when they have bought.

Do not overadvertise. Too much food is injurious to the body. To pass beyond your ability to properly assimilate is unwise. It is equally unwise to expect your advertising to return you full service on half rations. The advertising should be made to fit the business. Do not try to make your business fit somebody's ready-made advertising plan. Do not be satisfied with anything short of the best and then use just enough of it to make a good balanced ration, and your business will grow and flourish.

THE ARMY WORM.

At this season of the year, in the eastern half of the United States, the army worm frequently does much damage to field crops. The worm gets its name from its characteristic of traveling in masses. When an army of these worms is at work in a field the champing of their jaws is plainly to be heard, as they greedily devour every blade in sight. If the infested spot be small, the crop can be mowed off and straw scattered over the spot and burned, thus destroying the worms. If the caterpillars have become distributed over a considerable area, this can be marked off by stakes and the crop sprayed heavily with a mixture of Paris green at the rate of one pound to fifty gallons of water. Poisoned baits of varying composition have long been used as a means of destroying the many different species of cutworms and also the army worm. An efficient bait of this kind may be prepared and used as follows: To fifty pounds of wheat bran and one pound of Paris green or two pounds of arsenate of lead add the juice of one-half dozen oranges or lemons. Then bring the mass to a stiff dough by adding low-grade molasses and scatter the mixture broadcast in small pieces throughout the infested field.

A SAN FRANCISCO WINDOW.

The retail flower stores in San Francisco are famous all over the country for the striking but artistic quality of their window displays; travelers comment on them as one of the sights of the city.

The accompanying illustration shows "The Sweet Girl Graduate" in the window of the new store of the MacRorie-McLaren Co.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—This is the season when the florists meet with their greatest competition, many growers of outdoor flowers being in the market with considerable quantities of stock. Charles F. Billau, optometrist in the American Trust building, is a large grower of peonies and has been marketing a fine cut.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Asters.

Keep the cultivator constantly at work among the early asters. Particularly is this necessary when the weather is warm and dry. The amount of drought these annuals will stand when the soil about them is kept constantly tickled is surprising. The disturbance of the soil and the creation of a fine, dry soil mulch also acts as a deterrent to soil pests. Birds are always to be found actively at work on newly stirred land, and the numbers of earthworms, cutworms, wireworms and other pests destroyed by our feathered friends are enormous. The present month should see the planting out of the main batch of asters, such as American Branching. They are robust in habit and need more space than Comet, Queen of the Market or Victoria. There is still time to make a final sowing of aster seed, but it must go in without delay.

Sweet Peas.

Outdoor sweet peas are liable to be attacked by green aphis in early summer and, unless prompt measures are taken to check it, great harm will be done to the plants. Spraying with a nicotine or soap spray will be found effective. In addition, the plants will be benefited and pests discouraged by occasional sprayings with the hose, especially if a spray nozzle is used. As the plants approach the flowering stage they will be much benefited if they are given a mulch of lawn mowings, old manure, meadow hay or straw. If the mulch contains some manurial property, all the better, but it should not be too strong, as this would put too much nitrogen in the soil and, while the plants would grow robustly, they would drop many of their buds. This is especially true where plants are grown thinly, for flowers of exhibition quality.

Primula Malacoides.

Primula malacoides is the most useful of the whole family as a pot plant. It is light, graceful and decorative. It is a rapid grower and for that reason the seed must be sown much later than in the case of P. obconica, Sinensis, Kewensis and other winter-blooming sorts. About the end of June is sufficiently early to sow this charming primrose. It is now obtainable in several distinct colors, of which the bright, clear pink form is decidedly the best. One shown at a number of exhibitions by F. H. Lemon & Co., Richmond, Ind., is particularly good.

Nephrolepis.

After Memorial day has passed, bench space is more abundant. Probably a space which had been occupied by stocks, feverfew, spiræas or even carnations may be at disposal. In such a case it pays to bench a good number of nephrolepis from small pots, allowing a foot each way between the plants. These ferns do not need any special compost; old carnation compost, with the addition of some well-decayed manure, or even leaf-mold, will make an excellent bench medium. Give the glass some shade, but do not let it be heavy. The ferns will be much stockier when not heavily shaded.

Winter Antirrhinums.

Seedlings should be ready to prick off now where you are planning to grow winter snapdragons. There are tall, intermediate and dwarf varieties. The first named carry much the finest spikes, but the intermediate forms are usually grown commercially, as they can be grown on side benches. The earlier in August the benching can be done, the better. Therefore, if you have forgotten to sow seed, do so now. As between seedlings and cuttings, I have a decided preference for the former, as they possess far greater vigor than cuttings and are more disease-resistant. Fungoid affections were particularly bad last year, thanks to a cool, wet summer. They are always worse on outdoor than on indoor plants. For that reason, keep all plants under glass protection. It is sometimes asked how long these early snapdragons will bloom. They will start to bloom in October and, if given proper treatment, will continue to bloom until July, after which time it does not pay to keep them under glass. Much finer spikes at this season will be produced under glass.

Palms.

With the rush of the bedding season over, it would be well to devote at least a few hours on a rainy day to such palms as may be in stock. Many retail florists grow a few kentias, arecas, phœnix or latanias to rent for decorative purposes, and in the course of a winter they will get pretty well used up. During the next three or four months palms make their maximum growth, and if they are at all starved they should be repotted or at least top-dressed. Any which may not require repotting will be benefited by an occasional application of liquid manure. Keep the plants freely syringed and be sure the glass is well shaded. If you have no suitable house which you can give up to your palms, try the plan of standing them outdoors below large trees, on which the branches do not come down too near the ground. Partly plunge the pots and be sure that the location is convenient to a hose. Small lots of other miscellaneous foliage plants, such as aspidistras, ficus, araucarias, etc., will do well with the palms, and they will put on a fine, dark green color during the summer, far ahead of the appearance they would present if in a poorly shaded greenhouse.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

ATTENTION, ADVERTISERS!

As a suggestion to advertisers, we call their attention to the fact that some advertisements are placed in The Review too late to be of value on the Pacific coast. Advertisers wait for holiday numbers to make announcements, and these numbers reach us too late for us to order. Especially is this true of baskets, novelties, etc., which, if advertised a month or six weeks before a holiday, would, we think, pull many orders from the west. The coast as well as the middle west is dependent upon The Review in this line.

Bellingham Floral Exchange.
Bellingham, Wash.

MOTHERS' DAY PRICES.

We agree with Charles Helm in his article in The Review for May 11, in which he says that $7 per hundred for carnations on Mothers' day, or any other day, is an unreasonable price, and we take exception to William Schaefer's article in the issue of May 18, in which he says the public will be delighted to pay the advanced price. If this is his experience, the reverse is ours.

Mr. Schaefer speaks about the better class of buyers being protected. We do not know what he means by a "better class of buyers," as all our buyers look alike to us, with the exception that some kick harder and longer than others at the advanced prices on these special occasions. If they did not make an audible protest, one could tell by the look of disappointment on their faces that the advanced prices did not make a hit with them.

It is the retailer more than anyone else who has created the demand for flowers for Mothers' day, and it is the retailer who is blamed for the advance in prices and who hears all the complaints. If the growers insist on killing the hen that lays the golden egg, they have taken the proper course. I have talked with several small growers and retailers, and they are ready to discontinue making any special effort to assist in the hold-up.

We agree with Mr. Schaefer that we cannot be regulated by the Sherman law, as people do not have to buy our wares any more than they have to buy airships or automobiles. Carnations at $1.50 per dozen and roses at $2 and $2.50 per dozen are as far out of some people's reach as are airships and automobiles. Mr. Schaefer would have us believe that his customers, if given the opportunity to buy shoes on Friday for $5 and on Saturday for $7.50, would wait until Saturday, because they could pay more. The more they have to pay, the better they like it. Our customers are made of different material. We would like to hear from the trade in general what we can expect in the future.

H. F. Powell.

PINCHING YOUNG MUM PLANTS.

I have some nice plants of the Caprice chrysanthemum, about four inches high, which are ready for planting out in the field as soon as warm weather arrives. Would you advise pinching them in order to get good, bushy plants, with even tops?

A. L.—Mo.

Your plants should be pinched now and will be better if an additional pinching be made a little later to make the plants bushy. C. W.

FOR OUTDOOR CULTURE.

I have the following varieties of chrysanthemums in stock: Timothy Eaton, Yellow Eaton, Maud Dean, Harvard, Sensation, Ramapo, Wm. Turner, Enguehard, Bonnaffon, Robinson, Duke of Aberdeen, and some white and yellow pompons. Are any of these hardy enough to be sold to customers for outdoor planting? C. P. L.—Ill.

The varieties mentioned, aside from the pompons, are useless for outdoor cultivation, since they are not hardy and in any case are mostly late varieties, which would not flower until after the season has passed when they could flower satisfactorily outdoors. The white and yellow pompons, if they are true pompons, will be all right. The newer French types, such as A. Barham, Carrie, Normandie and Etoile d'Or, are the proper kinds to recommend to your customer for outdoor blooming, as they will flower early and, unless the place they are growing in is low and wet, they will come along year after year with little protection. The single mums are also well adapted for outdoor culture. Among the best of these would be Louise, Mrs. Chas. C. Mickle, Mensa, Golden Mensa, Irene, W. Buckingham and Yvonne. Chas. H. Totty.

PINCHING CAPRICE MUMS.

I would appreciate some advice regarding the second pinching of Caprice chrysanthemums. How many sets of leaves would you allow a shoot to make? Would it be advisable to allow the side shoots to make more growth than the center shoots, which are stronger, or is it best to pinch all the shoots at one time? What would be the latest date to pinch the plants, so as not to have them bloom any later than mid-October? A. L.—Mo.

The idea of pinching chrysanthemums is to induce them to become bushy. After the shoots commence growing, they can be pinched back at each first pair of leaves. The center shoots will naturally be stronger and may be pinched more closely. If the side shoots are not showing far enough to produce well balanced plants after they are pinched back to each leaf, they may be permitted to run to two or three leaves before pinching. They may be pinched until the end of June, after which time they should be allowed to grow, if the shape of the plant is right. The Caprice family is much superior to any other type of pot plants, because unless the plants are large they will not need any staking and the cost of looking after them is therefore considerably lessened.

Chas. H. Totty.

MUMS FOR OUTDOOR GROWING.

Please name some of the best chrysanthemums for outdoor growing and state when they should be planted. My plan is to plant them outside and later to put sashes over them. When should the bud be selected? H. Y. S.—Ill.

The chrysanthemums that are in greatest request in the east for outdoor growing are the type known as early-flowering, most of which are of French origin. The time to plant outdoors is right now and many of the varieties I mention will flower satisfactorily without any protection whatever, though naturally a sash over them will help to keep the flowers clean from dust and rain. In this case the question of bud selection is not a vital one; the beautiful, graceful sprays of this type are really its principal charm. In a selection to be used for cut flowers, with disbudding chiefly in mind, I would suggest the following:

White, Cranford White, Debutante and Petite Jean; yellow, Cranfordia, Cranford Yellow and Etoile d'Or; pink, Petite Louis, Hortense Malgat and Chas. Jolly; crimson, Vesuve, Firelight and L'Argentuillais; bronze, A. Barham, Nellie Blake and Harvest Home.

Small plants set out early, and pinched up to the middle of June, will produce twelve to twenty stems to a plant. These can be disbudded at the will of the grower. In discussing the subject of early-flowering mums, a good grower from the vicinity of Chicago recently expressed a doubt as to these varieties flowering satisfactorily in his section without any protection. I am inclined to question his opinion, because, though the first flowers might freeze in the cold snap in the latter part of September, the following flowers might come along perfectly, if the buds were uninjured. In any case, if H. Y. S. proposes, as he says, to put sashes on them, this phase of the question need not bother him.

Chas. H. Totty.

COMPOST FOR CARNATIONS.

Please advise me how to treat the compost described below, which I intend to use in benches for carnations about July 15. Last fall I plowed a plot of ground 18x30 feet, ten inches deep. The soil is unusually light, being a sandy clay. I manured the plot in September and five weeks later plowed it again, and then left it for the winter. Early this spring I manured it lightly and worked the fertilizer in. Two weeks ago I put on three-quarters of a barrel of hardwood ashes, unleached and not of the best. Now, should I add bone meal and lime at this time, or should I apply lime a short time before the planting, about July 15? I have plenty of sheep manure on hand.

The soil undoubtedly is poor, but it is the only thing available here. I used the same kind of soil last year, but my carnation crop was light. Any information will be appreciated.

W. A.—Wis.

I would advise you to procure two or three wagon loads of half-rotted cow manure and mix it with the soil. Inasmuch as your soil is already light, the cattle manure will enrich it without making it any lighter. As stable manure would lighten the soil, it is not desirable in this case.

Cow or cattle manure is difficult to obtain in many localities, and as a general thing we do not consider it worth the trouble. With our soil we find that we can grow as good carnations by the use of stable manure, supplemented by sheep manure, dried blood and the various commercial fertilizers, as we can by the use of cattle manure. That, however, does not mean that it can be done in all cases, and yours probably is one of the exceptions. As stated above, soil which is extremely light needs cow manure. It would pay you to go to almost any trouble to procure the cow manure. A. F. J. B.

A CASE OF THRIPS.

I am sending under separate cover some of my carnation buds. Nearly half of the buds are like the ones I send you. Will you please tell me the trouble with them, and the remedy, for it is quite a loss to me? S. E. I.—N. Y.

Your carnations apparently are badly infested with thrips. These suck the sap from the petals while the flowers are in the bud stage, causing the petals to stick together. Ordinarily the blooms will unfold and show numerous blotches of dead tissue, which turns brown in the light colored varieties and white in the dark colored sorts. In aggravated cases the petals will stick so badly as to prevent their unfolding and the buds will rot, as yours are doing. If they are syringed much it will aggravate the rotting.

It is late in the season and it would hardly pay to start a fight against the pest on the present crop of blooms. By the time you get them under control, if you succeed at all, it will be time to throw out the stock and replant. Better throw the plants out right away and get ready for an early start with your next season's stock. Clean out the plants and soil, taking everything out of the house. Then burn sulphur in the house, or fumigate a couple of times with cyanide, before bringing in the new stock. After the new stock is benched, spray regularly with one of the tobacco extracts, whether you see any insects or not. Bear in mind the old adage, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Success in the business of growing plants and cut flowers depends largely on prevention; prevention of disease and the ravages of insects.

Geraniums

TEN BEST BEDDING GERANIUMS.

What are the ten best varieties of geraniums for bedding? A. L.—Mo.

The best bedding geraniums in doubles are: Alphonse Ricard, vermilion scarlet; La Favorite, pure white; Jean Viaud, mauve rose; Beaute Poitevine, salmon; S. A. Nutt, deep red; Marquise de Castellane, soft crimson; Miss F. Perkins, rose-pink; Mrs. Lawrence, salmon-pink. Splendid singles are: Paul Crampel, dazzling scarlet; Snowdrop, pure white; Jacquerie, crimson-scarlet; Mrs. E. G. Hill, light salmon.

C. W.

GERANIUMS BLOOM TOO SLOWLY.

Can you give me any information as to what is the trouble with my geraniums? They bloomed nicely up to about four days before Memorial day, but since then they have been slow in flowering. Each Saturday we sell all geraniums that are in bloom, and then it will be nearly a week before the plants begin to show even signs of color. As other florists seem to have plenty of these plants in bloom about this time, I do not understand what is the matter with mine. I have grown all of them in the same house and have kept them at the average temperature at which geraniums should be grown, keeping them a little on the dry side. They are all fine, stocky plants and quite healthy. One cause of the trouble may be that the plants were not disbudded in the early spring.

S. A. C.—Pa.

As your plants appear to be healthy and the cultural treatment seems to have been as near ideal as possible, I think the most probable causes of your plants not flowering better at this time are that you allow them to flower too much early in the season and that the soil contains too much decayed manure. A little well rotted manure, such as obtained from a spent hotbed or mushroom bed, is good to add to the soil, but it should not be over one-fourth of the whole.

I do not know whether you use fine bone or not. It helps to build up a firm, stocky growth that will flower freely, whereas an excess of manure, especially if it is not extra well rotted, will make the plants produce a strong, soft growth and flower sparsely. Firm potting should also be done. If loosely potted the plants will not flower nearly so well.

C. W.

GOOD DOUBLE GERANIUMS.

Will you please give me a list of about ten of the best varieties of double geraniums, good strong growers and bloomers? Jean Viaud suits me in its color. What other varieties in other colors are as good? C. C.—Okla.

Good varieties to grow in addition to Jean Viaud are: S. A. Nutt, Beaute Poitevine, Alphonse Ricard, La Favorite, John Doyle, Marquise de Castellane, Mme. Barney, Mrs. Lawrence, Marquise de Montmort and Berthe de Presilly.

IMPERFECT GERANIUM BLOOMS.

Under separate cover I am sending an imperfectly developed geranium bloom. Many of my plants are affected in the same way. Can you account for this trouble, and suggest a remedy? J. G. B.—Mass.

The most probable cause of imperfectly developed flowers is unsuitable soil and a lack of nourishment at the root. Grow your geraniums in good loam containing a little well decayed manure, preferably cow manure, and fine bone. Geraniums in such a compost can hardly fail to grow well and flower freely. Give them a nice, sunny house. If greenhouse space is limited, partly plunge them in a gentle hotbed any time after May 1. In such a frame they will not dry out as in the greenhouses and will make far better plants.

C. W.

GERANIUM PLANTS DISEASED.

Under separate cover I am sending you two diseased geranium plants. I would like to know what is the matter with them. Of 1,500 plants only twelve or fifteen plants were in this condition.

F. E. F.—O.

The plants forwarded had stem-rot, as well as bacteria on the foliage, but they were not in the hopeless condition that many geraniums are when we receive them. If you have no more than one diseased plant in a hundred, you can congratulate yourself, as few establishments can show a better record. The disease on your plants may be due to an excess of moisture overhead and at the roots, which is more likely to be harmful if your plants are standing too close together on the benches. Keep them separated and picked over occasionally. Maintain a dry, buoyant atmosphere, with some ventilation night and day. Keep affected plants isolated and drier at the roots. If conditions show signs of getting worse, spray with Fungine or Bordeaux mixture.

BAUER'S "PINK BEAUTIES."

This is the age of nicknames. A certain make of automobile is known as a "flivver;" a 5-cent piece now is a "jitney" and a silver dollar an "iron man;" pacifists are called "slackers" by the war party and a fondness for the movies is diagnosed as "Chaplinitis." At the Baltimore flower market retailers stroll in and inquire if there are any "Pink Beauties" to be had. "Pink Beauties" is a nickname the boys have invented for Rose Radiance, as grown by Fred C. Bauer out at Govanstown, meaning that Mr. Bauer's Radiance roses have attributes in common with American Beauties. Mr. Bauer knows every whim of Radiance and produces blooms of a color, size and length of stem hard to beat. When they reach the market they sell themselves, as "Pink Beauties."

Mr. Bauer has a house of this variety and grows it at a temperature lower than the regular rose temperature. The illustration on this page shows a few of his Radiance in the arms of his son, William, another Bauer product. In the absence of a yardstick, William was put in the picture to give the reader an idea of the length of stems of the roses, although the young ladies of the neighborhood consider William himself not at all hard to look at.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Plan to Study Rose Diseases.

When the editor of the 1916 Rose Annual of the American Rose Society was assembling the material for that notable volume, he discovered that in America there had never been any orderly study of the diseases of roses. It was found that even the new Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia, in its second volume (1914), listed but one other rose disease than mildew, and that the other books and rose catalogues either skipped the subject or glossed over it.

Knowing how serious to rose growers was at least one of these diseases, the all-too-familiar black spot, the editor canvassed the various colleges and experiment stations and the Department of Agriculture at Washington, only to learn that the rose had never had the attention that had been given to carnations or cabbage or cutworms, to apples or potatoes. Prof. H. H. Whetzel, the noted plant pathologist of Cornell University, wrote that none of his brethren had ever studied the diseases of what he termed "man's oldest and most widely cherished ornamental," and that, therefore, no means of control of some of these destructive rose diseases had been worked out.

Cornell Wants to Help.

The American Rose Society believes that this condition is a disgrace. It has therefore undertaken to organize a careful inquiry into rose diseases, which, if supported by those interested, ought to result in the proposal of methods for the prevention and control of rose diseases as efficacious as those that, through similar study, have given fruit growers courage to proceed profitably in defiance of brown rot and similar diseases.

Much correspondence, following authorization at the recent Washington meeting of the society, has developed an exceptional opportunity to have the proper study begun and carried through at a small part of the expense, Cornell University sustaining most of the cost.

A "Florists' Disease Investigator."

Professor Whetzel states the situation thus:

What is needed first is a rather careful study of the rose disease situation as represented in the gardens and houses of the members of the American Rose Society—a survey, in order that we may determine just what the chief diseases of the rose are. * * * We propose that Mr. Massey, who has worked on florists' crops and who is, in my opinion, the man for this job, should be employed by the American Rose Society under my direction, to spend three months of each year for two years in rose disease survey and investigation work, traveling as may be required; and that during the remaining nine months of each year his special line of investigation with us would be of the diseases of roses. That is, if the American Rose Society can support him while in the field, one-fourth of the time. The Cornell department of plant pathology will have him make rose disease investigations the chief line of his work, as a florists' disease investigator for the remainder of two years.

We would provide such ordinary laboratory apparatus as he may need and also give him professional aid and counsel, together with our hearty interest in the Rose Society's activities.

This would give the American Rose Society the services of a thoroughly trained investigator of florists' crop diseases, at a cost small in comparison with that required to finance the work independently.

The cost would not exceed $1,000 each year upon a 2-year arrangement, of which sum $500 the first year and $250 the second year would be for traveling and other special expenses.

If the American Rose Society desires to avail itself of this opportunity, I must know of it before June 30, 1916, in order to properly arrange with Mr. Massey.

It is the belief of the executive committee of the American Rose Society that the opportunity thus presented is one which rose growers generally will be willing to support by the special contribution necessary, information as to which must reach the president, as noted, before June 30. Let us act together to help to put rose growing in as safe a condition as is carnation growing or apple growing.

Detroit, Mich.—John Breitmeyer's Sons, one of Detroit's oldest and most modern establishments, have incorporated at $50,000. Philip Breitmeyer, H. G. Breitmeyer and Frank Danzer are given as the officers.

Batavia, N. Y.—Recently Thomas H. McGuire, the New York Central railroad florist, with a special train and a large force of men, set out plants at stations along the Canandaigua branch. Later foliage and flowering plants were set at East Buffalo, North Buffalo and Tonawanda. The railroad greenhouses at Batavia produced almost 100,000 plants this year for planting along the right of way. Tentative plans have been made calling for large additions to the Batavia range, the only one of the Central system east of Buffalo.

Liverpool, England.—As a result of trade conditions in Great Britain, some of the leading nurserymen are seeking export trade. Merryweather, of Southwell, and Bees, of Liverpool, already have established resident representatives in Canada.

Haarlem, Holland.—A first-class certificate recently was awarded C. G. Van Tubergen, Jr., for Freesia Tubergeni Apotheose, white and lilac, raised from seed, said to be extremely floriferous, exhibited before the committee of the General Bulb Growers' Society.

Woking, England.—While war produces conditions sometimes wholly unexpected, American rose growers who prefer English Manetti stocks need have little fear of a shortage. While it is true the scarcity of labor has in a measure reduced the quantity grown, the home demand also has fallen off in at least an equal proportion, so that there should be the usual quantities for export.

Wandsbek, Germany.—Many American forcers of lily of the valley will learn with regret of the death of Emil Neubert, whose name is connected with the valley pip trade of Hamburg. Deceased, who was 85 years of age, had been in his early years a member of the staff of Dippe Bros., the Quedlinburg seedsmen. About sixty years ago he removed to the Hamburg district and established the nursery at Wandsbek.

Sassenheim, Holland.—Perhaps it is not the jarring of the heavens that is going on nearby, but this has been a season of continuous and heavy rains over the bulb district, as the quality of the crop harvested undoubtedly will show. First quality bulbs are not possible where the fields get an almost daily drenching.

London, England.—The largest meeting of the horticultural trades ever recorded was held May 24 for the purpose of considering the state and future of the business. Three special subjects were up: The prohibition of imports, restrictions on imports after the war, and the fixing of minimum prices both during and after the war. Before adjournment a committee was appointed to obtain authoritative information as to the durability of the recent prohibitions and to urge that they be extended to include cut flowers; also to urge the government to take steps to prevent the dumping of foreign stock on English markets after the war. In the matter of fixing minimum prices no action was taken beyond authorizing the committee to proceed with the development of its plan for county committees, to report at another meeting. It was felt that some degree of unanimity of action must be assured to make the method successful, else those who adhered to the minimum prices would be holding the bag for those who refused to be bound by them.

Lexington, Ky.—J. F. Keller, of the John A. Keller Co., will attend the convention of Associated Advertising Clubs at Philadelphia the last week in June.

Ada, Okla.—W. E. Pitt, proprietor of the Ada Greenhouse, is installing a Moninger heating system complete, summer having arrived to make business less pressing on his time.

Columbus, Miss.—The Columbus Floral Co., of which J. E. Slaughter, Sr., is proprietor and E. H. Slaughter manager, is preparing to build two connected greenhouses, each 24x100.

Norfolk, Va—An association has been incorporated here under the style of Norfolk Hotbed Growers' Association, by G. E. Richardson, of Portsmouth, and F. W. Richardson, of this city.

Johnson City, Tenn.—Gunnar Teilmann reports that last wonth's business in his vicinity was good. The bedding trade and decorative work had everybody stepping lively. Carnations and chrysanthemums have been in the field for some time.

Aberdeen, Miss.—J. W. Moore, formerly associated with the Joy Floral Co., of Nashville, Tenn., and Nanz & Neuner, of Louisville, Ky., has been appointed manager of the Aberdeen Floral Co., which operates the second largest greenhouse range in the state. Mrs. J. R. Young is the proprietress.

Nashville, Tenn.—A flower section has been opened in the department store of Goveman, Joseph & Loeb by Theodore Smith.

Birmingham, Ala.—The new flower store of the McVay Seed & Floral Co. had an auspicious opening this month. E. Olsen is manager.

McKinney, Tex.—George W. Taylor is a new man in the cut flower business, but he already has established a nice volume of business and feels assured that it will develop steadily.

Alvin, Tex.—While the cape jasmines that could be cut for Memorial day met with an unusually good sale, the demand during the latter part of the season, during which the greater part of the crop was cut, has been little if any better than in other years.

Tupelo, Miss.—Although only one year in business, the Tupelo Floral Co. is doubling the size of its range and has planted four acres to gladioli, asters, feverfew and candytuft. Each month's business shows a healthy growth over that of the preceding month.

Louisville, Ky.—Business is excellent at The Rosery, under which name the New Nanz & Neuner Co. conducts the store at 663 South Fourth avenue. The greenhouses are at St. Matthews, Ky. The officers of the corporation are: President, Robert Kraft; vice-president, H. C. Kraft; treasurer, Edward A. Kraft; secretary, D. E. Weller.

President Wilson Marches with William F. Gude.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Washington during the last two weeks has seen all kinds of weather and only now is beginning to feel the presence of summer. Reports are coming in covering the damage done by the several hail storms and the heavy rains. The hail storm of June 10 was severest at the United States propagating gardens, where something like 3,000 panes of glass were broken. The greenhouses at the Arlington farms also were badly damaged and the commercial growers of Anacostia and Alexandria met with loss.

The cool weather has been good for business and the retailers and wholesalers alike are well pleased with the results. While prices have dropped considerably, the returns are comparatively good. Carnations are selling as low as $5 per thousand, while only selected stock brings $1 and $2 per hundred. Sweet peas have been moving well. Their quality is excellent and they have retained their popularity. Cattleyas have been selling better. Some excellent gigas have been coming from northern points and these have maintained an average price of $6 per dozen.

Pennsylvania growers have been sending in good peonies, which are bringing about $4 per hundred, but it is late for these and they will soon be off the market. There are no local peonies to be had. There are good outdoor delphiniums to be had, but it is difficult to find a buyer for them. Gladioli are selling well. Pansies and mignonette, still to be had, are in little demand. Rambler roses are more plentiful and are in fair demand. Valley is scarce; at least there is not enough coming into the market to cause waste. Gardenias are plentiful.

Various Notes.

All talk now is of the outing of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., to be held at Great Falls, Va., Wednesday, July 19. Captain William H. Ernest is chairman of the committee having the outing in charge. He reports that there will be more events this year than ever before and the program will be so alluring that it will call out a larger attendance than last year, when all records were broken.

President R. L. Jenkins has announced that, on account of the next regular meeting of the Florists' Club falling on July 4, the meeting will be postponed until the following Tuesday.

Mrs. Mary McCabe, who handles the retail end of the business conducted by her husband and herself, sailed June 13 for Miami, Fla., where she will spend a month as the guest of Mrs. Marie Fry. The latter, before her marriage, was Miss Marie Lott, who for some time assisted Mrs. McCabe at the Center market stand. Mrs. McCabe was accompanied by Mrs. Lott, mother of Mrs. Fry.

The death of William F. Kasting has brought forth many expressions of sincere regret. Perhaps in no city other than his own home town was Mr. Kasting so well known as in Washington, where, because of his political affiliations, as well as his position in the florists' business, he was a familiar figure. It was not more than three weeks ago that he visited the stores of the Gude Bros. Co., F. H. Kramer and others, and was seen by The Review correspondent. His death was a great shock to all who knew him here.

History was made in Washington June 14, when a florist and President Wilson, at the head of 60,000 citizens of Washington, marched down Pennsylvania avenue from the Peace monument to the White House, in the most notable of all the preparedness parades. The florist who marched beside President Wilson was William F. Gude. It was a great day all around for the florists and there were many complimentary remarks made of their showing. It was the first time in the history of the country that a President of the United States marched at the head of a procession; it was the first time that a florist had the opportunity to hobnob with the leader of the country. Great credit is due Mr. Gude for the wonderful work he accomplished in getting the people together for a representation equal to twenty per cent of the entire city population, and for the manner in which the parade swung along on time, passing the stand at the rate of nearly 15,000 an hour. Aside from heat prostrations, and despite the thousands that lined the avenue, there was but one accident. In appreciation of all of this, President Wilson has sent to Mr. Gude an autograph letter in which he compliments the latter on the splendid work he did.

Washington florists are using safety first methods with respect to trying to effect deliveries in Virginia on Sunday. The new Virginia ouster law, which provides for the summary retirement of any officer of the state government who fails to enforce the law, has brought to life the ancient blue laws, which have been allowed to slumber on the statute books for years. This makes illegal all unnecessary work and allows for the placing under arrest of chauffeurs and teamsters on duty Sunday. Test cases are to be made to see whether or not telephone exchanges are exempt from the provisions of the law.

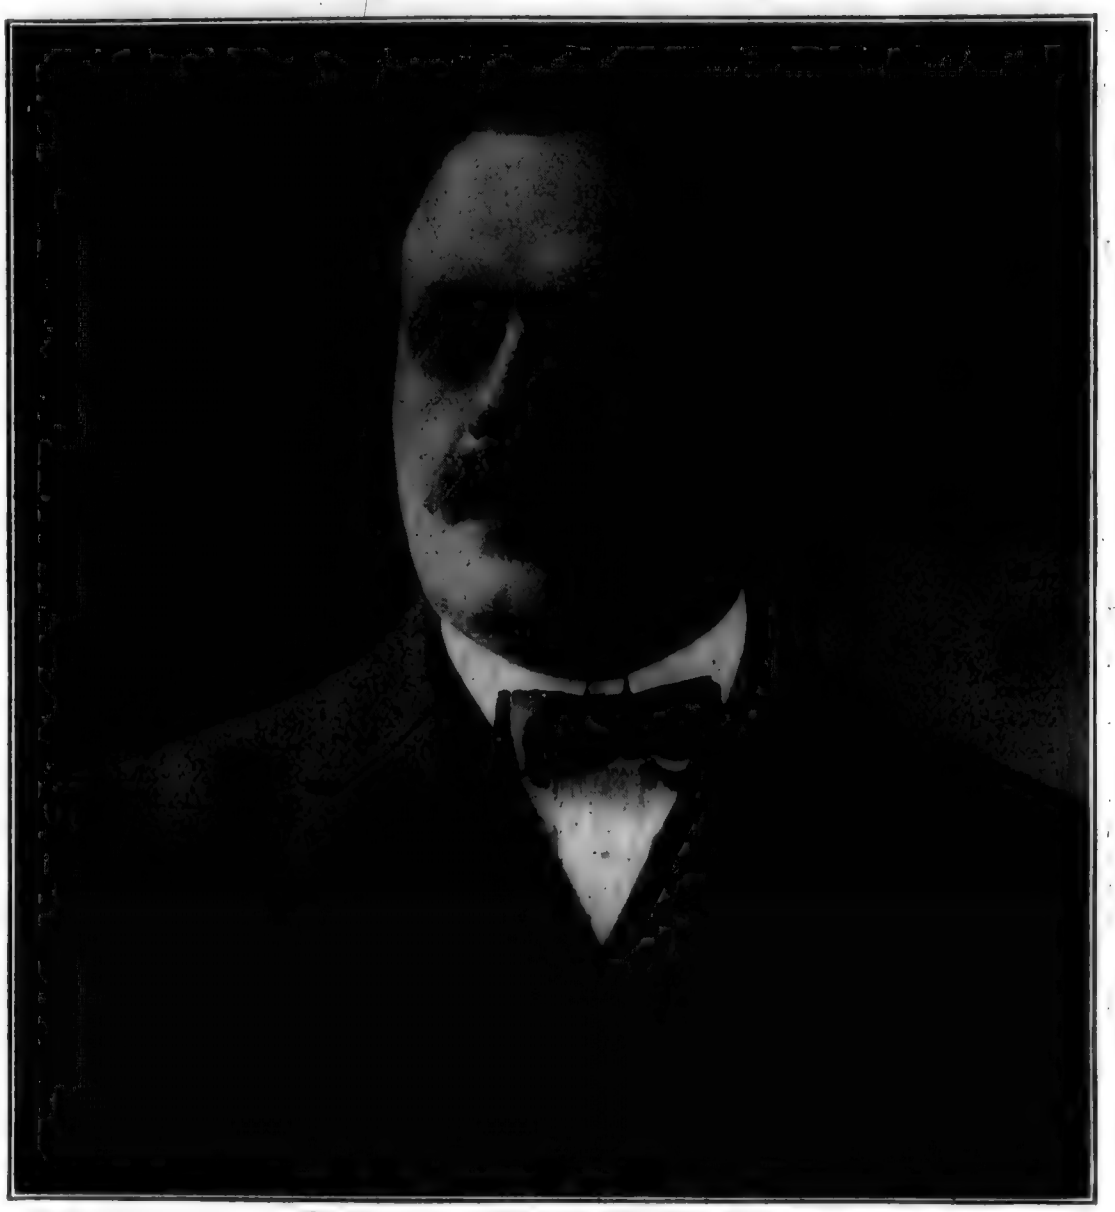
SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Hess Appointed Treasurer.

President Daniel MacRorie directs me to announce that he has appointed J. J. Hess, of Omaha, Neb., to serve as treasurer of the Society of American Florists to fill out the unexpired term of the late Wm. F. Kasting.

The Houston Convention.

At this early date great interest is being shown in the thirty-second annual convention and trade exhibition, to be held in Houston, Tex., August 15 to 17. It would appear that there will be a creditable attendance from the east.



Rates and particulars as to the different routes may be obtained by application to this office, 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York. One favorable route will be by Southern Pacific Co., via steamer to New Orleans, train to Houston, then all rail returning. The best obtainable rate from New York city to Houston by this route would be $83. This rate will include berth and meals on steamer line to New Orleans and first-class rail transportation beyond, returning from Houston via St. Louis and New York Central lines. Steamers sail semiweekly from Pier 48, North river, foot of West Eleventh street, every Wednesday and Saturday at 12 o'clock noon and are due in New Orleans the following Monday and Thursday. Connections can here be made for Houston on the Sunset Limited, leaving New Orleans at 11 a. m., which will fetch our party in at Houston at 10 p. m. the same night. This will give a beautiful ride through the Louisiana sugar and cotton belt, which is an especially scenic route.

If the party desires to stop over at New Orleans for a day or so, connections can be made with train No. 9, leaving at 11:30 p. m., due in Houston next morning at 11:30. Sleeper rates between New Orleans and Houston are $2. If the trip is made from New Orleans by daylight the party can be accommodated in a large, commodious coach, unless parlor cars are preferred.

The steamship Momus will leave New York August 9, arriving at New Orleans Monday, August 14, in the morning; by taking rail service there, the passengers would arrive at Houston at 10 p. m. the same night. Any of our members desiring to leave earlier may take the S. S. Creole, leaving New York August 5 and arriving at New Orleans August 10. If arrangements for the trip are made promptly, we will arrange so that the delegates and visitors will have "the time of their lives." Our southern brethren are making every effort to have this convention one of the most successful in the history of the society, not only from a business standpoint, but also from the great amount of pleasure and valuable information derived from our visit to the south.

Some of the leading firms of the country, alert to the opportunity of the southern market, have made early bookings for large blocks of space in the trade exhibit. Among these we find the Lord & Burnham Co., John A. Evans Co., M. Rice Co., A. L. Randall Co., Burlington Willow Ware Works, J. A. Peterson & Sons and H. C. Doescher.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

JACOB J. HESS.

THE new treasurer of the S. A. F., appointed by President MacRorie, after a telegraphic poll of the directors, has a recognized talent for making a dollar do the work of at least 106 cents. He was born in Germany in 1863 and spent his minority in learning the trade there and in Switzerland. He came to America in 1884 and found employment with C. Rieman, at Indianapolis. In 1886 he removed to Omaha, and two years later started in business for himself with George H. Swoboda as a partner. The firm is widely known in the west, having started with nothing and built up a greenhouse establishment of over 100,000 feet of glass, with valuable real estate holdings and a fine retail trade; each partner also having acquired many outside holdings. Mr. Hess was appointed a director of the S. A. F. in 1914, by President Wirth.

Intending exhibitors should not delay in securing space.

Mothers' Day Fund.

Replies are coming in freely to the appeal sent out by the secretary for contributions to the testimonial or fund to be presented to Miss Anna Jarvis, founder of Mothers' day. The list of donors will be published shortly. Those desiring their names included in this list should make remittance now.

John Young, Sec'y.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The conditions of the last two weeks have been little different from those of the rest of the spring, for truly we have not had summer weather at all, at least not for more than a day or two at a time. School commencements are about over, but business continues up to the high mark set during the earlier part of the year. It has probably been the best six months of business that we have ever had in this city, taking it by and large. No one has had much stock of any kind go to the dump.

Carnations are holding out well this spring. They will be thrown out of the benches during this week and next, to make room for next fall's crop. They are still of good quality. Roses are none too plentiful, but their quality is good. Russell has been especially fine this summer. This rose is growing more popular here every day and there will be fewer Beauties grown in this city next season than ever before. Most of the mums are being benched now and everyone finds he has plenty to do, with labor more scarce than it has been in the past. There will be few carnations left in the field within a fortnight; in fact, most of them are already in the benches. Growers here plant many of their carnations directly in the benches, but they say some varieties must be set in the field for a short time in order to acquire vigor.

Sweet peas have been plentiful of late, amateur growers employing boys and women to peddle them on the streets, but the quality has been far from the best this year. Asters bid fair to be a success in the field again this season because of the cool spring.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. has had its houses thoroughly renovated. The roses have been cut back for their summer's rest. The men are finishing benching the carnations at present. The store reports no let-up in the demand for cut flowers and a good sale of hanging baskets.

Haury & Sons have a good display of gladioli in their windows at present.

Geny Bros. have been having unusually attractive windows of late. Oscar Geny has been confined to his home on account of his health.

J. F. Corbett has a batch of roses in the field that are furnishing more good blooms than the same number of roses usually do in the house in the summer time. Why are there so few who grow roses in this way?

McIntyre Bros. have been having a nice run of wedding work of late. I saw some Chinese wool flowers at their place a week ago. This plant looks as though it might prove a valuable pot plant, especially if it can be had in as good shape at Christmas as it is at present.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

The vegetable growers at Ashtabula, O., are passing through a successful season. The lettuce crop finished in April brought good prices. Now the first crop of cucumbers is being marketed, with good returns. These, with tomatoes, constitute the trio of vegetables grown in this locality, under glass. The leading growers are Gallup Bros., Dunbar & Hopkins, whose range of modern houses makes an imposing sight from the railroad; the Griswold Greenhouse Co., E. A. Adams & Sons, who have a compact and most conveniently arranged plant; C. C. Phelps & Son, last, but not least in size. All bespeak prosperity.

The Adams boys imparted some interesting information regarding the variations of cucumbers. The most popular variety grown is named Hopkins' Choice, a dark green, solid fruit; a prolific bearer and preferred by the market men chiefly for its evenness of growth, especially during the early crops. Arlington White Spine is considered by the growers a superior sort, as it produces more seed and is, consequently, more tender, but not so profitable to market. Gas has practically been abolished now that a spraying substitute has been discovered, and the vines bear witness to the improved method. "The labor problem is causing us considerable anxiety and making us adopt all sorts of schemes to combat the shortage," said Messrs. Adams.

A. H. Davis, of Syracuse, N. Y., has plans for an office and salesroom, 24x24 feet, to be built into the greenhouse at the northwest corner of the property. It will add much to the appearance of the establishment, as the addition is to be ornamental as well as useful.

The Hike & Allen Co., of Cortland, N. Y., reports a busy season. "Recently Mr. Hike withdrew his interest in the business. That gives me double work," remarked Mr. Allen, "but it is good for the system, and the increase of business is encouraging."

Adolph Frost, of Cortland, is of the opinion that working hours at present are from dawn to dewy eve. Much work is to be completed that remains over from Decoration day. There were many in the same boat with Mr. Frost.

Passing the noted Randall homestead, at Cortland, I noted the beautiful effect of three trees planted close to each other. One was Paul's double scarlet thorn, in full bloom; the second a golden cut-leaved oak and the third a copper beech, each about thirty feet tall and of perfect proportions.

OBITUARY

William F. Kasting.

William F. Kasting, president of the W. F. Kasting Co., of Buffalo, treasurer of the Society of American Florists and of the National Flower Show committee, active worker in all that has tended toward the advancement of trade interests and probably as widely known and as well liked as any florist in the United States, was found dead in his room at the Maryland hotel, St. Louis, on the morning of June 15. Mr. Kasting, who was postmaster and a leader in politics in Buffalo, was a delegate to the Democratic national convention, holding the proxy of Mayor Fuhrman, of Buffalo. Death was due to heart failure.

It was at the town of Sachsenhausen, in the principality of Waldeck, Germany, that William F. Kasting came into mortal existence, July 27, 1870. He was the son of John and Maria (Gross) Kasting. At the usual age he became a pupil in the public schools of Sachsenhausen and attended his studies regularly until his fifteenth year, when he decided to try his fortunes in America, where a sister had preceded him, to Buffalo, where William found temporary occupation and went to night school to acquire the rudiments of the new tongue. Shortly afterwards he commenced his apprenticeship in the florists' business, on the estate of George H. Lewis, who was proprietor of the Niagara hotel and the conservatory connected therewith. After two years of service with his first employer, the young Kasting put in eight years of work in greenhouses at Cleveland, Erie, Pa., St. Louis and Steubenville, O. Upon his return to Buffalo in 1892, he entered the employ of Daniel B. Long, at that time a well known Buffalo wholesaler, who was prominently identified with the S. A. F. of that period, in whose service Mr. Kasting put a finishing touch to his mastery of all departments of the florists' industry. Two years later he succeeded Mr. Long in the business, which eventually became the foundation of the William F. Kasting Co. Along about this time, in 1894, Mr. Kasting entered Bryant & Stratton's business college, of Buffalo, and graduated with honors in 1895.

Mr. Kasting became interested in politics early in life. He was an unswerving Democrat, always loyal and striving his best for the interests of his party. He was a delegate to the Democratic national convention in 1896 and in 1900. In the latter year he was appointed park commissioner by Mayor Diehl, in which office he served the city well for almost a decade, twice being president of the board. Subsequently he ran for the offices of councilman and county treasurer, and, although he was defeated in his contests with the other party, he was a strong and dangerous candidate, running far ahead of his ticket.

In May, 1901, Mr. Kasting married Laura La Tour, who died four years ago, three children surviving, William, now aged 14; Laura L. and John R. Mr. Kasting's sister, Mrs. Mary Bixon, also survives.

The deceased was eminently successful in his wholesale business, which he operated individually from 1895 until about five years ago, when it was incorporated under the name of Wm. F. Kasting Co. W. N. Eiss, secretary, and E. C. Brucker, treasurer, were Mr. Kasting's associates in the corporation, which has its headquarters at 383 to 387 Ellicott street. In December, 1914, Mr. Kasting purchased the Newmann greenhouses, at Akron, N. Y., and he also had interests in several other trade establishments, including the Erie Floral Co., of Erie, Pa. He also had many other business interests, being president of two local insurance companies when he died. It is said his estate will include $70,000 of life insurance, $20,000 of which was taken out only a few weeks ago.

The pinnacle of Mr. Kasting's career was reached in January, 1914, when he was appointed postmaster of Buffalo by President Wilson, at a salary of $6,000 per year, undoubtedly as a reward for his share of the work in bringing the Democracy to victory at the polls in the last presidential election. When he took office he was given an ovation by his numerous friends.

Mr. Kasting's tenure of office as postmaster, of which he was the incumbent at the time of his death, was marked by the reorganization of the postoffice department of Buffalo. The position of assistant postmaster was abolished and the local department was shaped into two divisions, namely, the division of finance and the division of mails. Under Mr. Kasting's supervision, the postoffice at Buffalo boasted of greatly increased business. The postal receipts, money order business, postal savings and other branches showed great gains. Several branch postoffices and numerous substations were established as a direct result of the economy of the new system, supplying a much-felt want in various sections of the city.

Fraternally Mr. Kasting was prominent. In number of years as an officer of the Society of American Florists he has served longer than any other present office-holder. He was elected president of the national body at its twenty-first annual meeting, at Washington, D. C., August 15 to 18, 1905. In 1910 he was appointed treasurer of the S. A. F. to succeed H. B. Beatty and at each succeeding convention he was reëlected treasurer. He was a member of nearly all the special flower societies and active in their councils. He was president of the New York State Federation of Floral Clubs, had served as president of the Buffalo Florists' Club and was a member of many local florists' clubs in other cities, including New York, Chicago and San Francisco. He was a member of all the Masonic bodies, Odd Fellows, Elks, Maccabees, Red Men and Heptasophs. While postmaster he became a member of the Rotary Club, and he was one of the best known and best liked members of that large organization. He had been president of the Orpheus and belonged to other German singing societies.

The funeral was held from the family home, 700 Ellicott street, Sunday afternoon, June 18, with interment at Forest Lawn cemetery, and was one of the most remarkable demonstrations of friendship and respect ever seen in Buffalo. The attendance so far exceeded the capacity of the home that a large tent was erected on the lawn for the reception of notables and friends from out of town. It was estimated that 2,000 persons were grouped about the house during the brief service there and that 3,000 were at Forest Lawn when the funeral cortege arrived. In both instances automobiles were parked for blocks around.

William F. Kasting.

The services were Masonic. The pallbearers were seven Masonic florists: S. A. Anderson, W. J. Palmer, Felix Alberts, Joseph Sangster, Charles Schoenhut and J. B. Wiese, of Buffalo, and Charles T. Guenther, of Hamburg. The Florists' Club attended in a body, as did each of the other organizations of which he was a member. There were 300 mail carriers in uniform and 200 non-uniformed postoffice employees. The mayor and leading men of the city and state acted as honorary pallbearers and to this list was added the name of each out-of-town florist who made his presence known. Among them were:

Asmus, George, Chicago.

Five auto trucks were required to carry the flowers from house to cemetery, there being over 200 pieces, from trade societies, lodges, business houses and individuals. The florists of Buffalo, instead of sending flowers individually, got together and sent perhaps the handsomest blanket ever made. There were wreaths from the S. A. F., the State Federation of Floral Clubs, and from the florists' clubs of New York, Pittsburgh, Toronto, Washington, Denver, Minneapolis, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco and other cities.

Rarely has a florist had so many friends as had this one and rarely has a man, from so humble a beginning, risen so far in the respect of his business associates and in the esteem of his neighbors.

Julian T. Duquette.

Julian T. Duquette, of Albion, N. Y., died June 18, while eating supper.

Mr. Duquette had been in failing health for some time and was sitting up in bed while his nurse was feeding him. He declared to the nurse that he was suddenly stricken blind, then as he completed his meal fell over dead.

Mr. Duquette was born at Clarkson, N. Y., and was 72 years old. When a young man Mr. Duquette went to Lockport, where he resided until about twenty years ago, when he moved to Albion to take up the florists' business of his father at the latter's death. He was recognized throughout the state as an expert and for several years was superintendent of flowers at the Syracuse state fair.

Mr. Duquette was a veteran of the Civil war. He was a member of Curtis-Bates post, G. A. R., No. 114, and the Masonic and Odd Fellow fraternities. He was a Presbyterian. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Margaret Duquette.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THE two carnations that gained most in reputation last season were Matchless and Alice.

FRAGILE as is the petunia, it is proving extremely popular for window box purposes.

FORTUNATE is the florist who still has command of an adequate supply of cow manure. Several large growers have gone into the dairying business for the purpose of making for themselves a portion of their fertilizer necessities.

THE Want ads in The Review are an excellent index to the state of the trade. Note how the For Sale ads have decreased in number in the last year or so. Evidently business is much better than it was. The turn of the seasons can be noted in the Help Wanted and Situations Wanted columns; the former is shrinking, the latter increasing.

MRS. RUSSELL most certainly is not a rose for everybody to grow and least of all is it a rose for everybody to graft. Large propagators have again this season failed to fill orders in full because of the percentage of grafts that failed to take, the loss in some cases being as much as one-third. Is it any wonder good plants of Russell command a good price?

THERE is a noticeable uplift in progress in the trade. To begin with, the water wagon is becoming a popular conveyance, and, as the sons of the pioneers take hold, they are bringing to bear such qualities as come with higher education, for nearly every florist sees to it that his children get a more thorough schooling than was thought necessary in the olden times.

DON'T.

Don't spell it "Lillies" on the bill; one "l" meets the custom in our best families.

Don't speak of the "dirt" in the pots; there may be some on the outside, but the contents is soil.

Don't send your customers bills for "boquets;" some of them may think there also were omissions from the bunches.

Don't forget that in a business that depends largely on service the small details of speech and orthography are important.

THE GOLDEN RULE.

Every advertiser should practice the golden rule—indeed, dealing with a perishable article, not readily returnable in case the customer is not fully satisfied, it is especially important that each seller do as he would be done by.

There probably is no line of business in which disagreements are so difficult of adjustment as is the case with plants and flowers—the non-standardized, perishable, unreturnable character of the merchandise makes it so. No man who cherishes his good name, who hopes to receive repeat orders, who hopes to profit by the valuable free advertising that passes from mouth to mouth through the trade, or who cherishes the good name of florists, as a class, will ever send out any other stock than he would be satisfied to receive were he in the buyer's position.

The man who invariably applies the golden rule will never want for customers.

THE MODERN METHOD.

The modern method of doing business is the exact opposite of the method employed in this trade by an increasing number of sellers. The theory that prompts getting the order away from the other fellow, even if there is no profit in it, long since has been abandoned in other lines of business. The later and better idea is to get together and charge the dear public what the traffic will bear.

The florists' business has been one of excellent profits for a few men specially endowed with faculties for handling large affairs, and for conserving their money, but the average florist never has made profits in proportion to the time, labor, skill and risk involved. The reason usually has been that he and his neighbors were trying to see which one could sell the cheapest.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Within the last year commodity prices in America have been the highest in history. The pinch has been felt by nearly all florists, who found practically everything needed for the business costing more than it ever had before, with the closeness of competition preventing a corresponding rise in the florist's own selling prices. It has been a year of good business for florists, without a correspondingly good profit.

But commodity prices appear to have made a turn. In almost every line of business demand has visibly slackened. While markets were rising so rapidly everyone was buying to cover future requirements, so that of late the demand has fallen off. Also, many articles have reached a price sufficiently high to curtail consumption. Bradstreet's Index, which is recognized as the authority on such matters, shows that the high point was April 1, 1916, since which date there has been a slight but steady recession, prices for June 1 being slightly lower than for May 1, and May lower than for April.

The outlook is not for a rapid decline. Conditions are such that high prices are almost sure to rule for a number of years, with the probability that never within the lifetime of those now in the business will prices on many articles get back to the level that prevailed before the war.

CLEARING THE SURPLUS.

Plant sales are unusually active for the closing weeks of June, due to the lateness of the season, but it is not to be expected that the demand will continue indefinitely.

In many places stock has been cleaned up before the demand has been satisfied and there still exists a ready outlet for surpluses from other localities. The time to clean up is now. Like this:

In sending P. O. order to cover my bill I ask you also to accept my thanks. The classified ads in The Review have done fine for me this year. —George B. Morrell, Philadelphia, Pa., June 15, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

POT MAKERS ORGANIZE

Another of our allied industries buried the hatchet last week, on the beach at Atlantic City. June 17 there was a meeting of manufacturers said to represent ninety per cent of the pot output of the United States, at which the Pot Makers' Credit Association was organized. The prime movers seek to make it clearly understood that they have in mind no purpose other than to reduce the cost of pots by the elimination of losses and the expenses incidental to slow collections.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The Chicago market during the last week has been decidedly spotted. Short periods of activity have been interspersed with periods of sluggishness. Shipping trade has been quite good. Local trade, on the contrary, though especially good the end of the week, is on the whole distinctly quiet.

Beauties have been selling fairly well, but at low prices. Though the average quality is better than last week, there is far too much inferior stock. The supply has been materially reduced by planting, and few young Beauties are seen on the market as yet. Good roses of the other varieties are clearing nicely, but there is a large volume of poor stock that can find its way out of the market only through department store channels. Russell, as usual, leads. Sunburst and Ophelia find a good demand, while the reds of really first-class quality move easily. Good carnations sell fairly well, but the supply of good stock is so large that soft flowers meet with poor sale.

There is such a quantity of open peonies on the market that it has a tendency to lower prices on other stock. Good peonies, however, may be had in almost any quantity. Valley is still short, though not so much so as it was last week. Orchids continue extremely scarce. No difficulty is experienced in moving Easter lilies. Sweet peas are in limited supply and sell well. Daisies, though nearing their end, continue to experience a degree of popularity. Gladioli would probably sell well but for the fact that they are coming into the market in poor condition because of heavy rains. Pansies are about out of the running.

Greens are again in ample supply, a large quantity of new ferns having reached the market this week.

The Express Strike.

The strike of express drivers gradually is wearing itself out. Many of the men have returned to work and a partial service has been given in the market for several days. The Wholesale Florists' Cartage Service, managed by Fred Lautenschlager, still was operating June 21, but expected to be able to discontinue within a day or two, things being that near normal.

Later: The drivers declared their strike off at noon June 21.

The Peony Season.

Except for a few late varieties the local peony crop was nearly all cut last week. The growers had their troubles, as usual. While favored by cool weather, the frequent heavy rains made the work difficult and in some cases destroyed hundreds of dollars' worth of flowers that were too far along to stand such peltings. This, combined with a June market rather better than any previous year, has resulted in the quantity put in cold storage being considerably less than last year. But there are peonies enough on hand, coupled with late receipts from the north, so that it will be impossible for the market to be cleaned by July 4, as it usually is. In recent years Klehm's Nursery has been the only holder to carry peonies into July, but this year quite a number of wholesalers expect to have to carry considerable quantities beyond the usual date.

Reichling's Big Task.

A half day's work June 19 finished the replanting operations at Peter Reinberg's principal place, a task begun in March. There are 102 houses in this establishment and Superintendent Emil Reichling has replanted forty-two of them with young roses, besides replanting a number of houses and filling with chrysanthemums the space later to be used for propagating. At the carnation range farther in the country half the houses have been replanted. It is earlier than the work ever before has been done and it has been accomplished with surprisingly little help, for the payroll last week carried only eighty-eight names, which included the chauffeurs and several others not employed directly in greenhouse work.

The Beauties have been cut down sharply; only seven houses remain. The principal increase has been in Russell, ten additional houses containing 38,000 plants; the total planting of Russell, seventeen houses, now runs to 65,000 plants. The planting of Sunburst has been increased from three houses to six and one-half, or by 27,000 plants; an entire range is given to yellow roses. Other increases are three houses of Brilliant and one of Champ Weiland, with some additional space for Maryland, White Killarney and Richmond. Killarney is given less space than in many years, no young stock having been planted.

How well the plants have taken hold is shown by the fact that, quickly as the replanting has been done, cutting has begun in the first houses of young stock.

Peterson's Peonies.

The peak of the peony season at Peterson Nursery was passed last week, when there was a steady stream of visitors from dawn to dusk. The greater part of the several large fields was cut over steadily, about 10,000 flowers per day being sent to the A. L. Randall Co., but the first ten plants at the driveway end of each row were left untouched for the benefit of visitors. Also along one of the drives there is a 4-year-old plantation that includes every variety on the place, grouped by colors and in the order of blooming, each variety labeled, that gives a splendid opportunity for comparison. Another sample collection has been planted, three plants of each variety in line behind an easily read label. Next year visitors will find the first plant disbudded, the second grown naturally, the third with the crown bud taken out to prolong the season.

The trade visitor noted, perhaps first of all, the large stock of such high priced varieties as Karl Rosenfield, only on the market eight years, and M. Martin Cahuzac, the darkest of the reds, although for display nothing surpassed the showing made by Felix Crousse and Mr. Peterson said the latter is the ideal cut flower red from the wholesaler's and retailer's view. Of the rose-pinks Claire Dubois is extremely good for late work. The whites afford an interesting study, but the average person comes back to Festiva maxima until its season is past.

The Peterson collection of irises has been greatly enlarged in recent years and a selection of the best would contain many unfamiliar names. In the late varieties Monsignor, violet; Loreley, yellow; Archeveque, reddish purple, and Loute, bronze, are as handsome as orchids. For some unknown reason florists have paid little attention to German irises, although they are as easy to grow as an onion.

Various Notes.

The news of the sudden death of W. F. Kasting at St. Louis last week was a shock to his friends in Chicago. Mr.

Kasting had arranged to visit this city on his way home from St. Louis to Buffalo after the Democratic convention. He was interested with A. F. Poehlmann, N. J. Wietor, George Asmus and others in the United Fertilizer Co., originally organized here. Among those who attended the funeral Sunday in Buffalo were Arnold Ringier, W. J. Keimel and George Asmus. The Chicago Florists' Club, of which Mr. Kasting was a member, sent a wreath.

The mobilizing of the National Guard for service on the Mexican frontier called out A. I. Simmons, who is a captain in the Seventh regiment; Edward Martin, of A. Henderson & Co., and Harry Gardener, of A. T. Pyfer & Co., who are members of the First regiment. The latter had just started on a vacation.

A most striking window illumination has been seized upon by George Wienhoeber. In the center background, suspended midway between the floor and the ceiling, is an American flag made of electric lights. With no other illumination in use, this flag, framed in greenery and set in darkness, creates a most striking spectacle through the night.

The corsage rose, George Elger, has proved a profitable specialty with Wietor Bros., who this season are adding Hill's Baby Doll as a running mate.

Such a firm believer in the merits of the Winton Six is Adolph Poehlmann, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, that he ordered another last week. The company has added a 1½-ton truck to its delivery fleet.

That first-class roses will be unusually good property during July is the opinion of John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., who says he sees signs that summer business will make another new record this year.

Roland Poehlmann, son of August Poehlmann, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., graduated from the Western Military Academy, Alton, Ill., last week. Mrs. Poehlmann, Miss Virginia Poehlmann and Earl Poehlmann attended the exercises.

If a grower sees a streak of color flashing down the road it will be W. P. Kyle in his new Mercer, delivered last week.

The best tonic in the world, according to M. C. Gunterberg, is to spend the week end motoring in the country. As she does this regularly, she should be a competent authority.

Members of the trade may be surprised to learn that Miss Wanda Lyons, who opened an engagement in "A World of Pleasure" at the Palace Music Hall, June 19, was working in a florist's store in Salt Lake City just one year ago, for $6 a week.

Joseph Ziska, Jr., and Mrs. Ziska spent the week end motoring in the Fox river district.

D. E. Freres and Jack Beyers enjoyed a fishing trip last week. They did not go far from the city, but report unusually good luck.

Vacation time is with us. Tony Adamitis, of Zech & Mann, starts his days off June 24.

To facilitate the handling of florists' shipments, George Heinlein has purchased another auto truck.

These are certainly lively days for Louis Heckner. He returned from Council Bluffs, Ia., June 15 and left for Madison, Wis., June 16. He is planning a visit to Richmond, Ind., next week. While in Council Bluffs he visited the establishment of J. F. Wilcox & Sons, and reports everything in splendid shape.

Visitors.

A visitor on the market this week was John Stuppy, of the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo.

The market was visited this week by A. T. Bushong, proprietor of the Gary Floral Co., Gary, Ind.

Robert Blake, of the establishment of Mrs. J. B. Freeman, Toledo, O., was a visitor on the market this week.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

There is a change in the condition of the market. The supply of cut flowers is lighter and business is a little heavier this week, especially in wedding decorations. Roses of all kinds are less plentiful; the higher grades are going up in price, as the demand for them is large. The lower grades are not so scarce. The home-grown carnations are still good. They have lasted longer this spring than in previous years, due to the cool weather. Peonies are practically out of the market. There are large quantities of gladioli of fine quality, which are quickly sold. Gypsophila now is plentiful and the demand for this flower is heavier this spring than ever before. Large spaces are devoted to this flower and some of the growers say that more will be grown next year. Shasta daisies, coreopsis and other perennials are in full bloom. A large quantity of larkspurs is in the market and these are among the best summer flowers for all-around work. The perennials this year are better than ever before.

Various Notes.

Adolph Mohr is glazing two of his new houses and will have them ready to plant next week with mums, of which he will have 5,000 plants. He has about 4,000 asters in the field. He expects to have about 1,000 Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias in 6-inch, 7-inch and 8-inch pots; 1,500 in 3-inch and 4-inch pots, and 500 cyclamens. Mr. Mohr reports business as being better than in any previous year. He will give up the old range, which he had under a lease. He owns the new place.

T. J. Noll & Co. now are receiving from Colorado some well grown carnations of large size. They have no trouble in disposing of them. They also receive large quantities of gypsophilas from Oklahoma. This concern will handle all orders in this section of the country for the Johnson Basket Co., of Chicago.

A. F. Barbe is getting his houses in shape. He sold his entire bedding stock and has had an excellent spring business. He has his chrysanthemums in the benches and will plant carnations this week. His carnations in the field are looking fine.

W. J. Barnes was busy during the week with funeral work and sold many made-up pans and baskets. He has all his mums in and will have a larger quantity than usual of begonias for the winter months.

Henry Kusik & Co. are receiving large shipments of cut roses from the north, which arrive in good shape. They are handling a large quantity of home-grown gladioli.

William Foith sold out clean, having fifty per cent more business than last year. He is cutting an unusually large crop of carnations of large size and has about one acre planted to young carnations.

The S. Bryson Ayres Co. is sending in a large quantity of gypsophilas and some good, outdoor-grown sweet peas.

Edward Ellsworth now is living at Forest lake, his summer home. He says the store force is occupied with wedding decorations. He has 8,000 mums planted and some sweet peas grown outdoors, east of Independence.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley reports that wedding work is plentiful this spring.

There is no news from E. G. Bunyar, who has left the city for his annual fishing trip by automobile to the Ozark mountains.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. is getting its range in shape to plant carnations. The chrysanthemums here are looking fine and are of good height.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

So far this week has been a splendid one for business, and from all indications every florist received his share of wedding decorations and orders for school commencements. The unusually heavy demand for good peonies cleaned up the season's supply with satisfactory results. A renewed demand for hardy blooming stock is gratifying.

Never before have we had such a good quality of flowers from under glass. Roses of exceptional quality, such as Russell, Ophelia, Mrs. Ward, My Maryland and Richmond, are received in quantities and bring good prices. This may also be said of carnations, and there are enough valley, orchids, Easter lilies and irises to meet the demand. Beauties are fine and in fair demand. Sweet peas of good quality are plentiful.

The plantsmen and florists who do landscape work are still busy. Window box filling is now at its height and many growers again report a shortage of ferns for this work.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burki have returned from Chicago and Peoria. While in Chicago they visited their daughter, Roma, who attends school there.

The Market.

Conditions in the cut flower market have changed from those of a week ago. The quantity of flowers has fallen off, while business continues fair for so late in the season. Really good flowers find a market at times; mark that, at times, as sometimes even good flowers are hard to sell. Peonies have entirely ceased coming in from local fields. This, of course, relieves the market. Valley, cattleyas and good roses are the best stock. Peonies do not sell particularly well; there are still too many of them. They still form the mainstay of the decorations. There are no other special features of the market beyond the excellent shipping orders and the demand for school commencements and weddings.

Topics of the Hour.

W. H. Elliott, of Brighton and of Madbury, once made an address in which he placed judgment ahead of hard work in earning success. This is beyond contradiction, despite the great importance of hard work. Take for example the rose, as grown under glass. Any rose grower will tell you that we are nearing what may be best described as the end of the Killarney period in forcing varities. First we had the little rose period, when Bon Silene, Safrano, Perl and Niphetos flourished. Then came the period of hybrids at Easter. Then Catherine Mermet, Bridesmaid and Bride had their day. Beauty came and is still here. The greatest period of all came with Killarney, within the last decade. Nothing like it has ever been seen in the expansion of rose growing.

The Killarneys have done well, more or less, everywhere. They have given roses, fine roses, at a time when roses were scarce, and they have done it over and over again. It is a yellow piece of floral work, indeed, that cannot be done with one of the Killarneys at a pinch. Today there is strong evidence that the Killarney period is nearing its end. This does not mean that Killarneys will be thrown out and disappear from our greenhouses and from our shops. By no means; Killarneys will be grown for a long time to come. But the day of their leadership is over. A larger, finer rose is taking the lead. A rose which is not so free-flowering, perhaps, but which is superior in many other respects. The signs of this change are numerous. Many of the growers found their returns, the average receipts per plant they call it, are a little smaller each year than they were the year before. This is not true of a few exceptionally clever growers, but it is true of the great majority of growers; so true that they are dropping Killarney more or less rapidly and will continue to do so as they prove that other varieties are more profitable though less productive. Then, again, it is an interesting fact that many of the leading retail shops throughout the country will not offer Killarney to their customers. They can and do send out something better, except in times of scarcity. They know that Killarney can be had anywhere and is certain to be offered by their competitors who like whatever is most plentiful. So they seek something else. Again the argument of overproduction strikes the wholesale commission houses in the great cities. It is the Killarneys that wilt, that require most effort to sell them.

These things clearly show the trend of public taste. The judgment of nearly all well informed florists is that the new type of roses, with large flowers, fine foliage, heavy stems, is gradually superseding the Killarneys. The new leader will be a type, not a variety, for the present, at least. No one variety as grown today is good enough to outclass the others and give its name to the new rose period. It seems that this type boasts a larger proportion of hybrid blood than our forcing roses of the past. The effort to develop varieties of this type, varieties that will command support sufficient to make them profitable, is extremely interesting. It will require judgment of a high order in selection and hard work and skill in developing varieties of this new type.

The Market.

Market conditions did not present a bright appearance last week. Trade in general is not good and orders usually placed in June have not been forthcoming. June did not open with the usual briskness of wedding work, nor does it appear to be improving any. The unsettled season is much to blame for these conditions. There are large quantities of flowers in the market and prices now are low. There are many peonies on hand and they have to be cleared at low figures. A large variety of all grades of roses arrives daily. The stock moves satisfactorily. Spanish iris sells nicely and is used largely in funeral and basket work.

Carnations are plentiful, but they are becoming smaller. Gladioli move freely, especially America. Sweet peas are plentiful and sell well. Easter lilies appear to be slowing up a bit now. Valley is of extra quality and sells easily. Some good delphiniums are arriving now. Yellow and white daisies sell fairly well. Bachelor's buttons receive a steady call. A quantity of outdoor pinks, oriental poppies, lemon lilies, etc., arrived, but there is not much sale for these. Palms, ferns and foliage plants, as well as good outdoor hydrangeas, sold well last week. Smilax and asparagus are plentiful and meet all demands. Bedding stock is being disposed of freely.

A large liberty bell made of flowers was a feature of the Elks' Flag day exercises, held in Convention hall June 14. The base of the bell was composed of red roses, the bell proper of white lilies and the top of violets. With due solemnity the parts were put together on a stand draped with the American flag.

The Rochester Floral Co. reports business as being good indeed, with an increase over that of any previous year. The attractiveness of the store is enhanced by the use of a number of large baskets of artificial flowers.

John Dunbar, assistant superintendent of parks, met with an automobile accident June 11. Mr. Dunbar was at the top of a hill when the steering gear of his automobile broke. The car gained great speed as it descended, and when Mr. Dunbar attempted to make a turn near the bottom the machine turned turtle, pinning him underneath. Fortunately, he suffered no serious injury. The car was wrecked.

The monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held at the Musicians' Headquarters June 12. President Charles H. Vick appointed the following to act on the flower show committee: William H. Dildine, A. H. Salter, H. E. Bates, C. B. Ogston, George T. Boucher, John Dunbar and George B. Hart. Owing to Mr. Dunbar's accident, the illustrated lecture he was scheduled to give was postponed to a future meeting.

J. B. Keller Sons had a handsome window last week, comprising a large table centerpiece, made of daisies and larkspurs. Two wicker window stands filled with the same kind of flowers made an excellent showing.

Harry Brush says that business has been unusually good with him. He is showing some large hanging baskets filled with ferns. His window was a mass of oriental poppies.

The death of William F. Kasting, treasurer of the S. A. F., of Buffalo, came as a severe shock to his many friends in Rochester. A beautiful wreath of golden oak leaves, tied with ribbon, was sent by the Rochester Florists' Association. Several of the members left for Buffalo Sunday morning to attend the funeral.

At Long park the peony beds are again in all their glory, attracting thousands of visitors.

Ira H. Landis is shipping pyrethrums and delphiniums of extra fine quality to the wholesale market.

Alphonse Peters has started in business for himself at the South Queen Street Greenhouses, which were formerly occupied by Frank A. Suter. Mr. Suter will erect some houses for himself in the southern end of the city.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Business last week was not encouraging to the wholesalers, and it was a serious problem to secure anything like real values. The street venders have become a menace to the retail trade and there is much dissatisfaction over the city's failure to suppress them. Still, what would the wholesale market be without them? After a week of rain they helped to clear at least some of the surplus stock Saturday afternoon. Good Saturdays are expected, even if the first five days of the week are poor, but last Saturday was an exception to the rule. The storemen were all complaining. This week there are many weddings and school commencements. The remainder of June should show an improvement, especially as the rose shipments are lighter and the peonies are becoming less numerous.

Special American Beauties were not selling above 20 cents last week, and Hadley, Euler and Brunner roses were shaded below the previous week's quotations. The other roses arriving are readily absorbed, except the short-stemmed roses, which, in large purchases, have sold as low as $10 per thousand. The best price for the best carnations June 17 was $1 per hundred. There are not many of them bringing even this price and many of the arrivals were disposed of at $5 per thousand.

Any flowers or plants give a lot of pleasure if they're nice and fresh; and the way to keep them fresh is to pack them in Longiflorum lilies are selling at summer rates—few above $3 per hundred. Valley is the one strong underpinning of the cut flower market. The select sold at a high figure during the week and June 17 $5 to $6 per hundred was the general quotation. One company claimed sales at $8, but this was exceptional. There is no rise in values for orchids. The demand does not equal the supply. The finest gigas sold at $25 per hundred.

The market is fully supplied with callas, daisies, stocks, gladioli, sweet williams, coreopsis, phloxes, snowballs and laurel. There is an overflow of rambler rose branches. The peony is king and probably will exert its influence on the general market until July. There are thousands in cold storage. Let us hope they will come out well preserved and salable.

Various Notes.

This week will see the close of the plant auction season, which has been a remarkable success. The season's sales of the MacNiff Horticultural Co. exceed those of any other year of the company's successful career. John P. Cleary has charge of the auction department of C. C. Trepel, on the roof of the Bloomingdale store, at Fifty-ninth street. At Elliott's the season has been satisfactory in all departments.

F. G. Van Mater, manager and secretary of the Greater New York Florists' Association, Brooklyn, says he is much pleased with his new position and the increase in the volume of shipments since he assumed office.

Robert Woodrow and family are at Morristown, N. J.

The home of John Kervan, of the Kervan Co., received a visit from the stork June 2.

July 6 is the date of the Greek-American outing. The managers say that arrangements have been made to accommodate 1,000 picnickers. The prizes in the athletic contests are more desirable than those of former years.

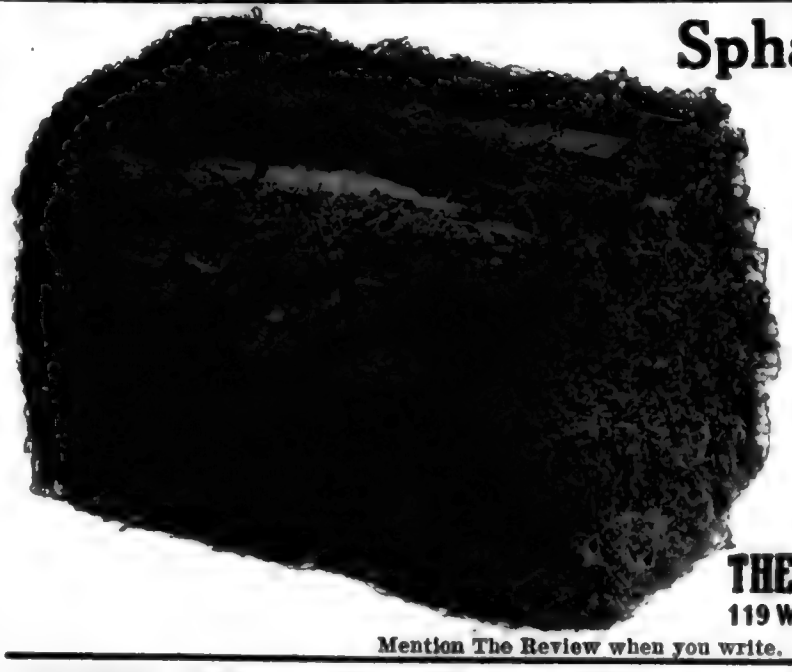
TOLEDO, O.

The Market.



Cut flowers of all kinds are plentiful and the demand is easily satisfied. Roses are in good supply and their quality is fine at present. Carnations are plentiful, but first-class stock is hard to procure, as the flowers are becoming more imperfect every day. Daisies and gladioli are in fine cut and the trade seems to admire these flowers, as calls for them exceed all other sales, excepting roses. Peonies still are to be had, good stock, at that.

The weather in this vicinity is anything but favorable to the florists. Exceptionally cool weather, with incessant showers, seemed to take the buying spirit out of the trade. An unusual call for weddings and graduations has kept the florists busy and has helped to keep June sales about equal to those of the same month a year ago. Funeral work also has been a great factor in keeping refrigerators in first-class order and in disposing of gluts of certain flowers. Florists who have greenhouses report an unusual sale of bedding plants for this time of the year. This may be attributed to the cool weather.

Various Notes.

Metz & Bateman, who have a store on the ground floor of the Ohio building, have leased a large portion of the basement, which is being converted into a first-class work and display room. Mr. Metz reports that increased business was the reason for the large addition.

An interesting meeting of the Toledo Florists' Club was held June 13 in the rooms of the retail merchants' board in the Nicholas building. Many matters for the good of the trade during the summer months were discussed and acted on. Among the most important was the annual picnic. Owing to the heavy expenses recently incurred by the club, it was agreed to drop the picnic for this year.

A committee was appointed to cooperate with the city workers in the planting of shrubbery in the parks and public places. This committee is to make a report at the next meeting.

The Lindley Floral Co., formerly located in theater row on St. Clair street, has discontinued business. The principal reason for retirement is said to be the failing health of the proprietress, Miss Lindley.

N. Nusbaum, ex-president of the Florists' Club, now is foreman of the Imoberstag greenhouses. Mr. Nusbaum formerly had charge of the greenhouses of S. N. Peck, which were sold last month.

Miss Helen Patten, proprietress of the Patten Flower Store, on Madison avenue, is preparing for a two months' vacation in California.

Schramm Bros. are making preparations for their annual field day at Stricker's farm, near Sylvania, O. Elaborate plans are being made for the event, as the club has decided to drop its annual picnic.

Theodore Shobelsky, formerly engaged by Schramm Bros., has accepted a position in the store of C. Kaminsky, on Lagrange street.

S. N. Peck reports that business has resumed its old-style order. Mr. Peck's store was damaged to a great extent some weeks ago by a cave-in of the building. G. B. S.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

A novel method of delivering bedding stock has been devised by the Mount Gilead Floral Co., of Mount Gilead, O. A trailer is attached to a touring car. The trailer has three layers of shelves, fifteen inches apart. This is convenient for most bedding stock in pots. The trailer will carry 1,500 pounds over any kind of road, in addition to what is placed in the automobile itself.

Charles Tracht, of Galion, O., reports a heavy demand for bedding stock. The quality of the stock surely merits easy sales.

William Farnsworth & Son, of Galion, have a good lot of seasonable stock. The plant sales have been large.

Mrs. A. Hoffstadt, of Shelby, O., had a run of funeral work last week and the sales of bedding stock were numerous.

R. B. Hayes, of Shelby, has several houses of fine carnations, from which 5,000 blooms were cut the week before Mothers' day.

The Mansfield Floral Co., of Mansfield, O., is working short-handed. Manager Lintot attends to both the greenhouses and the store.

"Happy" Dow, of Mansfield, keeps all his workers and customers happy with his well known smile. It seems to be his one desire to keep everybody in good humor, and he succeeds.

Stuhldreher Bros., of Mansfield, disposed of about 50,000 geraniums last week, besides large quantities of other bedding stock.

W. H. Zimmerman, of Ashland, O., said he had the most successful season of his business experience, which seems to be the general report of most of the florists this year.

The production of his own vegetables this summer is going to be the diversion of W. Grant Kintigh, of Irwin, Pa., during the dull months.

Owing to the backward season, William Cromack, of Irwin, has many orders for outdoor planting, which will keep him busy for some time.

Bedding stock and funeral work have kept Koerbal Bros., of Jeannette, Pa., on the move. It has been the heaviest season this firm has enjoyed for years.

Joseph Thomas, of Greensburg, Pa., likes to see his greenhouses and retail store running under full pressure, as of late.

W. W. Bortz, of Greensburg, recently installed a nifty ribbon case, which puts the finishing touch to the store.

The centennial celebration at Indiana, Pa., brought several large decorative orders to Mrs. Geo. Straley, of the same town. W. T. U.

The Market.

There has been a decided improvement in business during the last few days. The week closing June 17 proved to be an encouraging one, there being a tolerably good clean-up of nearly all flowers, and the present week, with college commencements, school graduations, weddings and various social functions, is a satisfactory one. June has quite belied its reputation for weather. Up to June 18 we had only two days that were really clear and free from rain, the climax coming June 17 with a fall of two inches. Outdoor flowers are extremely late. Not until this week did peonies appear in any quantity, and no outdoor roses are this year available for college exercises.

Roses have been selling well at $1 to $10 per hundred for hybrid teas, some fancies making more. American Beauties at $15 to $25 per hundred have been in good demand, owing to the lack of peonies. Hadley, Ophelia, Killarney Queen, White Killarney and Russell are prime favorites. Carnations have varied from $1 to $2.50 per hundred. While they are moving better than a week ago, outdoor herbaceous flowers now are preferred by many. There is a good supply of sweet peas, and these and lily of the valley are selling well.

Peonies so far have realized splendid prices, but now are on the down grade. The quality is grand, and it is too bad that, owing to the late season, a great proportion of them are too belated for wedding decorations. Snapdragons now are quite small. Gladiolus America sells better than any other of the large-flowered type. Mrs. Francis King comes next in favor. Pink Perfection proves the least popular. A good number of Peach Blossom and Blushing Bride gladioli still come in, but they sell only moderately well. For such flowers as stocks, candytuft and feverfew, there is an uncertain call. Good bachelor's buttons, however, sell well. A good cattleya supply is available at last week's prices; also a nice assortment of other summer orchids. Gardenias are scarce. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri each have been selling remarkably well and the few growers of smilax have easily cleared all they had.

David and E. J. Welch, at 280 Devonshire street, known as Welch's. The average wholesale flower store is, as a rule, dark and dingy, with artificial light a necessity all the time, but at Welch's on the darkest day none will be necessary. On the main floor the 15-foot windows, front and back, and white walls and ceilings make this the lightest flower store in Boston. The ice chest, forty-five feet long, is a splendid one, and everything is up-to-date. The fact that there are no steps to climb when entering the store is also a great advantage. The favorite carnation here at present is Winkler's Morning Glow, which is a grand summer variety. A number of the old hands of the Welch Bros. Co. are to be found here. The genial Frank Connolly is liked by everyone. J. E. Smith has charge of the supply department and Christopher Donovan is also here.

Wax Bros. report they never had so many weddings in June as this year. There are few especially large events, but there is a great increase in the number using $40 to $50 worth of flowers each.

The Boston Florists' Bowling League has decided that a salt water picnic would hardly be the correct thing for its members and therefore has arranged for an outing June 25 to Lake Boone, near Hudson, Mass., going by automobiles from the wholesale flower markets at 9 a. m. serious damage done to their carnations, pansies and other plants by fumes from the plant of the Avery Chemical Co. If the company does not settle damages, there will be a strong effort made to have its plant closed.

Charles E. Evans is getting a fine lot of America and Mrs. Francis King gladioli. His peonies are now in good crop, festiva maxima being particularly good. Hydrangea Otaksa meets with a good sale here.

N. E. Boyle, of Malden, has completed a rose house 36x135 feet. In addition to Ophelia, Hadley, Sunburst and the Killarneys, he will grow Hoosier Beauty next season.

The annual rhododendron displays in the Arnold Arboretum, on parkways and on private estates was at its best here June 18. Thanks to the copious moisture of the present season, the plants have bloomed magnificently and the show is a glorious one. Kalmia latifolia is this week coming into flower, a little late for June weddings, in which it is always popular.

In one of Penn's windows this week a winding stream, with rocky sides and pebbled bottom, tumbles into a pool in which there are fishes and water lilies. The planting along the sides is suggestive of a rock garden. I hope to see a real rock garden here at some early date. Another window is entirely devoted to Penn's brides' bouquets and shows a wedding scene. The entire force has been kept on the jump with wedding orders.

this season than any other grower. He had 100 dozen Pæonia officinalis rubra a day before others had a flower in the market.

At the store of Patrick Welch June 17 I noted vases of picotee tulips still in fine shape. Valley, Beauty roses, gladioli and peonies are specialties at present, and business is good.

Mrs. Zan Brunnen, of North Stoughton, is cutting some nice Canterbury bells, bougainvilleas, calendulas and peonies.

The Welch Bros. Co., under the new management, is running along in good shape. Messrs. Haas and Reynolds, the new members of the firm, are sparing no effort to make good and are bound to succeed. W. N. C.

The Market.

The market last week was in a splendid condition. Seasonable stock was plentiful, but it did not move so well as was expected, although there seemed to be plenty of work among the retailers. The weather was remarkably cool and the quality of the stock was benefited by it. There still are extra fancy roses coming in from local growers, with prices ranging from $2 to $6 per hundred. Carnations in all varieties are plentiful and prices on these are down to $2 per hundred for the best. Sweet peas continue to arrive, but they are not in oversupply. They are not of prime quality, but the demand for them is good. Valley is scarce at present and choice stock brings $5 per hundred. Some good lilies are seen. Outdoor stock is arriving in large quantities. Gladioli are in good demand. Extra fine stalks of America, King, Augusta and Pink Beauty bring $6 per hundred. Ferns are scarce, but other greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau, in a letter to the Florists' Club, says it desires to bring the 1917 meeting of the S. A. F. to St. Louis and will coöperate with the club members to bring this about. This matter will come up for discussion at the July meeting of the Florists' Club.

Count Andrew von Hoffman, of George Waldbart's force, reports that he will take his family for a few weeks' vacation trip to St. Paul and other northern points the latter part of this month. This should be of great benefit to Mr. Hoffman after a season of hard work.

the delegates made his place their headquarters.

Carl Beyer, Jules Bourdet, F. H. Weber and Frank Fillmore took an automobile trip to Olivette June 15. They paid a visit to the establishments of John and Charles Steidle.

The chairmen of all the committees met with the executive committee of the spring flower show June 13, at the store of Jules Bourdet. According to reports, all are doing fine work. Manager Bourdet, who will have charge of the show, says it will be one of the largest shows St. Louis has ever held.

Emil Rothenheber, who for years has been in the nursery business at Clayton, has sold his business, including the land, to H. W. Endres. The price was $35,000. Mr. Rothenheber has no plans for the future, but he says he will take a good rest. Mr. Endres is a landscape gardener and a member of the Florists' Club.

Peter Reinberg, the well known wholesale florist of Chicago, spent a few days here last week as delegate from Illinois to the Democratic national convention. O. B. Stevens, Mrs. Stevens and daughter, of Shenandoah, Ia., and Mr. Lee, of the Chattahoochee Floral Co., Hatcher Station, Ga., spent a few days visiting the trade.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle held a pleasant meeting at the home of Mrs. H. G. Berning, June 14. Mrs. A. Meyer, Jr., will entertain the ladies July 12.

William Schray & Sons, Charles Beyer, John Held and F. Fillmore say the season was most successful in all lines. The spring plant season was especially large. At present all have their forces repairing damages done by the recent hail storm.

Thomas Carr, who handles thousands of bedding plants at his Union market stands, says it has been the best season since he has been in business. The cut flower department, under the supervision of Miss Marie, showed a great improvement in business.

The local trade received a great shock last week in the news of the sudden death of William F. Kasting, of Buffalo, at the Maryland hotel, June 15. Mr. Kasting was a New York delegate to the Democratic convention. This being Mr. Kasting's old home, he expressed a wish to meet his old friends, so a visit was paid to the wholesale district and other places June 14. That evening he had a slight attack of the heart, which caused his death Thursday, June 15. His brother-in-law, L. A. La Tour, and Congressman Driscoll, accompanied the remains to Buffalo. J. J. B.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

The large amount of rainy weather has been a great handicap to the growers in Newark and vicinity. The nights have been cold, the ground is cold and the sun is out but a small part of the time. Growers are complaining that stock planted in the fields is not growing well, and the foliage is often yellow. The only things that do grow well are the weeds. Besides the great amount of inclement weather, the growers have been hit hard by the scarcity of labor. It is next to impossible for the majority of growers to secure enough help to keep up with their work, and practically everyone is behind.

This being the season for flowers, there are many in the market, regardless of adverse growing conditions. Prices have kept up pretty well during the last ten days. Outside valley is gone, and the greenhouse varieties are high-priced and not of first quality. Valley went as high as $5 per hundred at wholesale last week. Sweet peas are less plentiful, because of the cloudy weather. Many buds dried up for lack of sunshine. Carnations are abundant and reasonable in price. Peonies are more plentiful and the larger varieties are coming to the market. There was a large increase in the quantity of flowering sweet william plants last week, and they seem to be in good demand. Marigolds are more plentiful. Marguerites are not so abundant as they were, but mountain daisies and yellow daisies are still equal to the demand. Some of the stores have mountain laurel on sale. Callas are unusually good for this season of the year. There are some bluebells in the market.

Club Meeting.

At a meeting of the Essex County Florists' Club at Krueger's auditorium June 15, it was voted to give $10 to the fund which is being raised for Miss Jarvis, the founder of Mothers' day. The committee on the summer outing made a report of its tentative plans, which were informally discussed by those present. While many details have not yet been decided upon, the plans contemplate an outing similar to the one held last year. It will be held at Gillette, N. J., the first week of August, though possibly at a different location from that of last summer. There will be athletic games, sports, etc., and a good dinner. The members will go from Newark and surrounding places in automobiles.

Various Notes.

J. J. Wilson, of the J. J. Wilson Seed Co., reports that business is fairly good, coming up to last year, but that it would have been much better if people were not so busy. Many instances have come to his notice of people who were too busy this year to make gardens.

A cage of waltzing mice last week attracted much attention in the window of George Penek.

Greeks with push carts filled with flowers made their appearance in Newark again last week. While common in parts of New York, this is the first time they have been seen in Newark this season. They sold peonies at 3 cents each and carnations at 2 cents.

Fred P. Wolfinger reports a large amount of funeral work and many weddings.

Henry A. Strobell, on Broad street, states that business is excellent for this time of the year. He has had work for a number of weddings and social events.

Philips Bros. say business is good now and payments more prompt than they were a while ago. Frank and Fred Philips, of this firm, went bass fishing at Weequahic lake when the bass season opened last week.

There was a unique floral display at the firemen's parade in Newark last week, in connection with the anniversary celebration of the city. Among the visitors were a number of the fire department of Madison, N. J., with the chief's automobile and one piece of apparatus. These advertised the fact that Madison is a rose growing city as much as they did its fire department. The chief's automobile had a large bunch of Beauty roses, with extra long stems, on each corner of the windshield, while the radiator of the machine was covered with asparagus and Beauties. The sides and running board were a mass of asparagus. The back of the auto was covered with asparagus and red, white and blue flowers, each color in a strip by itself, so as to give the appearance of the national colors. Along the top of the other machine was a shelf filled with pots of pink roses. The sides were decorated with asparagus and roses, and at the rear an extension was built which was banked with hundreds of roses. Two firemen stood on the extension and threw these roses to the crowds. In large letters along each side of this piece of apparatus were the words, "The Rose City, Madison, N. J."

ANNANDALE, N. Y.

The nineteenth annual rose exhibition of Annandale, the tented show of Dutchess county's millionaires and "leading citizens"—Astor, Sargent, Roosevelt—opened on the afternoon of June 13 with a fine display of cut flowers and plants. Had the weather been more June-like, the 2-day exhibition would have surpassed any of its predecessors, as the only thing lacking was a large attendance.

There were classes for amateurs, children, private gardeners and commercial growers. Those of the latter class were: Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., entries comprising cut rose blooms and herbaceous plants; Elmer Coon, of Rhinebeck, N. Y., cut flowers and plants; Saltford Flower Shop, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., carnations and sweet peas; Jul von der Linden, of Rhinebeck, carnations; William Wildey, of Barrytown, carnations and ferns. The judges were F. L. Atkins, P. O'Mara, L. Barron and F. R. Pierson. Among the donators of prizes were Peter Henderson & Co., of New York, and the American Rose Society.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

La Jolla, Cal.—M. C. Elliott, formerly associated with the La Jolla Floral Gardens, has started a florists' business here on his own account.

Santa Cruz, Cal.—R. A. Lounsbury is another of the number in this vicinity who recently have gone into freesia growing. Last autumn he planted nearly 500,000 bulblets of Freesia Purity and now is preparing to harvest and market his crop.

Elmhurst, Cal.—Harry Hayashi was granted a patent May 16 on a device for wrapping potted plants described as designed to permit the use of inexperienced employees and to reduce the expense of wrapping plants. The device consists of a stand around the center of which is a nest of paper, funnel-shaped wrappers that can be drawn up one at a time around the pot and plant to be wrapped. In wrapping a plant the operator is to choose a wrapper of the proper size so that the pot will not pass through the lower end, the upper end requiring only to be gathered and tied above the plant.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The present week has been a decidedly good one, despite the fact that one day was spoiled by the preparedness parade. Funeral work has again been plentiful. Not only have the retailers had about all they could handle, but the wholesalers also have been busy shipping pieces, already made up, to outside points. This is a business that is not pushed as much as it might be, for many small retailers in outlying districts have not the best of facilities for making up their own work.

Stock has cleaned up fairly well. The most abundant items are gladioli and second-grade carnations. Centaureas are plentiful and, as usual, meet with a good demand as fillers for funeral work. Asters are not as yet a big factor in the market, but they are of fair quality for so early in the season. The two beautiful dahlias, Minnie Burgle and Delice, are well represented, and the various types of Golden West also meet with favor. Sweet peas are excellent; it is seldom that such fine flowers are seen at this time of year. Roses are about as last noted. Some good carnations are in, besides a large quantity of second-rate ones. Valley has been in big demand and some days in poor supply. Orchids are plentiful. Ferns and pot plants are on the short side, but the demand is not great. There are plenty of greens of all kinds.

Various Notes.

Manager W. Wern, of Wright's Flower Shop, says the June business has been excellent so far, and that the numerous rush orders for weddings have led to trouble in obtaining stock at times. The rose stock from the Gardena ranch is arriving in good shape for this time of year.

A good many large specimen trees and shrubs have been sold lately at the Coolidge Rare Plant Gardens, of Pasadena. Mr. Coolidge is away on an eastern trip, intending to visit all the principal cities.

Oscar Roessner, of Pomona, was attacked by thugs at his nursery early in the week and seriously injured.

J. Dieterich is shipping another carload of palms to the east. He is fast filling up the Wall street place again with fine stock from the Montebello nursery.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. is handling a fine lot of 4-inch cyclamens, grown at their nursery on the Whittier road. Large landscape contracts are making heavy inroads on the finished stock here. About fifty of the male employees of this house joined in the preparedness parade June 13.

A full attendance is looked for at the joint picnic of the Los Angeles County and the Pasadena Horticultural Societies in the Santa Monica cañon. Hal Kruckeberg will lead the Los Angeles baseball team, as usual.

A contract has been let for the building of a new citrus experiment station at Riverside, at an estimated cost of $119,500. The old site at the foot of Mount Rubidoux will be abandoned when the new one is completed. Three main buildings, residences, shops, barns and greenhouses, will be included, as well as a library and offices. The station will be under the jurisdiction of the University of California and will contain facilities for research into the plant life of the state, as well as the special work on citrus and other fruit. Work will be started at once and it is hoped that the buildings will be finished this year.

With the beautiful native vegetation running wild all around them, it is sad to see the efforts being made by the authorities to keep the wretched looking roses alive along the state and county highways. In the beautiful foothill district, especially, where the whole country is like an immense natural garden, men are engaged in chopping around the hideous fences to clear away the weeds (?), and are followed by the water cart to give a driblet to each poor, puny plant. The Los Angeles street palms have gone into limbo and will soon be forgotten. It is to be hoped that the rose trellises will soon follow; then we can forget the foolish expenditure that only made the county the laughingstock of every visitor and every thinking resident.

We are much pleased with the results of our plant advertisements in The Review; orders have come in freely and from a wide range of territory.

C. Gutting, of the Superior Nursery Co., is sending in fine stock of that excellent cut flower dahlia, Minnie Burgle.

J. Gordon, manager of Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson's store, says that business is exceptionally good with them and only two dull days are chronicled during the present month.

Murata & Co. report exceptionally heavy calls for their choice asters, gladioli and centaureas. They do a big city trade, as well as shipping to outside points.

J. Rolleri, of the California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co., says that if business keeps up at anything like the present clip they will have to move to larger quarters.

The Redondo Floral Co. has had quite a run on baskets since June 10. It was necessary to wire east for a large consignment, which arrived on time to fill the hiatus. In recognition of its personnel favoring national preparedness, the store was closed June 14, and the entire staff joined in the parade. The store was turned over to the authorities as an emergency hospital, to accommodate those in charge of the Spring street and Broadway crowds at Seventh street. Genial A. F. Borden ran a nail into his foot, but he did not allow that to restrain his youthful ardor in the least, and his military bearing was remarked on by many lining the streets. He is still a limp A. F., but is improving rapidly.

John Morley, of San Diego, was a visitor this week.

Everyone keeps busy at the store of the L. A. Floral Co. and it keeps Fred Sperry busy hunting for the better class of stock. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Business seems to have been a little spotted last week, as some of the downtown florists report unusual activity for this time of the year, while others say things are quiet. All agree, however, that funeral work has been the principal feature. Stock is plentiful and is good for the most part, although the average quality of roses and other flowers is not so good as it was a short time ago. American Beauties are neither so good nor so plentiful as they were, as the growers are preparing for the next season. Killarney is plentiful. There is an abundance of sweet peas, as well as carnations, and both are cheap, in competition with the bountiful supply of all kinds of outdoor stock, such as Shasta daisies, marguerites, mignonette, marigolds, gaillardias, coreopsis, gypsophilas, statice, stocks, etc. Gladioli show fair quality, but they are not at their prime as yet. America and Mrs. Francis King are coming in quite freely, and King Edward has made its appearance. Much cosmos is being used and good snapdragon finds a ready outlet. Some of the florists are using a good deal of Spanish broom, the bright yellow sprays being effective in the stores. In other stores a feature is made of cockscomb. Dahlias are improving rapidly. French hydrangeas are still in good supply, both cut and potted, and they maintain their popularity well. A good deal of Lilium giganteum continues in the market, but it manages to clean up fairly well. There is plenty of everything, with the exception of orchids. These are really scarce, but a better supply is expected in about two weeks. A few nice gigas can be seen and there are some phalænopsis, but cattleyas are at a premium.

Various Notes.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is bringing in a fair cut of American Beauty roses and reports a good shipping business both in roses and carnations.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has had splendid success with French hydrangeas this season and still is bringing in a good deal of potted stock.

Jack Olson, of the New Rosarie, recently handled a good-sized wedding decoration, which was rather unusual in color scheme, pink and lavender chiffon, sweet peas and white roses being used. Mr. Olson expects to go to Vallejo July 3 to decorate some of the automobiles for the big floral parade on the Fourth.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., says business gives no ground for complaint, June bidding fair to be one of the best months of the year so far. Frank Pelicano is still at the springs on account of rheumatism. He intends to remain there this time until he is entirely cured.

Vacations are in order at Joseph's, on Grant avenue. Mr. Hammersmith, designer, is away this week. B. M. Joseph, proprietor, expects to leave shortly for Lake Tahoe, probably to be gone a month, and immediately upon his return Manager F. J. Bertrand plans to get away.

Mr. Picetti, manager of the flower and seed stand in the Emporium, which is operated by Charles Navlet, of San Jose, Cal., says this has been the heaviest spring trade he ever saw. He has held several special sales of nursery stock, during which large quantities of stock were moved. Mr. Picetti plans to leave in a few days on a month's vacation. He has been on the job steadily for two years and needs one.

Podesta & Baldocchi made several elaborate pieces for the funeral of Mrs. Easton, a prominent resident of Burlingame, which took place June 14.

S. H. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Summer weather began in earnest last week and cut stock showed the effect of the heat. Unless used when quite fresh, many varieties were wasted. The grammar schools held graduating exercises and considerable stock was used in bouquets for the students. Counter trade fell off somewhat, due to the hot weather and the large quantities of garden flowers available. The bedding season is about finished and the growers are filling their benches with summer stock.

Nearly all the bedding stock used in the floral center was sold on clean-up day, bringing nearly standard prices. Public and press express their satisfaction with the work of the florists in establishing the floral center.

DISEASE ON TOMATO LEAVES.

We are sending a sample leaf from one of our Bonny Best tomato plants. The disease that affects these leaves seems to spread more on hot days than on cloudy days. Please tell us what the trouble is and a remedy for it, as we have a fine crop of nearly ripe tomatoes coming on. There are from five to ten set, with six to nine tomatoes on each. These are from one-half inch to four inches in diameter, some of them getting pink. With two weeks of good, sunny weather we can pick a fine crop.

K. F. C.—Wash.

For this fungoid affection I would give the plants a thorough spraying with either Bordeaux mixture or Fungine. Maintain a dry atmosphere in the house at all times, and if you can use a little fire, especially on damp days, all the better. Some sulphur painted on the steam pipes where heat is used will be helpful. Cut away part of the leaves to half their length if the foliage is crowded. C. W.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE SEED TRADE CONVENTION.

In Session at Chicago.

The goodly attendance, numbering over 100, at the opening of the thirty-fourth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association was notable as being highly representative. From Marblehead, Mass., to San Francisco, Cal., and from the gulf to Manitoba they foregathered in the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 20. It is a business convention and no time was spent on preliminaries. The meeting was called to order by President Lupton, who introduced J. C. Vaughan, of Chicago. Mr. Vaughan delivered an address of welcome which was received with enthusiasm. The president then called on F. W. Bolgiano, of Washington, the second vice-president. Mr. Bolgiano addressed himself primarily to the Chicago seedsmen. In his opening remarks he said: "The last time we were here you almost blew us away with your winds—now we get the cold shoulder from your climate."

Following Mr. Bolgiano's talk the president read his address to the association. The reading was accorded the closest attention and on motion a committee consisting of J. C. Vaughan, of Chicago; S. F. Willard, Wethersfield, Conn.; C. C. Massie, Minneapolis, Minn., and H. M. Earl, Philadelphia, was appointed to consider the recommendations embodied in the president's address.

J. C. Robinson, of Waterloo, Neb., was nominated by F. W. Bolgiano to fill the vacancy in the membership committee caused by the death of Albert McCullough. Mr. Robinson tried to pass the nomination to S. F. Willard, but the latter refused to accept it, and on motion the rules were suspended and Secretary Kendel cast a ballot electing Mr. Robinson. Then followed the report of the secretary-treasurer. Acting on the suggestion of the secretary, the president appointed the following to act as an auditing committee: S. F. Leonard, of Chicago; W. S. Woodruff, of Orange, Conn., and Burnet Landreth, Jr., of Bristol, Pa.

In the absence of W. F. Therkildson, chairman of the committee on postal laws, E. C. Dungan, of Philadelphia, reported on work done by that committee during the year.

The Disclaimer.

By an almost unanimous vote it was decided to support the use of the disclaimer as urged in the president's address. The use of any modification of the established form, as sanctioned by the association, was strongly discountenanced.

Resolutions Adopted.

A resolution was adopted supporting all reasonable seed legislation, but insisting that such legislation shall be both workable and universally applicable, considering neither the merchant nor the producing farmer as above the law.

John M. Lupton.
(President American Seed Trade Association.)

A resolution expressed the members' satisfaction with the gain made by the cental system during the year and recommended it for universal use.

Action was taken to retain Curtis Nye Smith, of Boston, Mass., as counsel for the association.

The Association's Year.

C. E. Kendel, secretary and treasurer, reported on the business year as follows:

Condron Bros., Rockford, Ill.
Martin C. Ribsam, Trenton, N. J.
Zach Davis Co., Delaware, O.
M. J. Yopp Seed Co., Paducah, Ky.
Black Seed Co., Albert Lea, Minn.
A. A. Talbott, Keokuk, Ia.

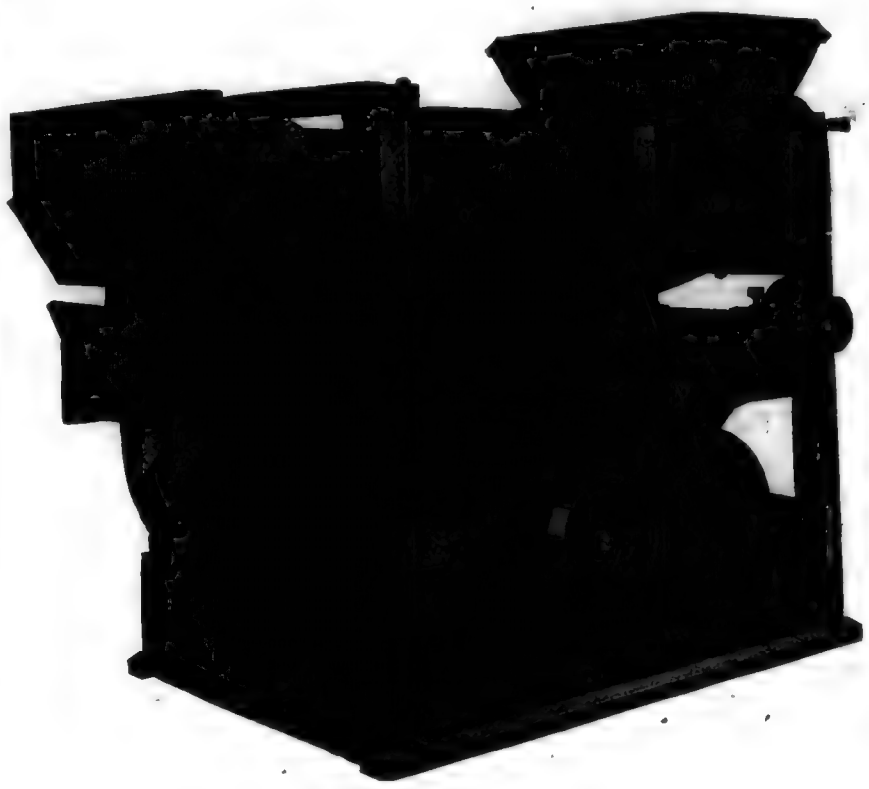
Social Features.

While the men were wrestling with great problems during the afternoon of June 21, the ladies were invited by the Chicago seedsmen for an automobile ride. The route taken was along the north shore, with a stop at the Moraine hotel in Highland Park for tea.

The president's reception on the evening of June 20 was a most enjoyable affair.

The annual banquet was held at the Sherman during the evening of June 21.

Corn in the Northwest.



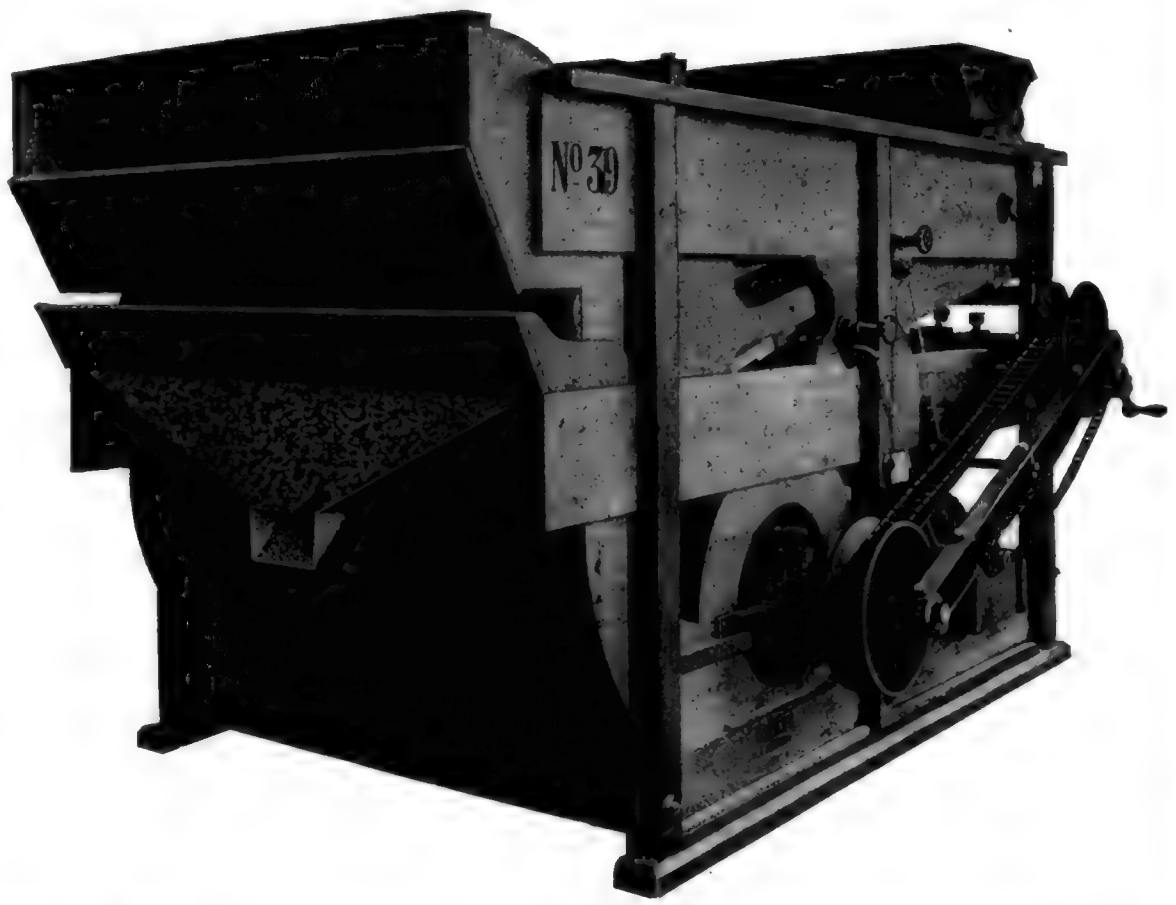
A. K. Bush, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, presented a paper discussing the evolution of corn growing in the northwest. "The pioneers of fifty years ago found in the great northwest only the small eared, eight to twelve row Flint corns," said Mr. Bush. "The Dent corns for the north were introduced in the early seventies. Pride of the North, a variety which is still standard, was originated by H. G. Goddard, of Fort Atkinson, Ia. In 1876 Mr. Goddard sold his crop of seed corn to the Hiram Sibley Seed Co., of Chicago, this company giving it its name. This has formed the foundation stock for a great many of the present northern corns.

"The first White Dent corn grown in the north was introduced by Northrup, Braslan, Goodwin Co. in 1888. From this variety has been bred a considerable number of White Dent strains for northern growing.

"Statistics of 1879 show the area devoted to corn in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and Montana as a trifle over a half million acres. In less than thirty-five years the acreage in these four states has been increased more than ten fold."

The "CLIPPER" CLEANERS

Successfully Handle All Kinds of FLOWER, GARDEN and FIELD SEEDS



IF you are interested in a machine for screening and grading any kind of seeds, grain, beans, peas or bulbs, you might do well to investigate our claims in regard to our machines.

The Clipper Cleaners are used by all the large seedsmen in the United States, also in many foreign countries.

The No. 39 Cleaner, shown herewith, is equipped with our new Variable Air Regulator. A perfectly uniform air blast, absolutely under control and entirely free from fluctuation, is one of the most essential and important considerations in cleaning seeds and grains.

Different kinds of seeds and grains, and different conditions of the seeds or grains, call for varying strength of the air blast used in separating the dust, chaff and light, shrunken seeds or grain from the heavy, perfect seeds and grain. The Clipper Variable Air Regulator gives exact control of the air blast at every desired point. "From a zephyr to a hurricane" (and every intermediate point between) exactly describes the range of air blast that can be secured by this mechanical device. We can produce a blast strong enough to blow out the heaviest grain, or peas or beans, and by an adjustment requiring but an instant reduce the blast sufficient for handling the lightest seeds, such as timothy, red top or blue grass.

A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, W. S., Mich.

Mr. Bush then described cultural methods and instanced results that had come under his observation. "Now, what does this indicate? First, that good seed has much to do with the yield and, second, that by proper care of the land, combined with good seed, larger and better crops can be raised, thus increasing land values.

"Southern grown seed corn, regardless of variety or its earliness in the south, is quite sure to disappoint northwestern planters. For example, corn raised in the middle tier of counties in Iowa will not give satisfactory results in the latitude of Minneapolis. Also southern Iowa grown corn can not be depended upon to mature anywhere in Minnesota. Seed corn from the north,

PRESIDENT LUPTON'S ADDRESS.

[In opening the Chicago convention June 20 President F. M. Lupton spoke in part as follows.]

If the earlier years of this association did nothing else, they certainly promoted a spirit of good fellowship throughout the trade, without which all efforts at coöperation in any line must fail and which in itself has laid a good foundation for the more serious work which in recent years it has been called upon to do.

The Seed Trade Association today has a mission. It is not merely protective, but constructive as well. We need no protection beyond that which justice and equity ought to provide, but justice and equity may be obscured through misunderstanding; therefore we find a united work on the part of the whole seed trade necessary to secure them, and there never was a time in the history of the seed trade when coöperation has been more urgently needed, not only because of its protective features, but to promote those higher business ideals for which this association avowedly stands.

A business convention seems to be in order at the present time, one which will strengthen the bond which binds the trade together through the medium of this association, and I am free to confess that I feel my responsibility. My experience in the seed business has been that of a grower only; my problems those of the field, rather than those of the office. While fully mindful of the honor conferred by election to the highest place within the power of this association to bestow, I am conscious of a lack of knowledge of the retail business, which must be made up by the hearty coöperation of those more familiar with it, if we are to work out the problems before us for the greatest benefit of the seed trade.

Seed Legislation.

I shall refer only to the general subject of legislation, as our counsel and legislative committee will later on treat of the specific legislation of the year. If seed legislation is honestly intended to better seed standards, to get rid of impurities, and result in the production of better seeds for the benefit of the farmers of the country, there are no seedsmen, so far as I know, but would be glad to see that result accomplished, with absolute honesty of purpose on the part of all concerned. It would only remain for us to seek out the most practical way of accomplishing that most desirable result. But all of the seed legislation of which I have knowledge seems to be predicated upon the assumption that a merchant is always the responsible party. The term "adulterated seeds" is not used to imply that the seeds have actually been adulterated, and that the seeds of weeds, the presence of which are forbidden by legislative mandate, have really been mixed in to make weight. As a matter of fact, we all know and nobody will deny, that the weeds grow in the fields with the crop from which the seed is harvested, that the weed seeds are harvested with the good seed, and that we are depending on some machine to separate the weed seeds from the good seed until it reaches the standard set by our several state legislatures.

Why Not Go to the Fields?

Now, if the activities of government are to be invoked in an honest effort to make seeds better, why not go to

New Early Flowering Giant Pansies

Or Winter Blooming

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the Summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations. 500 seeds 50c., 1000 seeds $1.00, ⅛ oz. $2.00, ¼ oz. $3.75, 1 oz. $15.00

For list and price of other Kenilworth Pansy Seed see my ad of June 15.

FREE OFFER RAINBOW is a mixture of the most beautiful, gorgeous colors, blotched, striped, veined, margined, etc. With every $1.00 worth of Pansy seed I will send, free, 1000 seeds of Rainbow and with other amounts in like proportion.

the fields? I am inclined to believe that the weeds can be taken from a growing field of grass seed with more certainty, while it is growing, than we can expect to attain in removing the seeds by means of cleaning machinery, after they have been harvested, and if the field is so full of weeds that they cannot be removed without excessive cost, the product should not be saved for seed.

We may perhaps assume that our lawmakers are actuated only by a desire to prevent the spread of noxious weeds, a desire well worthy of our active support, but the attempt to exempt farmers from the operation of all such statutes may go far to defeat the real purpose of the statute itself.

I believe that an inspection of the growing fields by competent authority, the certification by such authority of those fields found suitable for seed purposes, and the condemnation of such fields as contain too many of those plants which we are trying to guard against, would be the most practical way in which the resources of government could be employed to improve seeds.

Seeds by the Pound.

At the meeting of the executive committee held in New York January 7 the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association, in annual meeting assembled, recommends to the association, that beginning with January 1, 1917, this association and its members use the cental system exclusively by offering all grass, clover, garden and field seeds, potatoes and onion sets by the pound and hundred pounds, and abolishing the listing or trading in quarts, pecks or bushels.

This subject is one which has been discussed from time to time, but up to the present I know of no definite action being taken. I bring this resolution to your attention with the recommendation that such action be taken as would seem most likely to result in the final adoption of the cental system as a standard of this association.

The Disclaimer.

During the last year conditions have arisen in connection with the use of the disclaimer which call for most careful consideration of the whole subject by this convention. I feel that I may not content myself with the mere recommendation for the continued use of the disclaimer, but that the whole situation should be thoroughly gone into at this session. I think I may assume that the circumstances which have led to the present situation are fairly well understood by the members of this association and that it is unnecessary for me at this time to go into them in detail. The passage of a seed law in the state of Wisconsin, the effort, and eventual success of the canners of that state, in securing growing contracts, with the disclaimer clause stricken out, seems to have led, or at least seems likely to lead, to an organized effort to destroy the efficiency of the established custom of the trade, in marketing goods under the conditions named in the disclaimer, which are generally regarded by seedsmen as essential to their protection.

An informal conference was called March 2, and a number of seedsmen met in this city, at which time the situation was carefully discussed and resolutions passed, but this action, which was intended to meet what seemed to be a pressing emergency, was not and could not be made the action of this association.

The past is behind us, the future is before us. We are at present concerned in seeking a solution of the problem which will preserve the terms of sale under the disclaimer as an established custom of the trade in its dealings with the public, for such a custom must be maintained or the disclaimer is of no value.

Now, in looking over the terms of sale made by the trade, as they appear in catalogues and elsewhere, this custom seems to be well established, but it is used in a great variety of ways; on the letter-heads it sometimes appears at the top of the page, sometimes below the business heading, sometimes at the bottom, and sometimes not at all; in the catalogues it is generally used, but usually in connection with other matter intended to explain its use, which in some instances seems to assume a rather apologetic tone. There seems to be no clearly defined rule governing its use and from the manner of its use by some dealers I should say they were a little apprehensive as to its effect upon the buying public.

I recommend that this convention formulate a set of rules governing the use of the disclaimer; that it define clearly any class of trade in which its omission would not affect its value to the trade as an established custom, and that these rules, with an explanation of their necessity, and an urgent request for their adoption be sent to all members of this association.

Trade-marking Members.

All presidents who have come and gone before me have expressed a hope that this association might be made stronger. It is of course obvious that any benefit which may result from its work must benefit all dealers in seeds and can in no way be confined to our own membership. I believe that this association stands for a square deal and that the fact of membership if placed before the public might have an influence of value. An idea occurs to me in this connection which may be worth considering, and in order that it may have such consideration I recommend that a trade-mark be adopted which all members in good standing may use to indicate their membership to the general public. This custom obtains in many similar bodies and has to my knowledge been beneficial, particularly among those whose patronage is largely found among farmers.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

NEXT week's A. A. N. meeting at Milwaukee promises to be the most interesting in the history of the organization.

THE U. S. Department of Agriculture recently issued Bulletin No. 742, "The White Pine Blister Rust," of interest to nurserymen who have had trouble because of this disease.

THE National Apple Growers' Association, the first of its kind in the United States, which was formed at a meeting at the Planters' hotel, St. Louis, June 6, will hold its first annual convention at St. Louis, August 2 and 3. The purpose of the association is to prevent some markets from being flooded with apples, while others do not have enough. Among those at the meeting were: P. C. Stark, of the Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., Louisiana, Mo.; Prof. H. C. Irish, president of the Missouri State Horticultural Society; William Perrine, president of the Illinois State Horticultural Society; H. M. Dunlap, of Savoy, Ill.; R. A. Simpson, of Vincennes, Ind.; F. H. Simpson, of Flora, Ill.; J. M. Tanner, of Flora, Ill.

PLANTS VIA ROTTERDAM.

Only 325 cases of plants arrived last week at New York on board the Holland-America steamer Ryndam, from Rotterdam. The shipment was unusually small, considering the fact that arrivals from Holland have been few and far between and that it probably marks the close of the season. The consignees of the Ryndam cargo, according to the New York customhouse papers, were as follows:

Downing & Co., 39 cases plants.
P. C. Kuyper & Co., 9 cases plants; 2 cases trees.
R. F. Lang, 5 cases plants.
H. Langeler, 19 cases plants; 2 cases bulbs.
Loechner & Co., 71 cases plants.
Lunham & Moore, 77 cases plants.
McHutchison & Co., 80 cases plants.
Maltus & Ware, 25 cases plants.

PLANTING BY MACHINERY.

A machine which plants from 10,000 to 15,000 forest tree seedlings a day is being used at the Letchworth Park forest and arboretum, in Wyoming county, N. Y. Previously the planting has been done by hand at the rate of 1,200 to 1,500 trees each day per man.

The machine was designed to set out cabbage and tomato plants, but works equally well with treees. It is about the size of an ordinary mowing machine and is operated by three men and two horses. One man drives the team while the other two handle the seedlings. The machine makes a furrow, in which the trees are set at any desired distance, and an automatic device indicates where they should be dropped. Two metal-tired wheels push and roll the soil firmly down around the roots. This is a desirable feature, it is said, because the seedlings are apt to die if this is not well done. Two attachments make it possible to place water and fertilizer at the roots of each seedling. Another attachment marks the line on which the next row of trees is to be planted.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Incessant rains are our chief trouble at present. Vegetation is flourishing. The bulk of the planting-out work is finished.

The Civic and Commerce Commission has decided to place another 100 window boxes to add to the city's handsome appearance. The New York daily papers are commending the hanging gardens of Minneapolis. It is a fine boost for the trade and it surely would pay florists in other cities to take up the matter of embellishing their home towns.

The Franklin Gardens, at Sixtieth and Lyndale avenues, have a magnificent show of herbaceous plants and cut flowers. This concern specializes in pyrethrums, irises, peonies, delphiniums, roses and other stock. The sweet peas are exceptionally good, considering the poor climatic conditions.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. has planted a good grade of asters in its greenhouses. Funeral and wedding work was heavy last week.

The Hiawatha Gardens Co. has a fine lot of young chrysanthemums. This company makes a specialty of ferns and I saw several houses of Bostons in fine condition. An increase in business is reported. A good deal of space is devoted to young poinsettias.

Wm. F. Holmes had a pretty window display last week. Many little lace ferns, tied with dainty pink tulle bows, made a fine display. Artistically arranged baskets were set off by a background of ferns and palms. Business is reported good.

The Lake View, a new store recently opened and operated by Geanokaplos Bros., has a splendid flower department.

A short distance from the Lake View A. Abdallah is working up a steady trade in cut flowers and plants. He carries a good assortment of stock and has a good trade in funeral and corsage work.

John Martens, at Lake street and Bloomington avenue, has a fine display of baby rambler roses, geraniums and double marguerites. He has been busy with wedding and funeral orders.

The West Floral Co. cleared most of its stock and now is preparing to plant the autumn stock. Spring trade here has been the best ever.

make a specialty of freesias, which he has already handled with good success.

The supply of stock last week, although short, was sufficient for the demand. The rainy weather curtailed the sale of cut flowers somewhat. Lilies sold at $6 to $9 per hundred; maidenhair ferns, $1 to $1.25 per hundred; roses, $4 to $6 per hundred; carnations, $2.50 per hundred for the best. The supply of peonies is becoming heavier daily.

The Sunshine Florist had an artistically decorated window last week. Large masses of deep pink peonies were used. Baskets of gladioli, sweet peas, daisies, roses and carnations were used to good effect.

Miss H. B. Whitted is as busy as ever. One may be sure of seeing something special in the way of novelties when entering the Whitted store.

The New York Florists are doing a large business in potted plants and cut stock.

The Florist Shop is busy taking orders for window boxes and outdoor decorations. This store is always attractive in appearance. F. E. B.

Wichita, Kan.—Alex Marquardt, of Marshalltown, Ia., has been made general foreman of the Charles P. Mueller greenhouses.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Business showed no marked improvement during the last week. At the beginning of the week stock was somewhat on the short side, especially roses, but later these began to arrive more heavily and the receipts have not stopped. Beauties are plentiful and of good quality, taking the weather and the lateness of the season into consideration. Yellow roses still are in great demand and Ophelia enjoys a ready sale. Both White Killarney and Killarney have been clearing. Carnations are beginning to accumulate. Although the demand for them is brisk, the supply is too large.

Valley, as usual, continues to cling to the short side. The continual dark weather has played havoc with the sweet peas. It seems as if their end is near. Lilies are sufficient for all demands. Yellow daisies are selling without any difficulty, while snapdragons, centaureas and calendulas meet with a fair demand. Gardenias have been out of the question entirely.

Peonies are more than plentiful; their quality is much better than last week. The peony season is prolonged this year. Many are used in funeral work, especially the whites. Good Asparagus plumosus is rather scarce; so, too, are good ferns. The Sprengeri condition is similar to that of plumosus.

Various Notes.

Werner Bultmann, of 151 James street, Syracuse, N. Y., was a visitor here last week, as well as S. D. Greene, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

Nearly every florist in the city worked late Saturday night and all of them labored Sunday morning preparing pieces for the funeral of William F. Kasting.

Wedding orders booked by W. J. Palmer & Son have been more numerous than in any preceding year.

The death of William F. Kasting, recorded in this week's obituary column, caused deep sorrow throughout the city, for Mr. Kasting was a leading spirit in many activities other than those of the trade. Rarely, if ever, has a funeral in Buffalo brought such an outpouring of citizens or such a gathering of notable men. The funeral flowers were wonderful. A. E.

AMHERST, MASS.

The department of floriculture of the Massachusetts Agricultural College is closing its work for the college year and has been able to place fourteen men for summer work. Prof. A. H. Nehrling, head of the department, is to be married June 29, at South Bend, Ind. The couple will go to Colorado on their wedding trip. A. S. Thurston, assistant in the department, is to teach floriculture in the courses to be given in the summer school.

Under the direction of A. S. Thurston, the perennial garden has been enlarged and quite a number of new plants have been added. The garden at present includes a representative collection of herbaceous perennials. It contains about 3,000 plants, representing 450 species and varieties. The perennials are planted in large beds, each genus and species being correctly labeled.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

FIVE YEARS AGO we offered you Pocahontas, with the assurance that it would soon displace all other crimsons. Some of you bought it and were glad. Others turned it down and later on regretted having done so. That is why the demand for the cuttings was fully double the supply this past winter. This is not meant for a complaint, but merely to caution you not to make the same mistake with Merry Christmas. We believe that Merry Christmas will take the same place among scarlets that Pocahontas holds among the crimsons. If you have confidence in our judgment, send us your order now and get in on the early deliveries. Dissemination begins next December.

ST. PAUL.

The Market.

The retailers continue busy. School graduations take their usual quantities of flowers, and many weddings, both large and small, are booked for this month. Several of the stores have had some large decorations, both in and out of the city. Roses and carnations continue scarce and of poor quality, owing to the cool, cloudy weather. Outside flowers, such as peonies, irises, etc., are arriving and the cool weather is prolonging the blooming period and hardening the flowers. The demand for these is good. The planting season is about completed and most growers report a good, big season, with their stock well disposed of.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the St. Paul Florists' Club was held at O. R. Eckhardt's, June 13. The picnic in conjunction with the Minnesota State Florists' Association and the Minneapolis Florists' Club was discussed and a committee was appointed to attend the meeting of the Minnesota State Florists' Association at Holm & Olson's, June 22, when a Minneapolis delegation would also be on hand. The program for this meeting includes a stereopticon lecture on "The Minneapolis Park System," by Theodore Wirth, of Minneapolis, and an address on "Outdoor Rose Culture," by Ernest Meyers.

Among recent visitors were Frank M. Johnson and Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and A. Miller, of Henderson & Co., Chicago.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Business conditions last week were an improvement over those of the week previous. Cloudy weather shortened the supply and many school commencements created a good demand for stock. Prices, owing to the increased demand, have advanced a little and everything is more satisfactory.

There were quantities of cold storage peonies offered and, while many were sold, many were to be had at the close of the Saturday's business. Roses, on account of replantings, decreased in supply. Long-stemmed stock moved well and even shorts sold better than usual. Sweet peas generally sold well, but lavender was hard to move. Lilies are moving well. Some Lilium candidum blooms are coming from outdoors, but they are being sold cheaply. The first outdoor phloxes were in the market last week. Carnations are coming in satisfactorily, which is attributed to the cool weather that has prevailed. They have been selling well. Rambler rose sprays have been in good demand, but the local supply is somewhat limited as yet.

Various Notes.

Edwin A. Seidewitz, monarch of the local lodge, is attending the convention of the Mystic Order Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm, which is being held in Detroit, Mich.

The excessive rainfall of last week put almost a complete stop to outdoor planting, many places being covered with water at times. The R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. reports some damage to its White Marsh dahlia farm. The plants were beaten down by the rain and in some instances whole rows of plants were washed out. The company reports a good spring trade.

George M. Cook has discontinued attending the markets, having cleared his entire stock of bedding plants.

Patrick Doyle, of Westminster, Md., and I. Rosnosky, of Philadelphia, were in town last week. W. F. E.

Lancaster, Pa.—A bench of pure white begonias is a sight that attracts many visitors to the establishment of J. P. Siebold. It is presumed to be a sport of B. magnifica and appeared two years ago. So much praise has been given the variety that Mr. Siebold plans to put it on the market in a short time. Mr. Siebold for many years has taken special interest in begonias and the bench of the new white has been Mrs. Siebold's special pride, her care of it being no less solicitous than that of her husband.

NEPHROLEPIS JOHN WANAMAKER
"The Wanamaker Boston Fern"
A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzeli, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzeli, and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis.
2¼-inch pots.....$8 per 100; $75 per 1000
4 -in pots, very heavy plants.....$25 per 100; $200 per 1000
6 -in. pots, very heavy plants.....$6 per doz.; $45 per 100
6 -in. pots, extra heavy plants.....$9 per doz.; $70 per 100
8-in. pots.....$12 and $15 per doz.
11-in. tubs.....$2.50 and $3 each

NEPH. TEDDY, JR., SPORT
We think very well of this fern, it having all the good qualities of its parent, Teddy, Jr. The fronds are of darker green and more undulated.
2¼-in. pots.....$8 per 100; $75 per 1000
4 -in. pots.....$25 per 100; $200 per 1000

NEPH. BOSTONIENSIS DWARF
This is a dwarf form of the old Boston Fern, same character form and graceful habit.
2¼-in. pots.....$8 per 100; $75 per 1000

NEPHROLEPIS ELEGANTISSIMA IMPROVED
This variety is a greatly improved Elegantissima and shows no tendency to revert to the Boston. This will prove a valuable addition to the crested varieties.
2¼-in. pots.....$6 per 100; $50 per 1000
4 -in. pots.....$20 per 100
6 -in pots.....$6 and $9 per doz.
8 -in. pots.....$12 and $15 per doz.
Larger plants.....$2, $2.50, $3 and $3.50 each

NEPHROLEPIS TODEAOIDES
London Fern. A good, strong grower.
2¼-in. pots.....$5 per 100; $45 per 1000
4 -in. pots.....$20 per 100; $180 per 1000
6 -in. pots.....$6 and $9 per doz.
8 -in. pots.....$12 per doz.
9-in. and 10-in. tubs....$24, $30 and $36 per doz.

NEPHROLEPIS SMITHII
The greatly improved Amerpohlii. It is a compact form, much finer than Amerpohlii, and does not break down in the center. The fronds are carried on wiry stems. This variety will have a wonderful sale up to a 6-inch pot, being particularly showy for basket work.
2¼-in. pots.....$8 per 100; $75 per 1000
4 -in. pots.....$25 per 100

NEPHROLEPIS BOSTONIENSIS Wm. K. Harris
The finest variety for large plants, being a great improvement over the old Boston.
2¼-in. pots.....$6 per 100; $50 per 1000
4 -in. pots.....$20 per 100; $180 per 1000

SNAPDRAGON FIRST

¶In these days of political excitement at home and the hellish destruction of life and property abroad, we are apt to forget some important matters. A most important matter to every florist is Snapdragon, and right now is the time to sow seed of the good ones for winter blooms. Put Snapdragon first and figure your requirements TODAY.

Snapdragon is our one business. No better seeds can be produced. Each variety grown for seed is kept under glass in separate houses. We offer pure seed as follows: Our original Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Phelps' White, Yellow, Garnet, Buxton and fancy mixed, at 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00. Free cultural directions. All orders cash.

¶We have hundreds of repeat orders for seed of our famous Silver Pink, and letters of praise reach us every day. It is the greatest and most productive Snapdragon in existence.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

FIVE POUNDS OF PRESSURE.

We are building a new greenhouse and should like to get your advice in regard to heating it. The house will be 32x170, running north and south. It will have thirty-six inches of glass in the sides, with two and one-half feet of concrete wall in the sides and ends. The gables will be of glass and will be exposed. The roof pitch will be 26½ degrees. The house will contain four benches. The temperature desired is 50 degrees. The lowest outside temperature is about 5 degrees below zero. The steam pressure will be five pounds. Please state how many 1¼-inch pipes will be required to heat this house. If one flow pipe is used, what size should it be? If two are used, what should be their size? W. H. K.—Pa.

With five pounds of pressure, the house can be heated by using one 2½-inch or two 2-inch overhead flows, and ten 1¼-inch returns. In case overhead or wall flows are not desired, we would start the coils at the boiler end of the house and use six 1¼-inch pipes upon each wall, with the bottom pipe in each arranged to answer as a return for the drip water, if it is sufficiently above the water level to drain quickly; otherwise an additional pipe should be provided as a return pipe for each coil.

In case bottom heat is desired for the benches, we would advise the use of an overhead flow pipe, which would facilitate the distribution of the returns.

BETTER USE OVERHEAD FLOWS.

Will you give me some advice about the piping of my greenhouse, which is 30x100? The height to the gutters is six feet; to the ridge, sixteen feet. To heat this house I have a 25-horsepower Kewanee horizontal tubular boiler, which stands under the greenhouse. The top of the boiler is level with the greenhouse floor. The firebox is in the shed; so the boiler extends fourteen feet under the greenhouse. There are

WHEN YOU BUY—GET A KROESCHELL
"THE BOILER OF UNEQUALED FUEL ECONOMY"
BUY DIRECT—FACTORY TO USER PRICES

The Kroeschell is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

13,468,320 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years.

The Kroeschell is used by hundreds of Florists' Review readers and mighty is their praise. The year of 1915 brought an enormous number of new customers who saw our boilers in operation at other places. We attribute the large sales of this season to the good work the Kroeschell Boiler is doing everywhere.

With our policy—"the customers' interest first"—perfection of construction—factory to user prices—honest and "true blue" boiler ratings—you simply cannot lose.

READ WHAT THE USERS SAY:

A Heating Record at 52° Below Zero

Has the Kroeschell given entire satisfaction? Yes! Perfect. Our winter temperature ranges as low as 45° below zero. Last winter we had six weeks of steady cold. The maximum temperature at noon 12° below, the minimum temperature at 4 a. m. 52° below zero. This was a good test of the heating capacity of a Kroeschell. PUBLIC PARK BOARD, Winnipeg, Man.

READ WHAT THE USERS SAY:

The Kroeschell Is Better than Cast Iron

In 1911 I purchased a No. 1 Kroeschell Boiler for my uptown greenhouses. At my other range we had a cast iron sectional boiler. In two years we cracked two sections. That experience was enough for me. This year I thought I would not take any more chances, so we have just installed another No. 5 Kroeschell Boiler. I believe if the Kroeschell Boilers were known to all, they would use no other.

four benches in the house. I intend to put two 2-inch pipes—that is, one flow and one return—under each bench. This will make, in all, eight lines of 2-inch pipes.

I want the expansion tank to be placed in the upper story of the boiler shed, which is about fourteen feet above the main return. I want a night temperature of about 50 degrees. The outside temperature never drops below zero. The outlet of the boiler is 4-inch, but I would reduce the main flow about eight feet from the boiler. Please let me know what you think of my plan. C. E. M.—Ore.

Although nothing is said about glass in the walls, from the fact that they are six feet in height it would seem that there must be at least three feet of glass in one wall and preferably in each side wall, as well as probably in one end below the level of the plate or gutter.

The statement regarding the outside temperature is also rather indefinite. It is stated that it never drops below zero. If it goes as low as zero three or four times each year, it will be advisable to provide for a zero temperature, while if 10 degrees above zero is the usual minimum temperature, considerably less piping will answer. Even with an outside temperature of 10 degrees above zero, we would not care to risk the house with less than ten 2-inch pipes, and for zero twelve should be used. This will make it possible to place two pipes on each side wall of the house. In case there is glass in the walls, an additional return should be provided for each three feet of glass.

While the arrangement of pipes suggested may be used to good advantage, we would prefer to run a 2½-inch flow pipe upon each plate and another five or six feet below the ridge, with seven to nine 2-inch returns. Of these, two might be upon each wall, or under the side benches, and the others under the middle benches. If it is preferred to use 2-inch pipe, we would place the flows on the plates and overhead, and connect two returns to each flow. Run the flow pipes downhill and connect the expansion tank with the highest part of the system.

The Market.

The weather was exceptionally wet last week. The downfall of rain was continuous, retarding outdoor work entirely and enforcing idleness when there was plenty of work to do. The weather did not affect the supply of stock to any appreciable extent, and the cut of both roses and carnations was more than equal to the demand. Carnations are exceptionally fine at this time and the prices are somewhat low. The supply is not great enough to cause either bargain sales or a glut of stock. Roses are of unusually good quality and are having a good sale. Shorter stock, of course, is in the greatest demand, but long, fancy stock is moving well.

Sweet peas are deteriorating. This is especially noticeable in the length of stem, which is shortening and hindering sales to a great extent. Valley is scarce and the quality is only medium. It is hard to supply the demand with first-class stock and, considering the June weddings, this works quite a hardship.

Greens are becoming more plentiful and are in fine shape. Adiantum is exceptionally fine and in great demand. Business in general has been good and the late spring has helped the sale of stock tremendously. Quite a few orchids are being used and some fine stock is to be had every day.

Various Notes.

Graduation exercises at the Milwaukee Downer College brought several days of strenuous work to the florists. A large number of flowers were used and corsages were purchased by the score.

Robert Baerman, who was injured in an automobile accident June 10 while returning from a dance, is reported to have fully recovered.

June 6 saw another visit of the stork to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lietz. This is the fifth time the stork has appeared. This time it was a bouncing baby boy.

The annual picnic given by the Holton & Hunkel Co. for its employees will take place at Ehlert's grove, Brown Deer, Wis., Sunday, June 25.

The Market.

Business was exceedingly lively last week on account of the numerous weddings and commencement exercises. Funeral work also was plentiful last week and utilized a good quantity of stock. Stock of all kinds is plentiful, but there has been no oversupply, as the demand is fully equal to the receipts. There is a fair supply of American Beauties and the demand is better for these than it has been for some time. Other roses are abundant, especially Ophelia, Sunburst, Ward, Shawyer and the Killarneys. The supply of Russell and Kaiserin is not so large. Cecile Brunner, George Elger and Sweetheart roses are in good demand for corsage work, and these varieties are moderately plentiful. Carnations are excessively plentiful, but of good quality on account of the cool weather. The demand for them is not extra good. Peonies are in large supply and may be said to dominate the market at present. Many of these are used in decorations for church and home weddings. Syringa, which has been used extensively in decorative work, is about gone. Orchids and valley are meeting with a fine call for wedding work and are equal to the demand. Prices are good. Sweet peas are plentiful and the Spencers meet with a good demand. Easter lilies are in good supply. Snapdragons are almost gone. The supply of gladioli is increasing. Many outdoor perennials are coming into bloom. Candidum lilies are appearing in the market, as well as larkspurs. Irises are favorites at present. Greens are in fair supply, and experienced a good demand.

Various Notes.

Miss Helen Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., spent the week end in this city, the guest of relatives. Miss Patten reports business as being exceedingly active. She is planning a trip to the Pacific coast.

Mrs. Aaron Shive, of the Flick Floral Co., and Miss Mildred Flick, executed an elaborate wedding decoration for the Dugan wedding at Decatur, June 17. Syringas and peonies were used in tall wicker vases, while huckleberry foliage was used to good effect in the spacious rooms. R. F.

Make Customers Successful with Your Plants —

Your customers buy potted plants. Often they wither and die and you are blamed for the failure. It's simply because plant food is lacking. Your customers don't want fertilizers with offensive odors. They need Odorless Fertilo that does not mar the fragrance of the flowers. Just the material for Lawns, Flowers, Shrubs and Small Gardens. You can sell several cans of Odorless Fertilo to each customer who buys potted plants and several bags to those with gardens. Make them more successful and they will become flower enthusiasts.

FERTILO is nature's pure plant food and combines all the essential elements required by plant life: Ammonia, Phosphoric Acid, Bone, Phosphate of Lime and Potash. Makes the necessary Humus for enriching the soil and is also an excellent Insecticide.

FERTILO is odorless, will not get hard and lumpy. Put up in handy containers in 1 and 5-lb. sizes, and in 10 and 80-lb. bags. The 1-lb. package will fertilize 10 gallons of earth for potted plants or 50 sq. ft. of surface. Retails for 25c. Full and simple directions printed on each package.

Florists, truckers and landscape gardeners recommend Odorless Fertilo.

Send us 6c in stamps to cover postage and we will send you free sample of the 1-lb. package, together with full particulars, and quote you our liberal terms to florists.

The Market.

The supply of stock is heavy, while business is good only in spurts. The only real demand we have now is that occasioned by weddings and funeral work. Shipping business, however, is good.

Roses are plentiful and the supply of carnations is large. A good cut of gladioli is coming into the market. Easter lilies continue plentiful. Lily of the valley and orchids are meeting with a strong demand. The first Shasta daisies of the season came in last week. Larkspurs may be had. Other offerings include irises, sweet peas, callas, water lilies and coreopsis. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Gustave Adrian, Jr., and Miss Cora Pherson, who was associated with the late William Murphy for several years, stole a march on their friends. June 17 they were secretly married by Rev. Gervaise Roughton and left for a two months' honeymoon at the cottage of Gustave Adrian, Sr., at the Chenaux islands.

C. E. Critchell has been getting some excellent gladioli and irises from the Hoffmeister Floral Co., at Lick Run.

L. H. Kyrk received the first Shasta daisies of the season from George Klotter.

In spite of the fact that the dull season is already upon us, the business of the Wm. Murphy Co. is holding up nicely.

A night lettergram from Mr. and Mrs. Mayhall states that they arrived safely at Hotel McAlpin, New York city, after a sea voyage from Washington.

Some of the local members of the S. A. F. have endorsed Harry Beatty, of Oil City, Pa., for the unexpired term of the late William Kasting, whose sudden demise was a great shock to his friends in this city.

Recent visitors were Charles A. Moss, of Spartanburg, S. C.; Harry Treadway, of Dayton, O.; Joseph Molck, of Jeffersonville, Ind.; Samuel Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., of New York.

The Market.

Peonies are on the wane. There has been an enormous cut of choice blooms this season. Few growers are putting any in storage, anticipating a light demand when the blooming period is over. Valley and sweet peas are in strong demand and are scarce. Easter lilies are slow sellers during the peony season, as are greenhouse-grown America and Mrs. Francis King gladioli.

Various Notes.

The news of the sudden death of William F. Kasting, of Buffalo, was received here with many expressions of sorrow. He was well known and well liked in Cleveland. Herbert Bate, president of the Florists' Club; John Kirchner, Adam Graham, Herman Hart and Fred Brown attended the funeral in Buffalo.

Much interest is being shown by the florists and private gardeners in the flower show to be held in conjunction with the Chamber of Industry Exposition, to be staged in eight monster tents in Edgewater park, September 2 to 9. M. A. Vinson, who so ably carried last fall's flower show to a success, is at the head of the exposition. The sum of $500 has been set aside for prizes in the flower show tent.

The Florists' Club's picnic will be held at Willough Beach park July 19. This is the report of the committee, Frank Ritzenthaler, "Doc" Cook and Charles Graham.

The fall flower show, primarily held in order that private gardeners may again compete for the Corrigan $500 cup, probably will be staged in the new ballroom of the Hollenden hotel. A few other classes will be arranged, of which announcement will be made later.

THE SEED TRADE CONVENTION.

planted in the south, will in one year revert to the slow maturing characteristics of southern corn. Strictly dependable, northern grown seed corn from acclimated varieties is of the greatest importance to northwestern planters. To secure such stock seed, it must be gathered before freezing weather and thoroughly cured in frostproof storage during winter. The vitality of the corn is best maintained when cured in well ventilated rooms with only sufficient artificial heat to keep it from freezing.

"Yields and quality of corn have been greatly improved during recent years by the state experiment stations and seed corn breeders, but it has been demonstrated that the increase in yield does not follow in the second, third or any subsequent generation, that this work of hybridizing must be pursued each year.

"The problem which confronts the seedsman today, applied not only to corn but to many other crops, is to educate the farmer to the realization of the fact that it is economy for him to purchase frequently, if not annually, a new supply of seed, which has been carefully bred for seed purposes. By so doing he can increase his yield to an extent that the entire cost of seed will be returned to him many fold by the increased yield and quality of his crop."

State Competition.

W. D. Weedy, manager of the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., was on the program for a review of state competition in the form of sales assistance rendered farmers' associations.

"That the American Seed Trade Association is anxious to promote or cooperate in any movement that will develop and improve agriculture through the use of better seed is beyond question," said Mr. Weedy, "but to render state assistance, as many states are doing, to farmers' associations in marketing the resultant crop seeds, seems discriminating. Some of our states appropriate large sums for the printing and mailing of a "List of Seeds" (catalogue is the term the seedsmen would use), giving the names, addresses, kind of seeds and quantity for sale, thus bringing into the market without cost, or at trifling expense to the farmer, seeds in direct competition with the institutions that have large overhead expense, heavy expenditure in catalogues and huge amounts in taxes.

"With the federal government distributing seeds free and many states organizing selling departments in farmers' associations, it would almost seem that principle and right were being sacrificed for political gain."

Fair Play Advertising.

Frank B. White, an old friend, now director of the Agricultural Publishers' Association, talked for fair play in business. "There are four sides to a square deal—your side, my side, the public and the law—and when any one of these sides is not observed, you have a triangular proposition and it is not square. It is fair play to give full measure, good quality, a clean, honest service. You expect it from others. Others expect it from you. You are entitled to a just reward for your labor—a fair, legitimate profit sufficient to warrant you in giving quality, quantity and service. When you measure up to that standard in the conduct of your business, you have a right to talk about advertising and emphasize it in the strongest possible terms, keeping in mind the fact that performance is better than promise and that the best advertisement is the thing itself. A satisfied customer in any community is a living witness and exponent of your fair play dealing. A dissatisfied customer scatters poison and some of it is liable to touch where it will do you greatest damage.

"May I presume upon your interest and tell you just a few things that seem to me essential in seed advertising success? I believe that this is a strategic time for seedsmen to face this question squarely, and if you will come together and formulate your own standards of practice and publish to the world what your association stands for as regards quality and square dealing, you will be doing yourselves and your customers a great service. I mean, gentlemen, legislate for yourselves. Don't let the politicians in states and the national government run your business. Stand squarely for something as an association and insist that your members shall live up to your platform, and you will be taking a long stride forward.

"You have allowed politicians to tell you what you must do altogether too long. A body of business men such as compose this association, united upon a principle and a plan, would wield an influence in legislative halls that would make your rights respected because you would be right yourselves, if you live up to the proper standards of practice. And then, gentlemen, you would have something to advertise that people would believe in, and the seedsman who could not subscribe to your standards would find himself doing business under a handicap."

Trade Exhibits.

The A. B. Morse Co., of St. Joseph, Mich., designers, illustrators and printers of nursery and seed catalogues, had a wonderfully complete exhibit of its work, both in colors and in black and white. A. B. Morse, the head of the company, had charge of the exhibit.

An interesting exhibit was that of the Torsion Balance Co., Jersey City, N. J. The article being demonstrated was the grain test scale. Daniel Taylor, Chicago representative, was in charge.

A large and varied display that attracted much attention was that of the Brown Bag Filling Machine Co., of Fitchburg, Mass.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

KEEPING COUNT OF THE CARNATION CUT

It is hoped that this article, written by a carnation grower, will be serviceable in several ways, furnishing timely suggestions, stimulating discussion on the subject, and possibly inducing some other growers to keep more systematic records of their crops than heretofore, if such data are seen to be fully worth the effort.

WHAT are the average profits of the carnation grower? This question has been asked many times by persons who are thinking of specializing in carnations, and has usually been answered by a good or bad guess, too frequently bad, giving an exaggerated idea of the returns. I thought it would be interesting, therefore, to give accurate figures with reference to a range of glass in which carnations are produced as an exclusive crop, for the dollars and cents that are in them. Accordingly I have compiled, from the daily records, a table which shows at a glance the number of blooms produced per plant, the amount of bench space occupied and the money received from the sale of the flowers during the whole growing season under glass.

Cuttings as Well as Cut Flowers.

It should be understood that these same plants produced, besides the blooms, about 50,000 rooted cuttings, which were planted in the field, and which added to the revenue about $500 for plants sold, besides giving a good supply to refill the benches for the following year. It should be noted, also, that in compiling the table, all flowers were counted, both firsts and seconds.

In studying the table, it will be noticed that the figures for the entire twelve months of the year are supplied. However, the nine months which form the regular carnation season, the most profitable part of the carnation man's year, are treated separately in the totals and averages in the last four lines of the table. Thus special emphasis is placed on the fact that June, July and August are the "off" months, the months of poor prices. The fact is already well known, but columns of figures have a way of their own of making a fact stand out prominently.

Returns Per Plant.

The carnation crops under consideration were grown in a range of modern iron-frame greenhouses, situated in Massachusetts, and the flowers were sold in the Boston market, at wholesale only. A study of the figures will show that the average returns were 33⅓ cents per plant or 66 cents per square foot of bench space. In this connection it is important to bear in mind that the year of 1914-15 was not quite up to the standard, as business was poor, especially during the early part of the season. I find that the total of the previous year's sales was about twelve per cent higher. The carnations grown were of first-class commercial quality and compared favorably in price with the best that were brought to the market.

The chief purpose of this article, of course, is to present a clear, precise statement of the gross wholesale returns from the writer's range of glass, without giving any particular consideration to the expense side of the account. It might be well, however, just to mention the fact that the total cost of conducting the range is about $5,000 to $6,000 per year. Providing the proprietor also devotes his time to the business, it would require about four men, and $300 or $400 for extra help, to run the place, allowing nine hours for a day's work.

The Best Sellers.

As to what varieties sell best, it is advisable for the grower to inquire about this at the market where he intends to offer his flowers. In Boston the light pinks and the whites meet with the best demand. Among the light pinks, Pink Delight ranks first and is easily the best selling carnation in the Boston market, especially during the winter months and until Memorial day. Enchantress Supreme runs a close second until near Memorial day, and after that date it easily outclasses all others. This variety is more and more acceptable in the Boston market and any of the newer introductions must be top-notchers to replace it, as it is away up in yield and has few defects. For near-by sales it is preferred even now to Pink Delight, as it has the requisite size and a color which does not fade in the brightest sun or with age. As a long-distance shipper, however, Enchantress Supreme is not so good as Pink Delight and the wholesale florists prefer the latter for this reason.

Two Good Whites.

In white I have White Enchantress and Matchless, both good varieties. White Enchantress leads in yield per plant and purity of color, but Matchless, though not so pure in color, is in great demand on account of its good shipping qualities and I am increasing my planting of it threefold for another year.

As to Philadelphia, while it is pleasing in color and satisfactory in yield per plant, its keeping qualities are so inferior that I could only get one-half price for it and had difficulty in selling it at all.

There is room for a good scarlet. Beacon has seen its best days. Mrs. C. W. Ward is in great demand; hence I am planting about 2,500 of it and discarding Rosette and Gorgeous. Benora is one of the best carnations ever introduced, both in plant and flower. At my place it has improved, and is better now than ever.

For a beginner, it is advisable to stick to the old and well tried varieties and let the other fellow try the new ones, except in cases where the new variety can be seen growing. A new one can be judged a good deal more correctly while growing in the bench than on the exhibition table.

Official Trial Grounds.

Here let me suggest that it might be a good idea if the American Carnation Society would appoint a grower in each carnation-growing district and have him test the new varieties, keeping a record of the yield per plant, the keeping qualities and everything else which is of vital importance in a carnation. He could judge the varieties by points, according to the scale adopted by the Carnation Society. A new carnation, so judged and approved, would then be tried by the ordinary grower with more confidence than if he had merely seen it on the exhibition table. Such a method of carnation testing would not harm the introducers of really worth-while kinds and I think they would gladly furnish, say, fifty plants to each district grower for trial and judging. If any introducer were unwilling to subject his new sorts to such a trial, he would certainly have no reason to expect other growers to try them. The introducer ought to have enough confidence in his own novelties to place them willingly in the care of a disinterested expert, who would grow them in comparison with other new ones and with the standard varieties, and judge them accordingly. Sweet Peas

PLANTING SWEET PEAS INDOORS.

We have our sweet peas in beds five feet wide, running north and south, three rows to a bed. The rows run lengthwise of the bed. Would the sweet peas obtain more light and sunshine if planted crosswise? Would a good mulch of stable manure be beneficial? G. F. C.—Tenn.

You would get a little more sun by running the plants the narrow way of the house. It would also make the supporting and care of the plants much easier. It would be still better, however, if the three rows were reduced to two. The best sweet peas under glass are produced in rows running lengthwise of the houses and five or six feet apart. Lettuces, violets, or some low-growing crop is usually pulled out before the peas become too tall. A mulch of stable manure would be beneficial. C. W.

SWEET PEA INOCULATION.

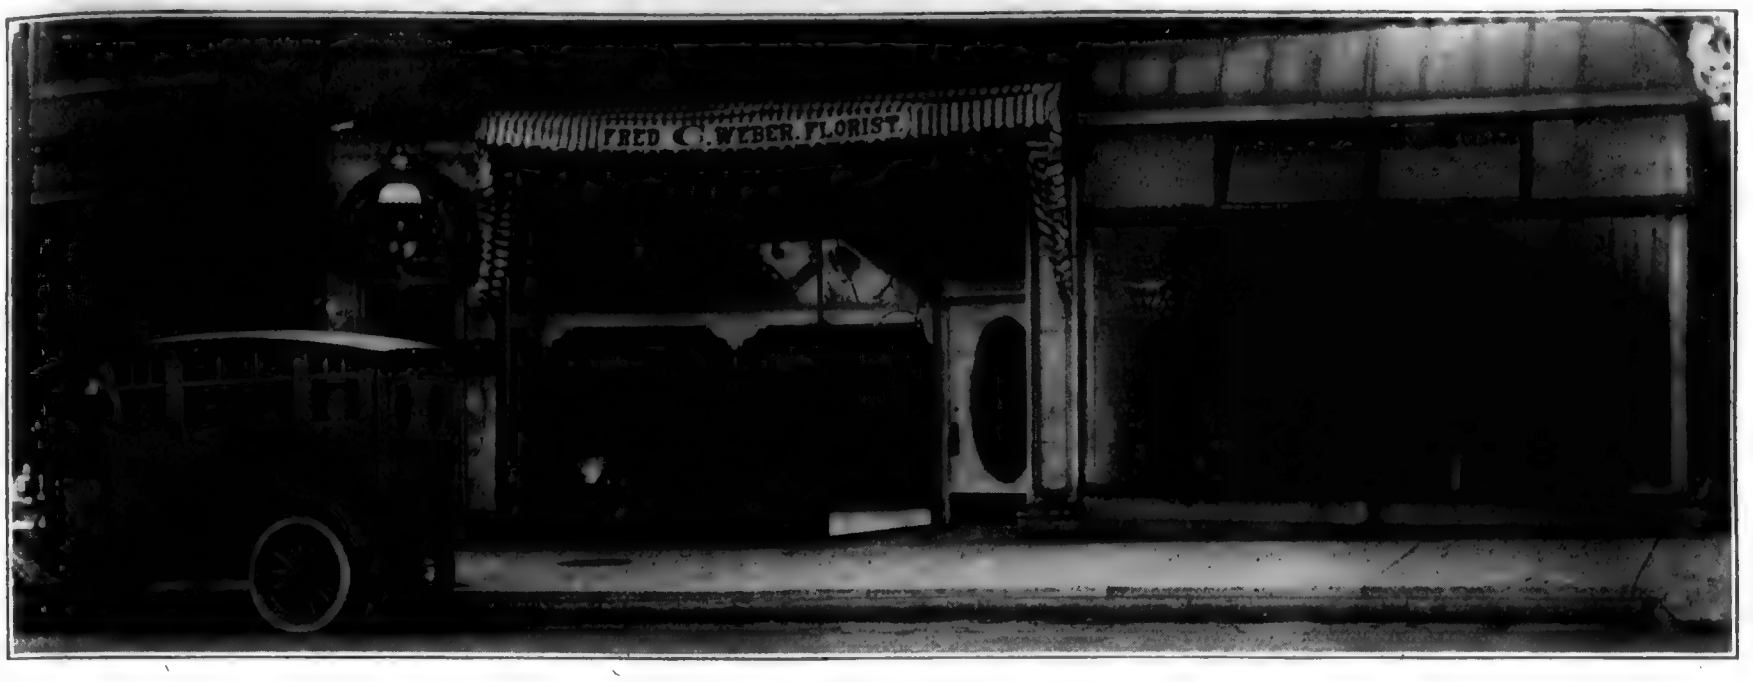
Without a doubt the sweet pea is a legume. It is a known fact that all leguminous plants are, to a certain extent, infested with bacteria tubercles on their roots. It has been proved by practical experiments that the growth of such plants can be greatly improved by inoculation of the seed with this bacteria previous to planting. Then would it not be reasonable to suppose that sweet peas could be improved upon by this same process of inoculation of the seed before planting? If any reader of The Review has made any experiments with sweet peas along this line I would be glad to hear from him. C. H.—S. D.

I have tried inoculation on both sweet peas and garden peas, but have failed to notice any improvement as compared with those not treated. The views of other readers would be welcomed on this subject. C. W.

TO COMBAT GREEN APHIS.

We have a fine patch of sweet peas, to which small green bugs are doing serious damage. I think they must be green aphis. What shall we do to get rid of them? At present we are using plenty of water on the foliage, applied with a garden hose. E. L.—Ark.

Green aphis are sometimes extremely destructive to sweet peas and they must be controlled at once, or they will soon ruin your plants. Spray with a kerosene emulsion, a tobacco soap or any of the various reliable remedies for aphis. A nicotine spray is as effective as anything. You will find proportion directions on all cans purchased. Ivory soap, at the rate of one pound dissolved in boiling water, and cold water added to make five gallons of liquid, is good and inexpensive. Spray with cold water only, and when the foliage is perfectly dry. C. W.



PRIZE BOUQUETS.

At the recent sweet pea show in San Francisco the prizes for the best bride's bouquet and corsage bouquet were awarded to the Art Floral Co., on the exhibits shown in the accompanying illustration.

TO REST SMILAX.

Is now the proper time to rest smilax that has been growing in the greenhouse during the entire winter? W. A.—Wis.

Yes, the smilax would be benefited by a few weeks of rest now, if you intend to grow it for a second season. Give the plants plenty of ventilation and keep them moderately dry, but do not allow the soil to become dust-dry.

The Establishment of Fred C. Weber, St. Louis.

Keep the bed clear of weeds, as weeds are a harbor for insects. When you are ready to start the smilax into growth again, clear off all dead growths and rubbish, give the plants a moderate top-dressing of well rotted manure and water them thoroughly. Under such treatment the growth should soon appear. W. H. T.

THE MORRISTOWN SUMMER SHOW.

The summer show of the Morristown Garden Club, given in conjunction with the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society, was held at the residence of Mrs. Chas. Bradley, at Convent, N. J., June 23. The powers which control the weather certainly were kind to us, as we had a beautiful day sandwiched in between weeks of as wretched weather as it is possible to have. The bad weather militated somewhat against the quality of the blooms, although a creditable show was staged.

The Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society simply acted in an advisory capacity to the members of the Morristown Garden Club, who staged their own exhibits.

Roses naturally predominated at the exhibition. There were no cash prizes. Outside of the silver cups and medals, the awards were ribbons: First prize, blue; second prize, green; third prize, white. The system of judging for the sweepstakes cup was one that may or may not have been used at other exhibitions, but it worked out well. Every exhibitor was awarded six points on a first prize; four points on a second prize; two points on a third prize. After the class judging was over the total number of points secured by each exhibitor was aggregated, and the one gaining the highest number of points was awarded the sweepstakes silver cup. The fortunate winner was Robert Tyson, superintendent for Mrs. H. Twombly. Mr. Tyson secured first for the collection of roses, arranged for effect, in four feet of space. This prize was a silver cup. Also first for a collection of fruits, grown indoors and outdoors. Mr. Tyson won several firsts for roses. Another large winner of prizes was David Francis, superintendent for Mrs. C. Bradley, on whose grounds the show was held. Mr. Francis had a clean sweep in the sweet pea classes. Mr. Francis also won prizes in the rose classes. Ernest Wild, superintendent of the Harkness estate, at Madison, was a large exhibitor. Mr. Wild was awarded a silver cup for twelve varieties, three flowers of each, of hybrid teas. The irises exhibited by Mr. Wild were the best in the entire exhibition.

Charles Barbanes, superintendent for Dudley Olcott, of Morristown, N. J., showed some handsome roses. He secured first for twelve hybrid perpetuals, six sprays of rambler roses and twelve sprays of rambler roses.

Frank Breare, superintendent for J. B. Dickson, Morristown, N. J., and Percy Whitney, superintendent for Mrs. G. Kissell, Morristown, N. J., were prominent in the hardy flower section, as well as Robert Francis, superintendent for Mrs. W. Thorne, Morristown, N. J. Delphiniums were splendidly shown by these exhibitors.

The class for sweet williams was popular, bringing seventeen entries. The first honors fell to the Harkness estate. A class that created a great deal of interest was for a table decoration, open only to members of the Morristown Garden Club.

Maurice Gray, superintendent for Mrs. J. I. Waterbury, Morristown, N. J., showed a collection of Spanish irises and some of the finest roses in the exhibition.

The trade was represented by an exhibit of water lilies from William Tricker, of Arlington, N. J., who had an ideal place to arrange his plants in the fountain in the main court. Charles H. Totty, of Madison, had a large exhibit of roses, sweet williams and delphinium seedlings. Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., had a perennial exhibit and some seventy-five or more varieties of hardy roses. George C. Woolson, of Hastings, N. Y., showed a large collection of alpine and bog plants.

The attendance was good and the money derived from the show is to be turned over to the fund for preparedness. C. H. Totty.

FRED C. WEBER'S STORE.

In this issue of The Review I present a view of the establishment of Fred C. Weber, at St. Louis, Mo. I may have seen stores of this kind that were more elaborately decorated and with more expensive furnishings, but I have never seen one that was more pleasing to the eye and more up-to-date than Mr. Weber's charming store. The view is of the exterior of the store and adjoining conservatory. The store is situated at 4326 and 4328 Olive street, opposite the St. George Episcopal church and surrounded by the most fashionable residences of the city. It is 20x52 feet. The floor is Italian mosaic work; the counters are of enameled white tiling, with a border of festooned tile just below the top. The fixtures of the store are finished in white, and French plate mirrors are used freely. The icebox is of massive construction. To the west of the store is the show house.

It certainly is a model store in every respect and the style of decoration reflects great credit on the taste of Mr. Weber. Mr. Weber has been in business in St. Louis since 1873 and at the present location since 1896. He is one of the most successful business men in the city. J. J. B.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

DUTCH PACKING CHARGES.

In the Dutch bulb situation there is one phase more interesting than any other, and that is the packing charges we importers are compelled to pay.

A good many of us have protested against this practice, for the reason that it is contrary to our American way of doing business. For instance, we do not expect our flower pot manufacturer to charge us extra for his boxes or barrels, plus packing material; we do not expect our lily bulb man to charge for his boxes; our grocer for his paper bags; the department store for packing our goods in boxes large and small.

Why, then, do we pay the Dutch bulb growers for their cheaply made boxes? Of course, they expect us to live up to their terms, even when these terms differ from our business laws and customs. But is that a sufficient reason why we should subject ourselves to the terms, because they expect it?

Consider the lumber and labor required to make these cases. Is not 75 cents to $1.10 for a single case pretty steep? The latter price is for a case of tulips and includes the paper bags, but I have never been able to figure more than 72 cents for the $1.10 case, everything included. Moreover, we are not charged in accordance with the foreign exchange.

The horticultural traders in England some months ago protested strongly against this practice, after being informed of the enforcement of this rule by the Dutch Bulb Growers' Association. The English government, however, cut the argument short by placing an embargo on bulbs, roots, etc.

What is the American florist doing to further his rights in this respect? Some of us have protested to our dealers, but we have not protested as a body. Remember, the Hollanders depend on the United States more than on any other country to take most of their bulbs in this year of war.

NEW PEONY SOCIETY FORMED.

The summer meeting of the Minnesota Horticultural Society was held in the new gymnasium building of the Minnesota Agricultural College, at Minneapolis. I have attended the national peony society exhibits in Chicago and Boston, but I never saw anything equal to the splendid show of peonies at this meeting. In Minnesota there are large peony gardens and in the Twin Cities there are scores of amateurs who spare no expense to procure the best. The east would be surprised at the splendid displays at these summer meetings. I saw one flower for which the owner paid $40; others for which large sums were paid.

It is not generally known that the Brands, of Faribault, Minn., are among the world's most famous propagators. For sixteen years they have been at work on an immense scale, growing seedlings by the thousands. They are careful and exacting in their selections, throwing away perhaps 15,000 while they select only one from the mass. They have at least six reds which stand up with anything on earth. Prince of Darkness is nearly black. Mary Brand, in comparison with all the reds gathered from all sources, takes the lead. It is of the same color as the famous Karl Rosenfield, but is much larger.

I thought I could grow peonies in Nebraska. One of mine named Therese was seven inches across, but the same kind on exhibition here was nine inches in diameter. It was a glorified cabbage head.

There was a marvelous display of strawberries. Charles Harrison, superintendent of the state farm, produced 40,000 seedlings and then reduced them to 200. He then called in a committee of experts and selected three of the best. No. 3 is a marvel. It is about the size of a crab apple and literally covers the ground and paints it red. It is large, bright-colored, a good shipper and a luscious berry, and beats anything I have ever seen. If it does as well elsewhere as here, it will lead all others.

A call was issued June 24 for a meeting at the West hotel, for the purpose of organizing a peony and iris society for the northwest states and the provinces of Canada. Why was this? Haven't we a national society? We have one in name only, and it seems to hug the shore. Every inducement has been put forth to have the society come to the Twin Cities, where there is more interest and enthusiasm for these glorious flowers than in the east and where 1,000 people gather for the summer meetings, but the invitation has been disregarded. Another thing, the exhibitions come nearly a month earlier in the east than in this northern region. Here they are on the verge of a great want, where billions of these flowers are needed to glorify the great northwest.

A goodly number of people gathered and the Northwest Peony and Iris Society was organized with great enthusiasm. I predict that it will be a decided success. Minneapolis is waking up, thousands of new homes are being adorned and the call for hardy plants is encouraging.

PEONIES, ANCIENT AND MODERN.

[A paper by B. F. Barr, of Lancaster, Pa., read before the Lancaster County Florists' Club, June 15, 1916.]

Everyone loves the peony. They who can recall the enthusiasm of their grandmothers over the old garden "pineys" may well imagine the raptures of those old people if they were brought into contact with the splendid peonies of today. The old-fashioned "piney," Pæonia officinalis, a native of southern Europe, is rich in color, but of small size, fleeting duration and offensive odor. The early history of this peony extends back many centuries, blended with a haze of superstition, allegory and myth.

In China, it is said, the tree peony has been the chief pride and glory for 1,400 years, prized by the emperors for the beauty and fragrance of the flowers. For more than 1,000 years, it is said, a record of the new introductions, their characters, qualities and parentage have been kept in China.

The Japanese, too, have been largely instrumental in producing our finest varieties of tree peonies, of which a dozen or more choice varieties, in all colors, are now offered for sale. The blooms are large and keep well, either on the plant or when cut and placed in water. They should be grown more extensively. They can be propagated from soft-wood cuttings, but, because of their slow growth, they are usually grafted. Great care must be taken that shoots do not develop from the roots when grafted plants are used, or the variety will be lost and a wild variety will take its place.

Of Aristocratic French Origin.

The modern peony, or Pæonia Sinensis, has been cultivated in Europe but a little more than a half century. It is descended from P. albiflora, a native of Siberia.

The modern peony is an aristocrat whose birth was among the nobility of France, for it was under the care of M. Jacques, gardener for King Louis Philippe, that some of the first of the fine varieties of today were originated. Comte de Cussy, Guerin and others, all enthusiastic amateurs, secured the best varieties from Japan and China about the middle of the last century, and from these began to raise seedlings that have given us some of our present magnificent varieties.

M. Jacques' collection was inherited by his nephew, M. Victor Verdier, who raised a number of fine seedlings. Comte de Cussy's collection was inherited by M. Calot and later passed into the hands of M. Crousse. The Calot-Crousse varieties are noted for their uniformly high quality. Another enthusiastic French amateur was M. Mechin, whose grandson, M. A. Dessert, succeeds him and is considered one of the greatest living authorities on peonies.

English and American Raisers.

England also has given us many new varieties in the last twenty years. The Kelways have been the largest English introducers. Unfortunately, in many instances the varieties sent us under English names were duplicates of the French varieties.

In America three amateurs have been especially prominent in the production of new peonies. They are John Richardson, of Dorchester, Mass.; H. A. Terry, of Crescent, Ia., and George H. Hollis, of South Weymouth, Mass.

In the propagation of peonies or the raising of seedlings there is no road to quick results. It takes four to six years to get blooms from seed, and less than one per cent of the seedlings have enough merit to justify their introduction as new varieties. It takes many more years to increase the stock by the slow process of division sufficiently to be able to offer it to the trade. The plants may be divided into three every three or four years. Is it any wonder, then, that good new varieties are listed at $5 to $25 each? New varieties are introduced mostly by amateurs. The professional florist or nurseryman can scarcely afford to wait so long for results.

The Confusion in Names.

It is to be regretted that in the great collection of peonies, contributed from nearly all over the world, containing nearly 3,000 names, there are less than 300 distinct varieties, the others all being duplicate or inferior varieties, that cannot be traced to any known origin.

The nomenclature committee, working under the American Peony Society, was formed for the purpose of trying to straighten out this mess, and they are succeeding admirably. For instance, Pæonia edulis superba, that splendid variety, nearly always in bloom for Memorial day, was masquerading under about thirty different names. It is a beautiful, fragrant variety, almost 90 years old, and one of the most reliable in spite of the jokes it played on us.

For twenty-three successive Junes I have studied and lived among peonies, but 100 years would be far too short to know them as I would wish. A glance through the various catalogues of today would reveal the fact that varieties introduced 100 or more years ago are still among the rarest and highest priced sorts, due to their slow multiplication and strong demand.

A Few Cultural Hints.

Peonies may be planted any time from August until late in the fall, or in early spring. September is the best time, however, as they will make a root growth before winter sets in and will bloom the following spring. Not until the third year after they are planted will they produce perfect flowers. They require less care after planting than any other flower. They will grow and thrive for years without being disturbed. I have seen them grow without any care whatever, but they will abundantly repay good care and nourishment. They should be planted three and one-half to four feet apart, in good garden soil, and should be set so that the eyes or crown will be from two to three inches below the surface. Mulch with manure in the fall.

There was a time when the peony was only a common "piney." There are common ones today, but the better varieties of peonies are more in demand every year. They have no competition. No other flower can take their place. They may be used in excellent taste among shrubbery or among other hardy perennials, as single clumps or large beds, in the lawn bordering drives or in broad landscape effects. They thrive everywhere, whether in full sun or partial shade. As a cut flower nothing is more suitable for weddings, church decorations and social functions, in peony season. Without the peony we would be at a great loss on Memorial day, just as we would be without chrysanthemums at Thanksgiving.

A Selection of Varieties.

I will endeavor to name a few of the most popular varieties with which I am familiar:

Red and crimson — M. Martin Cahuzac, Cherry Hill, Plutarch, Adolphe Rousseau, Decandolle, P. rubra superba, Mme. Bocquet, Edouard Andre, P. atrosanguinea, Geo. Washington and Liberty.

Pink and rose varieties — Claire Dubois, M. Jules Elie, Lamartine, Georgiana, Shaylor, Alexandre Dumas, Albert Crousse, Cameron, Eugene Verdier, Gloire de Gombault, Lady Beresford, Lady Leonora Bramwell, La Coquette, Wilhelmina, Souv. de l'Exposition de Lille, Princess Beatrice, P. edulis superba and Felix Crousse.

White and delicate tinted varieties— P. festiva maxima, Couronne d'Or, Duchesse de Nemours, Albatre, Duc de Wellington, La Tulipe, Mme. Calot, Mme. Crousse, Mme. Emile Lemoine,

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE— AND WHY

FRANK A. WINDLER.

THE name of Windler is, perhaps, the best known in the trade in St. Louis, for many years being associated with each branch of the business—retail, wholesale, growing. There's nothing goes on at St. Louis without a Windler in it. The Windlers all are workers, no less for the general good than for their individual interests. So when it was decided to hold a big spring show in St. Louis in 1917 some of the heaviest jobs were put on the Windlers. Frank A. Windler was slated for the most important of all, that of chairman of publicity, for what availeth the best of shows if the public cometh not? But the name of Windler is one that gets results in St. Louis.

Queen Victoria, Solfatare, Golden Harvest and Marie Lemoine.

Most of the foregoing varieties are suitable for cut flowers and the list comprises early-blooming, midseason and late varieties.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Gardenias.

The last part of June or first part of July is a good time to plant gardenias in benches for winter flowering. This is one of the most uncertain crops we have and even those classed as experts in the culture of gardenias have their failures. Last winter some of the largest specialists lost practically all their early buds and received next to nothing from their houses until late in the winter. On the other hand, I have in mind one or two smaller growers, comparatively new in the gardenia growing business, who had fine midwinter cuts. Gardenias may be grown in pots, benches or solid beds. The first two methods are recommended to small growers. Grown in pots or raised benches, the roots are under better control and there is more probability of preventing the yellows and bud drooping.

Use a coarse compost consisting of three parts of fibrous loam, one part well decayed and dried cow manure and one part leaves, only partly decayed; also some coarse sand and broken charcoal. A depth of five inches is ample and the rows may be twenty-four inches apart, allowing fifteen to eighteen inches between the plants in the rows. When planted, merely water the soil around each plant for some time. There is no need to soak the whole bench until the roots are running actively through it. If hot water pipes run under the benches to give a little bottom heat in winter, all the better, but heating pipes under the benches are not a necessity. Gardenias need warm treatment. At this season 65 to 70 degrees as a minimum is suitable. The spray nozzle must be used to keep mealy bug in check or the plants will soon be smothered with it.

Cinerarias.

Sow cineraria seeds now if plants are wanted for early flowering. The large-flowered type comes in earlier than the stellata forms, but the latter, while they bloom a little later and grow taller, are more decorative. Cinerarias will do vastly better in coldframes until at least the middle of October, and if suitable protection is afforded there is no trouble in holding them in such quarters until Christmas.

Pruning Flowering Shrubs.

With few exceptions the flowering shrubs should be pruned as soon as they have finished blooming. At this time any dead, weak or straggling shoots can be removed and the plants given a more presentable appearance. If pruning is done now, the shrubs still will have time to make new wood for flowering next season. Among shrubs which can be pruned now are lilacs, loniceras, spiræas, weigelas, viburnums, forsythias, halesias, philadelphus and exochordas. While speaking of pruning, it is well to note that all faded flowers should be removed from lilacs, rhododendrons, azaleas and kalmias. If they are left on, the plants will be much weakened.

Propagating Flowering Shrubs.

While many of the flowering shrubs can be easily propagated from ripened wood, the majority of them are easily increased at this season from cuttings of half-ripened wood. Short cuttings with two or three eyes should be used. If only a small number are needed they can go in flats or square pans of sandy soil. Be sure that the cuttings are dipped in cold water that has not been allowed to stand for any considerable time. It does not take much to discolor the foliage on cuttings in midsummer. When inserted, whether directly in the frame or in flats, the cuttings will need frequent light syringings, and they must be kept tolerably close. All ventilation may be removed by 3 o'clock in the afternoon. As the cuttings callous, air a little more freely, and still further increase it as they root. Be sure that they are always shaded from the sun while rooting. There is no good reason why country florists should not propagate both deciduous shrubs and evergreens, provided they have suitable coldframes and land on which to plant out the stock when it has rooted.

Cultivation.

Whether we have frequent rains or continued dry weather, the hoe or cultivator must be kept constantly at work. Rains bake the surface of the soil and plants make poor growth if the soil is not stirred as soon as it can be worked. On the other hand, in periods of drought it is really astonishing how long plants will go without water if the soil is repeatedly stirred and a good dust mulch held about the plants. Every plant in the garden will respond to persistent tickling of the soil about it; therefore ply the cultivator persistently.

SCALE ON FERNS.

Will you tell me what to do with my ferns, a frond of which I am enclosing? You will see that the sample frond is covered with insects. These are so numerous that they kill the ferns. I know of no other remedy except to dip the plants in some sort of solution. Please let me know what to do. F. G. E.—Ohio.

The fern frond was infested with the scale which is so common on Boston ferns and other varieties of nephrolepis. All fronds that are in that condition would better be cut off and burned. Then the plants should be dipped in either a solution of tobacco extract or nicotine. The solution of tobacco extract may be used in the proportion of one part to fifty of water; the nicotine, one part to 400 of water. W. H. T.

ADIANTUM FOR CUTTING.

What kind of adiantum is most suitable for cutting? What size of plants should one bench now to cut from this fall and winter? Should the soil be rich and light? Is Bailey's cyclopedia worth while to a florist? T. K.—Kan.

Adiantum cuneatum, or a variety of that fern, is more largely grown for cutting than any other species. Some growers prefer the original type of A. cuneatum, while others prefer A. Roenbeckii, or the newer kind, A. Californicum. If your market requires larger and stiffer fronds than those produced by the foregoing, we would suggest A. Groweanum or A. hybridum, both of which are good for cutting.

Strong plants from 3-inch pots are the best for planting, and these should be benched as soon as possible. A good rose soil will answer the purpose, but do not use fresh manure in the compost. Some spent manure from an old hotbed or some dry cow manure is a good fertilizer.

Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture is the latest American reference work of its class, and is well worth while to anyone desiring correct information. W. H. T.

STICKY SUBSTANCE ON FERNS.

Can you give me any information regarding Boston ferns or other ferns that have or produce a transparent sticky substance on the fronds? Sometimes this substance drops to the floor. Is it caused by some insect? One of my ferns was covered with scale, and although I treated it with a nicotine extract the substance became heavier. Is there a remedy for it? I am enclosing one of the diseased fronds. Is castor oil a good fertilizer for ferns? S. L.—Wis.

A careful examination of the fern frond in question does not show any insects, but the sticky substance referred to is present to some extent and appears to be a deposit left there by aphis. It is not uncommon for aphis to leave such a mark on the foliage of plants on which they have been feeding, and the insects themselves have most likely been removed by the nicotine treatment.

The State Florists' Association of Indiana at Luncheon on the Occasion of its Visit to Davis Gardens, Terre Haute, Ind.

Castor oil possesses no special value as a fertilizer for ferns, and plants in general are not benefited by the application of oil of any kind to the roots.

W. H. T.

PLANTS NEED FEEDING.

Under separate cover we are sending you some ferns. What seems to be the matter with them? They will not grow to any length and they turn yellow. It has been this way all winter.

We would like to get some information regarding plumosus and Sprengeri asparagus before putting in our next winter's supply. We have grown fine smilax next to the affected ferns.

J. H. C.—Mich.

It seems that the trouble is in the soil. The specimens submitted had a sufficient root system, but apparently did not receive sufficient food to give them satisfactory growth.

Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri require rich soil, and the light soil in which these specimens have been grown should be liberally treated with cow manure. Try working in about one part of well rotted manure to four parts of soil when making the new beds for this purpose. After the plants are established give a top-dressing of manure about an inch deep from time to time as needed. This, with a night temperature of 60 degrees, and sufficient water, should produce good results.

W. H. T.

COMPOST FOR ASPARAGUS.

What is the best potting soil for Asparagus plumosus, A. Sprengeri and snapdragon? How much bone meal should be mixed with the potting soil? Which is better, bone meal or acid phosphate?

L. K. M.—Pa.

Rotted sod is the best foundation for potting soil in general, and the best fertilizer to add to it is well rotted stable manure, in the proportion of one cartload of manure to four loads of soil. When using bone meal in potting soil of this character, it is customary to add one 5-inch pot of the bone meal to one wheelbarrow load of the soil. For this purpose, bone meal is preferable to acid phosphate.

POINSETTIAS IN THE SOUTH.

The weather in the south is becoming a trifle too warm for the successful propagation of poinsettias from cuttings, and from now on the best method of propagating poinsettias is to layer them as in propagating rubber plants. Each shoot when layered likely will require a stake to prevent it from breaking. In making the layers do not make them longer than two or three inches, as they grow considerably before they are rooted and are hard to handle on being potted off. The moss on the layers must be kept constantly wet while the layers are rooting. The most critical period of this method of propagation is when the layers are severed from the parent plants and potted. They require a good, shady position for a few days, plenty of moisture on the foliage and protection from drafts. Given these conditions, they will establish themselves in a few days, when they may be gradually inured to the full sunlight. It takes from seventeen to twenty-five days for the roots to show through the moss.

INDIANA ITEMS

Terre Haute, Ind.—The retail business conducted under the name of Rosery Flower Shop has been incorporated at $5,000. Edward Reiss, Robert Nitsche and Kenwood Dragton are the directors.

Union City, Ind.—Albert A. O'Brien, who recently underwent a second operation for appendicitis, which proved successful, is on the rapid road to complete recovery. The operations were performed in a Greenville, O., hospital.

Elkhart, Ind.—William Currier has opened a store in the Orpheum Theater building. He will carry a full line of plants, cut flowers and seeds. Mr. Currier and his brother are plaintiffs in a suit for $50,000 damages against their former creditors, who placed their florists' business in the hands of receivers, although it was solvent at the time.

Huntington, Ind.—George Pastor has won a $400 verdict in Circuit court against T. Adam Hipskind, a contractor, and the Huntington Light & Fuel Co. Mr. Pastor is proprietor of a greenhouse at Frederick and Lafontaine streets, and sued the contracting company, alleging that while excavating a sewer on Lafontaine street heavy blasts ruptured a gas main belonging to the fuel company. The escaping gas filled the greenhouse and ruined his plants and flowers. He asked judgment for $2,000.

Princeton, Ind.—After two years of profitable business in the hands of receivers, the Princeton Gardens have been acquired by a new concern, of which O. M. Gilbert is a member. The business will be continued under the old name.

Bluffton, Ind.—The "trade at home" idea is being boosted here. A large dry goods company with seventeen stores in the state, which formerly purchased stock for its floral departments from Chicago growers, now is placing its orders with the Wiecking Co., a local grower. As the Wiecking Co. furnishes stock to sixteen stores in sixteen other Indiana cities, it is not exactly clear what is meant by the "trade at home" idea at Bluffton.

Crown Point, Ind.—The Lord & Burnham Co., Chicago, has nearly completed a fine steel-frame house, 60x200, at the establishment of Alois Frey, the home of the Rainbow freesia. The house will contain twenty monolithic concrete benches built by Mead & Suydam, East Orange, N. J., on the Wilson-Hoyt patents. As an evidence of what can be done on these benches Mr. Frey points to the carnations in the older houses, Mrs. Ward, Matchless and Enchantress being extremely good for this time of year. The cut now being sent to the Chicago market consists of carnations, second-growth snapdragons and mignonette.

Dallas, Tex.—Plans for holding prize flower shows as a climax to the beautification contest held here were made at a recent meeting of the Women's League. Prizes offered are of sufficient value to make the contestants work hard and, perhaps, go to the florists for advice and stock.

Lindsay, Okla.—Lindsay has a population of 1,500 and surely ought to support one florist, providing he starts in a small way, does most of the work himself and increases his investment only as the growing business warrants it. At any rate, that is the opinion of Mrs. K. C. Greene, a successful amateur flower grower. Accordingly, Mrs. Greene is starting the Greene Floral Co.

Knoxville, Tenn.—At a recent meeting of the Knoxville Florists' Society, July 6 was chosen as the date of the annual picnic, which will be held at Elkmont. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the fall chrysanthemum show. A resolution that all the flower stores in the city be closed Sundays was adopted. Only emergency orders will be given attention on that day.

Greenwood, Miss.—Although only in the florists' business since last fall, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bealle have been so satisfied with returns that they are trebling their greenhouse capacity and in the future will operate under the title of Greenwood Floral Co.

Fort Smith, Ark.—There's something novel about the night-blooming cereus—it will attract the attention of public and press where other specimens of the floricultural world fail. Now, anything that is curious may be profitably turned to advertising account, and that is precisely what George Rye did with his splendid cereus bush. When the bush was about to bloom, Mr. Rye advertised in the papers, inviting one and all to drop around after dark and examine the rare blooms. Sure enough, on the evening advertised the buds opened. They started at 6:30 p. m. and were wide open at 10:30 p. m. The attendance was gratifying and Mr. Rye undoubtedly was paid for his trouble. Mr. Rye is "Some Florist." The cereus is four years old and five feet tall. It carried eleven blooms all at one time.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Prof. David Lumsden, of the department of floriculture, Cornell, commented on the increase in the public demand for landscape effects and groupings.

G. M. Cosh, of Ithaca, N. Y., says his store has become famous since The Review styled it the Flatiron building, bringing it from comparative obscurity to the most prominent position in town. He fears an increase in rent, but if business continues to increase as of late the strain will not be so hard to bear.

The United States Cut Flower Co., of Elmira, N. Y., is passing through a satisfactory season, according to Richard King.

John B. Rudy, of Elmira, speaks highly of Carnation Alice, his record showing that the output of 300 plants equaled that of 1,200 Enchantress. The blooms are of good size and color.

H. N. Hoffman, our well known confrere, recently was reëlected mayor of Elmira.

The Thomas Floral Co., of Owego, N. Y., believes that the planting of hardy perennials to a great extent will supersede that of bedding stock. This is quite noticeable this season with this concern. Albert Thomas feels encouraged by his first attempt to grow roses, the yield of blooms from 1,000 1-year-old grafted Killarneys, from August 1 to June 1, in actual figures being 16,504. Now, June 6, he is drying off the plants and intends to replant them in a larger house.

Barney Myers, manager of the W. J. Palmer & Son establishment at Lancaster, N. Y., observed that a considerable revenue is derived from the sale of American Beauty plants which formerly were discarded, but were found, by accident, to flourish when planted outdoors. Considerable retail business has developed locally, necessitating the production of an assortment of stock. Mark Palmer, one of the younger generation, is an active assistant.

The William Scott Co., Cold Spring, N. Y., reports that a big business was done in plants during the week of Memorial day. William Webber, who has made up bouquets for the Scott establishment for more than a quarter of a century, noted a more limited call and attributed the decrease to an abundance of blooms outdoors.

Supt. W. Fitzwilliams and his assistant, Charles H. Keitsch, of Humboldt park, Buffalo, were engaged the whole of Memorial day escorting crowds through the fine tulip beds. A plan is under way for a competitive exhibition by the various park greenhouses, to be given in the fall in one of the city buildings. Undoubtedly the trade will benefit by it indirectly. W. M.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Last week's business was fair. The demand was steady and took up a substantial part of the offerings. Prices as a whole were fair.

Roses continue in good supply and the better class of blooms have a ready sale. Some fine ramblers may still be had. Gladioli are satisfactory. Easter lily receipts are sufficient for present needs. Orchids, valley and sweet peas are selling well. Coreopsis, cornflowers and larkspurs meet with a fair demand. Other offerings include Shasta daisies, water lilies, carnations and hydrangeas. Greens are in good supply.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kyrk are the proud parents of a baby girl, born June 21.

Thomas Windram has been sending some excellent Shasta daisies and hardy hydrangeas to C. E. Critchell.

L. H. Kyrk had an excellent demand for roses last week.

J. A. Peterson & Sons have been cutting some good outdoor sweet peas and Dorothy Perkins roses.

Recent visitors were Warren Huckleberry, of North Vernon, Ind., and Joseph Hill, of Richmond, Ind.

C. E. Critchell is in receipt of a note from Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lampert, of Xenia, O., advising him that they are spending the summer in California.

CROMWELL, CONN.

The field day at Cromwell Gardens, June 21, brought together a representative number of members of the National Association of Gardeners and the American Association of Park Superintendents from New York and New England points.

The visitors were met by representatives of A. N. Pierson, Inc., as the trains arrived at Hartford and Middletown, and were escorted to the hotel at Middletown, where they were received by Wallace R. Pierson and entertained at luncheon, after which the party proceeded to Cromwell.

Arriving at Cromwell Gardens, the guests were greeted by A. N. Pierson, who welcomed them to the establishment of the company of which he is the head, after which the chiefs of the different departments escorted the visitors about the gardens and through the large greenhouse ranges.

Looking down upon the gardens on the approach from the rail roadway, the eye beheld a magnificent sight in the acres of plantings, which were a mass of gorgeous color. The rose garden was the center of attraction, although the visitors found much of interest in the different outdoor departments, including the rock garden in course of construction.

The mammoth greenhouses proved a revelation to some of the visiting gardeners, where the roses, carnations and chrysanthemum plants, in untold quantities, were found in excellent condition, as were also the many other varieties of flowering and foliage plants in which this company specializes.

The company maintains its own dairy, private water system and box factory, and after the inspection of the establishment the opinion was generally expressed that Cromwell Gardens may appropriately be classed as a "plant growing industry." All the details for the entertainment of the party were carefully planned—even the usual afternoon rain was not omitted—and when the visitors entered the automobiles to make their train connections for home, they were of one accord that the day had been full of interest and instruction.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Market conditions last week were most satisfactory, nearly everything selling upon arrival at good prices. The demand for roses was never better and the supply for this season of the year is much better than heretofore. White Killarney roses are scarce, with a few Kaiserin that take their place and bring good prices. Beauties are arriving in fine condition and meeting with a good demand. Valley is one of the scarcest articles in the market. Good valley is selling as high as $6 per hundred. Lilies are moving out every day. Carnations are still in good supply and of good quality. Orchids are selling well.

Gladioli are arriving from the south in good condition and find a ready market. There still is some good outdoor Spanish iris to be had. It is moving at fair prices. English iris now is making its appearance. This week will finish the late peonies.

Various Notes.

W. A. Clarke, treasurer of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is sending cards to his friends in the city. The last report was from the Grand Canyon, Ariz. Mrs. Clarke is accompanying Mr. Clarke on the trip to the coast.

John Harris, of Harris Bros., on Market street, and Michael Kronis, the Union depot florist, are visiting friends in Chicago. A christening and lamb roast will keep them in the west for a week or ten days.

Harry Hamm, of 7025 Hamilton avenue, is one of the volunteers who enlisted for service in Mexico. He has our best wishes and prayers for a safe return.

The funeral of a prominent citizen last week created quite a lot of work for our north side florists, the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., the Gustave Ludwig Floral Co. and Walter Faulk.

Miss Nellie M. King, on Kelly street, is adding an auto truck to her delivery equipment.

The John Bader Co., B. L. Elliott, proprietor, reports that this has been one of the best plant seasons it ever had.

George Burke, superintendent of the Pittsburgh park system, and John Jones, foreman, have executed some wonderful plantings at Schenley and Highland parks. Weather conditions have been favorable for the growing of these plants and lawns, which have never been more beautiful than at present. When in that direction why not call on William Falconer, who is superintendent for the Allegheny Cemetery Co.? You are welcome at any time.

Over at Homewood we have William Allen, who has charge of the Homewood Cemetery Co. Here, too, the plantings are beautiful and everything in the finest shape.

The north side parks, under the supervision of James Moore, are showing the finest carpet bedding and plantings that have ever been attempted. Mr. Moore certainly is to be congratulated on the neat appearance of the north side system.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is cutting some good cattleyas of the gigas type.

Mrs. E. A. Williams furnished the artistic decorations for a garden party last week at the Allegheny Country Club. Dorothy Perkins roses, wistarias and 100 Japanese lanterns added to the natural charm of the scene.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Parker have gone to their cottage at Prouts Neck, Me., where they will remain until late autumn.

July 1 the branch shop of the Zieger Co., on North Highland avenue, will be discontinued and the supplies removed to the main house, on Baum and Whitfield streets.

An outing for the benefit of a war-relief fund was held last week at Castle Shannon, on the estate of Henry Meuschke, treasurer of the Ludwig Floral Co.

Edward E. Ludwig, the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Ludwig, has returned from Ithaca, N. Y., where he graduated last week from the horticultural department of Cornell University. He was accompanied by his brother, De Forest W. Ludwig, who attended the commencement exercises. The latter also is a Cornell graduate.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Faulk have sent out cards announcing the arrival of a little daughter June 13, the first child in the family. She has been christened Ruth Estelle.

John Greenen and Frank Smoller are members of the national guard, which left last week for mobilization at Mount Gretna, preparatory for duty on the Mexican border. Mr. Greenen is a decorator for Randolph & McClements and Mr. Smoller is with Walter A. Faulk.

David Fraser, who has charge of H. C. Frick's Pittsburgh estate, and of the New York grounds, has engaged John Martin as head gardener for the latter place. W. A. C.

Wyncote, Pa.—The Joseph Heacock Co. reports an unprecedented demand for palms, especially kentias, of which some sizes have been cleaned out. Cibotium Schiedei also has sold unusually well.

Astoria, N. Y.—Last month Mrs. H. Pritchard celebrated her seventy-second birthday and in April Mr. Pritchard passed his seventy-second milestone. Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard have twenty-five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Detroit, Mich.—The Bemb Floral Co. is one of the concerns that have signed a declaration permitting a reasonable number of their employees four weeks' leave of absence with full pay to attend a government military training camp this summer.

Salina, Kan.—The Edward Tatro greenhouses and growing fields, offered at public auction June 22 by the Middle West Land Sales Co., were sold to W. R. Leighton, lately foreman of the greenhouses of the Kansas State Agricultural College. The price was $18,200. Mr. Leighton took possession June 26.

Cleveland, O.—After thirteen years of experience, Jack Keck has struck out for himself as the Elite Florist, at 8309 Cedar avenue. In the words of Mr. Keck: "Another hat in the ring—mine, of course—and I'm out for all that's fair and square in the florists' business." Mr. Keck is possessed of a vim that should make for bigger business.

Saddle River, N. J.—John George Esler and Mrs. Esler have announced the marriage of their daughter, Helen Janet, to Mark McKinley Inskeep, Saturday, June 24, 1916.

Bloomington, Ill.—The partnership of Hempstead & Callahan was dissolved June 1, the senior member, W. T. Hempstead, continuing the business under the name of Hempstead & Son. G. L. Callahan has become manager of the Maplewood Greenhouses.

Medina, O.—There is an 8-pound boy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hammerschmidt. He arrived the last day of May and soon will be named William Warner Hammerschmidt, the youngest member of Hammerschmidt & Clark, florists and seedsmen.

Sheffield, Ill.—W. G. Thomas, of W. G. Thomas & Son, is setting up in business two of his sons, Edgar and Henry, who will operate the recently acquired range at Geneseo under the name of Thomas Floral Co. Both boys have been working for L. Stapp, of Rock Island. Miss Maud Thomas, their sister, will open a store in connection with the Geneseo houses.

Kewanee, Ill.—Operations at the Hamilton & Plummer range are running under full steam. Numerous benches are being emptied and refilled, 30,000 carnation plants are in the field and a new rose house, 50x150, of J. C. Moninger Co. pattern, is nearing completion. A large tubular boiler, manufactured by the Kewanee Boiler Co., will furnish the heat.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The weather at last is seasonable, and the market in general is as good as that of a year ago. There are numerous weddings this week and each of the leading florists seems to have his share.

Conditions were satisfactory June 24 in that the surplus of nearly everything cleared. One retail florist had an order of half a million flowers for distribution Sunday morning. The supply of roses is not excessive, any surplus being readily absorbed at $10 per thousand. Apart from American Beauties, Hadley and Prima Donna, few roses sold above $5 per hundred. Ophelia continues as popular as ever. Beauties are not of good quality, although there are rare exceptions. There are not many Hadley—fortunate have been the men who grow them and the wholesalers who helped to make them popular.

There still are many peonies, the best selling at 50 to 75 cents per dozen. The wet weather and storms of the early part of last week played havoc among them. The cold storage stock now is appearing. There is enough of it to last well into July. Carnations had an uplift June 24, but it was not an extended one. The best could be had at $1.50 per hundred. The popular quotation was $10 to $12.50 per thousand. Anything aged or sleepy was disposed of to the peddlers at $2.50 to $5 per thousand. Shipments are expected to decrease rapidly. The top price for orchids seems to be 35 cents, then down to 10 cents. Valley continues to be the wonder of the market. The best brought $6 per hundred and some claimed even $8. The short-stemmed stock sold as low as $2. Longiflorum lilies do not advance; $4 per hundred is the top price, and short ones go as low as $2. This surely must be the bottom again for many a month to come.

Sweet peas will soon have the center of the stage. Some grand stock is arriving daily, but the short-stemmed blooms do not sell at a price high enough to pay for the picking and shipping. Immense quantities of mountain laurel are offered; also branches of various ramblers. Outdoor roses are now at their best and field daisies are unlimited. Large quantities of sweet william and feverfew were sold June 24 and helped wonderfully with the half-million order, which was of no small moment to an overburdened market. The usual variety of stocks, calendulas, coreopsis, forget-me-nots, etc., completes the list of seasonable offerings.

Various Notes.

Secretary Bunyard, of the American Sweet Pea Society, is busy with the preliminary arrangements for the annual meeting and exhibition of the society at Bar Harbor. The New York contingent will go by boat and a large gathering of the florists and gardeners from this section is anticipated.

The plant auctions closed June 23. A great quantity of bedding plants, palms and evergreens was disposed of.

Frank Traendly and family will spend the summer at Rowayton, Conn.

They call Joseph Fenrich the "Ophelia King." Daily shipments of longiflorum lilies from Miesem continue. The Florists' Club's outing to Barnegat bay will be under the management of Captain Fenrich.

July 6 is the date of the Greek-American outing. The New York Florists' Club has passed its annual outing this season, much to the regret of the young folks.

Jack Gunther and family are summering at Midland Beach, Staten island.

William Cahill, with R. J. Irwin, has completed a successful trip in the state.

Joseph Trepel, of Brooklyn, secured that order for half a million flowers, to be made into bouquets for a street sale for charity. Jack Trepel was busy two days purchasing the stock and it required many autos to carry the accumulations to headquarters. Mrs. Trepel, from whom $2,000 worth of diamonds was stolen last year, has secured a judgment against the Bathing Co. for the full amount of her loss.

June 17 the stork left a boy at the home of Barney Jacobs, manager of the Walter Siebrecht Co.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Allen will enjoy a holiday at Ocean Grove, N. J., in July.

J. D. Cockcroft and son, of Northport, N. Y., were in the city July 24. Mr. Cockcroft is shipping eight varieties of carnations weekly to Goldstein & Futterman.

September 22 R. J. Irwin and Wallace Pierson start on their annual moose hunting trip to the north woods of New Brunswick.

The Kervan Co. has never had so busy a season as this one. Shipments continue good.

William Kessler's store now is complete and there are no better facilities on the famous wholesale street. The novelty window is of daily interest.

The Geo. W. Crawbuck Co. is already suffering from lack of room.

William E. White is with the Greater New York Co., on Livingston street, Brooklyn.

Samuel Woodrow and Miss Cadeux leave for Narragansett Pier July 1 to open their branch store at the famous resort. J. Austin Shaw.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y.

The June exhibition of roses, sweet peas and strawberries, given annually by the Tarrytown Horticultural Society, was held in the Y. M. C. A. building at Tarrytown, June 20. Because of the backwardness of the season and the inclement weather during the week preceding the show, the entries were not quite up to the usual standard. The exhibits of roses and strawberries were fine, but sweet peas, owing to the heavy rains, fell short of their record of the previous year's show.

The principal exhibitors and winners were: The F. R. Pierson Co., of Tarrytown; Thomas Lee, gardener for Mrs. Carl Vietor; P. W. Popp, gardener for Mrs. H. Darlington; Abel Weeks, gardener for Mrs. S. Hermann; W. Jamieson, gardener for E. Berolzheimer; George McIntosh, gardener for Dr. C. C. Brace; Howard Nichols, gardener for Mrs. J. B. Trevor; John Orr, gardener for F. S. Wheeler; John Woodcock, gardener for Gen. E. A. McAlpin; W. Woodger, gardener for John D. Rockefeller; James Currie, gardener for Henry Sidenberg; Henry Fuchs, gardener for Mrs. E. Schwartz; Frank Heid, gardener for Col. Jacob Ruppert.

The judges were George Middleton, gardener for William Rockefeller; Arthur Griffin, superintendent for Samuel Untermyer; Henry Kastberg, superintendent for the Misses Masters.

Foxboro, Mass.—M. B. Faxon is reestablishing his seed, plant and nursery business here, specializing on pansy seed as in the old days.

Tewksbury, Mass.—Patten & Co. have placed an order with P. A. Gavin, Boston representative of the King Construction Co., for the erection of an iron-frame house 42x200.

Natick, Mass.—James Wheeler has placed an order for the materials for a semi-iron house 35x200 feet, with P. A. Gavin, the Boston representative of the King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y.

Newburyport, Mass.—A schooner—the kind that goes down to the sea—recently was cast ashore at Salisbury beach in a badly damaged condition. A salvage sale was held on the beach, the wreck going at a low price to J. J. Comley. Mr. Comley, being a florist and not a skipper, at the time, did not know what he was going to do with his unique purchase, except that he intended to unload the sixty cords of high-grade hard wood in the hold of the vessel.

Wellesley, Mass.—At the estate of Walter Hunnewell a number of improvements are being made, the most extensive being the replacing of the old greenhouses by a range of modern houses to be erected by the King Construction Co., of North Tonawanda, N. Y. The houses are to be of the latest type of steel construction, having curved glass eaves, ornamental gutters at the spring line and side vents below the gutters. The range is to consist of palm house 25x60 feet, orchid house 25x60 feet, carnation house 25x60 feet, plant house 25x60 feet and grapery 25x 60 feet, each house being divided into two compartments. The range of houses is to be novel in that instead of the usual way of having the growing houses valley into the palm house, they are to be connected with the palm house with small passages and the palm house in turn will be connected with the potting shed by means of a passage 12x16 feet, which will be used for propagating. T. D. Hatfield, the superintendent of the estate, is well known throughout the country, having been in charge of this place for nearly thirty years.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Commencement and graduation exercises afforded the florists one of the busiest weeks in a long time. The backwardness of the season, with the long period of chilly, rainy weather, retarded the blooming of outdoor roses so that greenhouse productions sold well. Prices were slightly above normal and stock of all kinds was in heavy demand and moved well.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather conditions, the growers have kept steadily at their work of planting out and many of them are well advanced. The majority are having their houses renovated preparatory to rebenching.

Horticultural Society Show.

After a two weeks' postponement, the annual rose and strawberry show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in the dance room of the Narragansett hotel, June 22 and 23. The display, which was satisfactory, included about 550 entries, ranging from single blooms to large collections.

The gardens of Roger Williams park, Fred Green, superintendent, were represented by two long tables of blooms, while the Rhode Island hospital greenhouse, Cornelius Hartstra, superintendent, covered as much space in another section of the hall. The judges were Robert Johnston, Joshua Vose and Cornelius Hartstra.

The exhibition was staged under the direction of the society's exhibition committee, consisting of Eugene A. Appleton, Joshua Vose, Arthur Sellew, Cornelius Hartstra, Dr. W. H. Heaton, President York and Ernest K. Thomas.

Various Notes.

James B. Canning and family have opened their summer cottage at Highland beach, overlooking Narragansett bay, for the season.

Edwin M. Bergason, of Norwich, Conn., was married to Miss Ruth A. Nichols in this city June 15.

The Greystone Horticultural Society has voted to abandon its annual summer flower show on account of the unfavorable weather conditions.

The Quidnick Greenhouses, Inc., of Quidnick, recently added an auto truck to the delivery service.

A. Lippman has closed his branch store at 222 Westminster street, but will continue his store at the Blackstone hotel.

Mrs. Elizabeth O'Connor is erecting a 3-story apartment building on Blackstone boulevard, corner of President avenue.

Lindsay Bros., of Clyde, report an unusually busy season in potted plants and cut flowers.

Peter Byrnes, of Wickford, has shipped several thousand azalea plants from his place.

Richard L. Hogan will erect two greenhouses at 280 Eaton street.

Edward M. Appleton, son of the late William Appleton, last week was married at Lowell, Mass., to Miss Mary C. Mooney. W. H. M.

News from Abroad

London, England.—There is to be another conference of the horticultural trades. Opinion seems to be clearly defined that the trade urge the government to make absolute its prohibition of bulb and plant imports, including cut flowers; also the opinion seems general that the seed trade is having profitable business but that greenhouse and nursery growers can not carry on under the prices that have prevailed.

London, England.—A discussion that gets nowhere has been running in one of the British trade papers, on the relative merits of British and American carnations, but T. A. Weston points out one specially interesting fact: "The real British commercial growers are busy raising seedlings of their own, and, moreover, prefer to keep them to themselves. This is where the dissimilarity of the British and American commercial growers is most apparent. All the American growers are cut flower merchants, and they breed for productiveness, or try to, and having, as they think, made a hit, they do their best to induce every other grower to plant it. The British commercial grower, if he raises a good thing, does not proclaim it from the housetops. He grows it, not for propagation, but for cut flowers, and no one but the salesman knows something different is on the board."

Haarlem, Holland.—The war has made no difference with the monthly meetings of the General Bulb Growers' Society, which, through its floral committee, has been appraising novelties at the usual rate. Colored freesias from seeds and early Darwin tulips for forcing have been the principal offerings of February, March and April.

Belfast, Ireland.—This is a statement by Hugh Dickson, Ltd.: "Although the conditions at present existing in the rose trade, as a direct result of the war, are not such as to encourage the distribution of valuable novelties, we have decided to issue in their ordinary course the varieties which we had arranged to distribute this year. Growing the immense number of seedlings which we do (over 100,000), the testing and selecting of the best for distribution is a matter of some time; and when selected, arrangements have to be made at least three years ahead, so that sufficient stock of the varieties may be available to supply all wants of the trade for the succeeding two years. Consequently the holding back of a year's introductions would be a serious dislocation of the elaborate preparations made by us." The set of five novelties to be disseminated includes the variety Cleveland, named by popular vote at the Cleveland flower show, U. S. A., November, 1915.

OBITUARY

Charles E. Shackley.

Charles E. Shackley, for more than forty years a resident of Lewiston and Auburn, Me., died at his Auburn home on the night of June 12. Mr. Shackley was a great sufferer during the last three months and the end was not unexpected. Some time ago he suffered a paralytic shock and never fully recovered from the effects of it.

The deceased, who was in his sixty-eighth year, conducted a flourishing florists' business at Auburn and was well known to New England tradesmen. He is survived by his wife and two brothers.

R. E. Simons.

R. E. Simons, superintendent of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. and proprietor of a flower store at 2026 Magazine street, New Orleans, died June 18, after an illness of two years. The deceased was born at Cologne, Germany, August 11, 1858. Shortly afterward his parents came to America, and settled in New Orleans in 1868. Mr. Simons was superintendent of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. for eight years, while Mrs. Simons operated the flower store on Magazine street, founded by the couple many years ago. The surviving relatives are Mrs. Simons, four daughters and two sisters.

Horace S. Wiley.

Horace S. Wiley, one of the most prominent nurserymen of central New York, died suddenly June 19 at his home in Cayuga, N. Y., at the age of 65 years. The deceased, who was the head of the firm of H. S. Wiley & Son, Cayuga, took a conspicuous part in the affairs of the Western New York Horticultural Society. He frequently served as judge of fruit exhibits at the state fairs and at one time was a member of the State Nursery Commission. He is survived by his wife and five children, two of whom, Fred T. and Scott F., reside at Cayuga.

George Shoemaker.

George Shoemaker, for the last ten years an employee of S. C. Briggs, of Glenmount, Md., died last week in the George Washington University hospital, following an attack of stomach trouble. Mr. Shoemaker was 29 years of age. He is survived by a wife and two children. C. L. L.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

A pretty display of hydrangeas and carnations was noticed in the windows of T. N. Malbranc, at Johnstown, Pa. Mr. Malbrane, in commenting on business conditions during the last ten years, said that the business of 1916 so far has surpassed that of any previous year.

An "acre of peonies" was on display at Meyer Bros. two stores at Altoona, Pa. It surely was top-notch stock.

A. A. Whitbred, of Altoona, has received a shipment of palms from across the water, which has been in transit for a month. "It just costs 100 per cent to get them over," was his reply to a question on the high cost of doing business. W. T. U.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

GROWERS of pot plants who have depended on German cyclamen seed are beginning to worry over the prospect, since the usual summer deliveries of seeds are much in doubt.

YES, by all means hold the old customers, for no business, not even a circus, can exist without the repeaters; but old customers die, even if you have pleased them, and the business that makes no new friends dies with them. Advertise.

OPHELIA is said this season to have paid better than any other rose in the establishments of many growers. It has been planted much more numerously for next season and it is not to be expected that the extra prices of last winter are to be realized indefinitely.

AT the rate chrysanthemums from small pots are selling it seems as though half the greenhouses in America are being planted for a crop of the autumn flowers. The growers did well last season and are not hesitating to use all the available space for mums this year.

A FLORIST whose business is growing rapidly sends to every customer who purchased during the previous July, August and September a letter referring to their previous hot-month purchase and asking if, perchance, the remembrance is to be repeated during the current summer.

EVERY little while a grower writes to The Review to ascertain the probabilities for profit through the use of electric or acetylene gas light in greenhouses to accelerate growth. The Review never has heard that there was a "probability for profit" in the method. Has any reader?

CLEARING THE SURPLUS.

Don't let surplus stock go to waste—somewhere there are readers of The Review short just the items you want to clear. Like this:

It certainly pays to advertise surplus stock in the Classified lists in The Review. Our two little one-time ads in the issue of June 8, offering pelargoniums and ferns, brought us orders from thirteen states, from Delaware to California, and one from Canada. The orders aggregated $325 in value.—Heinl & Weber, Terre Haute, Ind., June 21, 1916.

Reference to the records shows that the cost of the ads that brought $325 worth of orders was exactly $1.20, two ads of six lines each. How else can one sell stock at a cost of about one-third of one per cent?

And here's one from the south:

Please cut out our ad of ferns; The Review did the work as usual. Two insertions sold over 4,100 ferns; had more orders than we could fill. —J. W. Yates, manager Oak Grove Greenhouses, Tuskegee, Ala., June 19, 1916.

Again reference to the records shows that the ad, changed once, actually appeared three times, a total of seventeen lines, costing $1.70. It offered stock at $4 per hundred, so the sale of 4,100 amounted to $164, making the advertising cost about one per cent.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

WILL RALLY AT HOUSTON.

R. C. Kerr, vice-president of the S. A. F., has been canvassing the prospects for the attendance of southern florists at the Houston convention in August and takes much pleasure in the replies received to his letters. From El Paso word has come from H. L. Porter that western Texas will be strongly represented; from Sherman H. O. Hannah sends word that eighty per cent of the trade in northern Texas will be present, while from Dallas Otto Lang writes as follows:

Regarding the prospects for attendance from Dallas, I wish to state that you may safely expect three-fourths of all North Texas florists. The reason is simple: It will be many years before we will ever have another national convention in the south, and especially in Texas. Many of the florists know that the S. A. F. convention is educational and therefore would like to attend, but are not financially able to go to Minneapolis, Boston and San Francisco. These were the three last convention cities and you will note no farther places from Texas could have been selected. Now that it is in reach of this hungry throng, you can look for them, as they will be there.

Personally, I would like to see every employer of store and greenhouse help send his best help down. All of our employees receive two weeks' vacation at full pay and most of them will arrange their vacations to attend this convention. Since we have thirty on our payroll for the summer, it will mean several from our house alone. We expect the other houses to do likewise and hope this first of its kind, namely the S. A. F. convention in the south, will be a grand success.

J. W. Furrow, of Guthrie, writes Mr. Kerr that Oklahoma will be represented and T. C. Joy, of Nashville, Tenn., is the most enthusiastic of all, for he says, "We expect to bring ninety per cent of the local florists to the convention."

NEW ENGLAND QUARANTINE.

Readers of The Review located in New England should send to the Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C., for a copy of Notice of Quarantine No. 25, extending the quarantine against the gipsy and brown-tail moths in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. The regulations apply to (1) coniferous trees, such as spruce, fir, hemlock, pine, juniper (cedar), and arbor-vitæ (white cedar), known and described as "Christmas trees," and parts thereof, and decorative plants, such as holly and laurel, known and described as "Christmas greens or greenery," and (2) forest-plant products, including logs, tan bark, posts, poles, railroad ties, cordwood, and lumber, and (3) field-grown florists' stock, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, and other plants and plant products for planting or propagation, excepting fruit pits, seeds of fruit and ornamental trees and shrubs, field, vegetable and flower seeds, bedding plants, and other herbaceous plants and roots.

THE ALMIGHTY DOLLAR.

One of Boston's leading florists not long ago gave up the old stand he had occupied for many years and moved to a less desirable one. His many friends and the flower-buying public in general wondered why he made the change. Here are the facts: His old lease expired. He had been paying $23,000 annually. A clothing concern offered $28,000 for the "corner." The florist came up to $25,000. The owners refused and held for the $28,000. The florist refused and moved his quarters. Then the clothing concern "went up in the air." The store was vacant for a while and was then leased for $18,000. Moral for the real estate dealer: "Bird in the hand, etc."

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Market conditions, considering the time of the year, have been decidedly good during the last week. Stock was not overplentiful the latter part of the week, because of the cool weather; and, as a result, it cleared in almost every instance, but not at high prices. The warm weather of the last few days, however, has served to increase the supply, but not to a point where it has become unwieldy.

Beauties have been selling fairly well, as the supply is increasing. Young Beauties are beginning to arrive on the market, and they go far to arouse demand. Killarney is quite plentiful and still is of good color, though the flowers are smaller. White Killarney is a good seller and there is a large supply of short stock to meet the demand for funeral flowers. Killarney Brilliant is always a good seller in the summer time. Russell, though, still remains the leader, and Ophelia may be classed as second. Sunburst remains a popular yellow and Milady is giving a good account of itself.

Carnations are holding on with remarkable tenacity, but a little hot weather will put them out of the running. There has been a large supply of stock that is unusually good for the last half of June and low grade flowers therefore could only be sold to the kind of buyers who only appear in the market at this season. Valley still is referred to as on the short side. There is a fair supply of Easter lilies and they are selling well, though at a low figure. Cattleyas continue in small supply. There are more good sweet peas on the market now than there were a week ago. The really good ones meet with a ready sale, but there is a quantity of inferior stock that can find no profit-

We Offer You Choice Spencer Sweet Peas

HERE IS A LATE CROP of Spencer Sweet Peas in several colors—much finer stock than can be obtained from the tail-end pickings of earlier crops. Nice, long stems, large, perfect flowers—money-makers for you.

AMERICAN BEAUTIES

You can obtain here a steady supply of medium and long Beauties—the cut at present is above the average, both for size and quality.

FANCY ROSES

It pays retailers to carry all varieties in stock. So we arranged with our growers for a larger supply than usual for this summer—roses grown specially for your summer trade—Russell in quantity, Milady, Sunburst, Ophelia, Ward, Brilliant.

able outlet. Daisies still move easily. Snapdragon sells fairly well. So, too, do southern gladioli. Pansies are nearly gone. There still are considerable quantities of cold storage peonies on the market, and a few shipments of northern grown stock have made their appearance. Feverfew, coreopsis, gaillardias and cornflowers are coming into the market and are well received.

The green goods situation is little changed from that of last week.

Beginning Monday, July 3, all the wholesale houses in this market will close at 5 p. m. daily. This will be the practice until October 1.

What It Cost.

In round numbers 15,000 boxes of cut flowers were shipped out of this market during the thirty-seven days the drivers of the express companies were on strike. It is interesting information, for several reasons.

It is a coincidence that the famous strike of 1905 also was of thirty-seven days' duration, but the number of boxes handled by the wholesalers' coöperative cartage service this time was nearly three times the number handled in the same period, covering Memorial day eleven years ago. Thus has the business of the market grown.

The cost to the wholesalers, including the sum presented to Manager Lautenschlager in appreciation of services offered without charge, was nearly $2,000. It was the arrangement that each wholesaler who availed himself of the coöperative service should use it for all his shipments, the cost of the service to be prorated; it will figure out at about 12½ cents per box.

But the most valuable feature of the affair is the demonstration of the ability of the market to look out for itself under most difficult circumstances. With shipments aggregating 15,000 boxes in thirty-seven consecutive days, it shows an average of over 400 boxes per day, including Sundays and holidays, of which there were seven; 500 boxes per day counting only days when the market did full time. To be able to take up the cartage of nearly 500 boxes per day and do it without a moment's preparation, carrying it on indefinitely, is a demonstration of ability to handle business of which the market may well be proud.

But that was only half the task; it covers only outgoing boxes. The growers had to make special arrangements, efforts and expense to get the stock into the market. It probably cost them as much extra as it did the wholesalers in getting shipments out.

The question now comes as to obtaining the payment of the bill, or a just part of the bill, by the express companies. The companies collected their full tariff on each shipment, although they failed to render the full service. If it can be shown that the Interstate Commerce Commission included a charge for pick-up and delivery in framing the present tariff it would appear that the wholesalers, at least, should have a legitimate claim, easily verified.

It was in September, 1914, that Mr. Ronsley, who for some years had been employed in the store of his relative, J. L. Raske, opened a well appointed store in the new Westminster building, 106 South Dearborn street. It was reported at the time that he had leased the premises for ten years at a term rental of $28,000, but his liability to the landlord in the schedule filed June 23 is only $916.66, as a new tenant was promptly obtained. The store was closed February 19. The liabilities include $2,184.44 due Chicago wholesale florists and supply houses, $438.80 due local plant growers, $546.88 due out-of-town florists and florists' supply houses and $3,244.82 due outside the trade. The latter includes $1,483.40 due on fixtures and $500 due a brother.

The circumstance serves to show how easy it is for a man without assets to obtain credit, both in and outside the trade. Mr. Ronsley is a man who makes friends readily and his liabilities in the trade show that he had the confidence of some of the most conservative houses.

Various Notes.

Will the "take the elevator upstairs and save $10" slogan of the clothing store work in the florists' trade? That remains to be seen. O. J. Friedman thinks it will, and he is trying it out in a new venture named the Ohio Floral Co., on the second floor at 509 South Wabash avenue.

The handsome new home of John Michaelsen, in River Forest, was completed to the last detail June 22, when a daughter came. There already was a son.

The brightest spot connected with the wonderful new Edgewater Beach hotel is John Mangel's new flower store, now fully equipped and ready for business somewhat ahead of the rest of the establishment. It is an excellent location for outside trade as well as that expected from patrons of the hotel, as it is a large district of fine homes and no flower stores near.

As a measure of the difference in trade conditions, A. T. Pyfer says that this spring the sales of Pyfer & Olsem are almost double what they were in 1914, the glass area having been increased to only a slight extent. The carnations have been thrown out and the space used for Ophelia and Mrs. Russell, 15,000 additional rose plants. July 15 the firm will take over by lease the Peter Nipper vegetable houses in Evanston and will proceed to bench in them 75,000 carnation plants.

Commenting on the season's business, H. Van Gelder, president of Percy Jones, Inc., says June has been the best month of the year in the matter of percentage of gain over the corresponding month of last season.

Peter Reinberg and Mrs. Reinberg, in a party that included Henry Kransz and wife, left June 26 for a fortnight's tour of the Yellowstone. The daily papers have been quoting Mr. Reinberg, speaking through the trade's old friend, Melville G. Holding, who now is chairman of the county civil service commission, as favoring setting the county's clocks one hour ahead for the summer.

The sixth annual stockholders' meeting of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association will be held the afternoon of July 6, at 182 North Wabash avenue. Four directors are to be elected.

Mrs. Russell never has made the hit with N. J. Wietor that it has with some growers and, as a consequence, 6,000 plants of it, in three houses, comprise the 1916-17 stock of Wietor Bros. A bench for trial has been planted with the new Dark Russell, sent out this season by the Waban people, as Mr. Wietor thinks a tendency to fade during the season of heaviest production is Russell's principal weakness.

After a most exhausting month, spent in his bed with inflammatory rheumatism, Fred Nichols, of George Reinberg's force, is again on the job. He lost thirty pounds during his illness.

One of the busy stores is the Floral Art Shop, at 3262 Armitage avenue, conducted by the Misses Gaetzinger. The ladies are too thoroughly occupied to come often to market, but their buyer takes stock in large quantities. Miss Buela Gaetzinger, however, finds it difficult to refuse some of the offers she receives to sing in downtown cabarets, where her talents and personality are highly appreciated.

Several cases of kentias and aspidistras from Ghent, Belgium, were opened last week by Winterson's Seed Store in perfect condition in spite of the fact that they had been nearly two months on the journey.

George Welsh, 17-year-old son of John Welsh, Sr., 4910 North Hoyne avenue, was accidentally killed by a train in Templeton, Ia., last week. The funeral was at the home, June 25.

Miss Mary Wittmer, who with her sister conducts a range of glass and a retail store in Winamac, Ind., will open a retail store in the Willoughby building, on the corner of Michigan avenue and Madison street, in the near future. Miss Wittmer has been in the trade ten years and has been successful. She will be assisted in the new store by her brother, Joseph.

John Poehlmann has suffered a relapse and is under the constant care of physicians. June 21 he attained to his forty-ninth year.

Otto Amling, of Maywood, and his family will spend the week end in Battle Creek, Mich., with Albert F. Amling. Mr. Amling says the Albert F. Amling Co. has finished planting, and all interest is now centered on the con-

An importation of nine carloads of palms has been received by the Poehlmann Bros. Co., at Morton Grove, and H. M. Oeser, superintendent of the palm department, reports a lively time handling them.

The wholesale florists, through Archie C. Spencer, responded with fifty names to a petition circulated by the Herald for the "big men for a big day" movement. The movement contemplates the joint entertainment of President Wilson and Charles Evans Hughes.

A two weeks' vacation will begin July 1 for Mike Fink, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

Fishing at Love Lake, Ill., is reported good by Will Lorman, John Steinwetz and J. Dlouhy, of the A. L. Randall Co., who spent June 25 there. Three pickerel and eight bass, totaling twenty-three pounds, was the result of their outing.

The second member of the Zech & Mann sales force, Mike Freres, will leave for a two weeks' vacation July 1.

Those spare hours that business leaves to John G. Poehlmann are devoted to the study of military affairs. This is not surprising when one learns that Mr.

Poehlmann is rated for a second lieutenant's commission by virtue of the high character of his work while a student in Culver Military Academy.

If business only would let up a little, so that he could get away, A. Lange would pay a visit to Mount Clemens.

Those who buy greenhouse glass of A. A. Lavaque, of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., can congratulate him on the success of the Englewood Commandery drill team, of which he is a member, in winning the Masonic championship at the Los Angeles conclave of the Knights Templar last week.

This is the day celebrated by P. J. Foley and Lewis H. Winterson. One wed June 29, 1892, the other the same date in 1903.

Among the guardsmen who went to Springfield were F. W. Haeger and John Vance, of the A. L. Randall Co. Summer vacation has taken two men from the cut flower department, Leon Glow and Charles Schuneman. This leaves Eric Johnson and his remaining assistants with their hands full.

C. B. Knickman, of McHutchison & Co., New York, called on customers here early this week on his way to Milwaukee for the nurserymen's convention.

The Market.

The market remains somewhat quieter than is usual at this time of the year. However, as most school graduations come at the end of this month, there is a likelihood of trade being more active during the present week. There are too many flowers in the market and prices during the last few days have been low. Bedding stock is letting up now, but it still is being called for. The heavy rains have made it necessary for many to replant. This not only applies to the laymen, but also to the growers, who have suffered considerably and have had to do outdoor work over two or three times.

Many outdoor flowers are in the market, and they do not move fast. Roses are more than plentiful and sell well. Among the best sellers are My Maryland, White Killarney, Killarney, Russell, Sunburst and Ward. Sweetheart roses are plentiful and sell well. Carnations are abundant and their quality holds up well. The white and pink sell best. Sweet peas are not overplentiful at this time, and there is a steady demand for them. Peonies continue to sell nicely. Outdoor roses and garden pinks are handy for funeral work. Lavender, pink and white stocks also are useful. Gladioli are arriving in good shape and sell well. Valley is plentiful and moves freely. The demand for orchids is not extra large. Bachelor's buttons and white and yellow daisies are plentiful and sell satisfactorily. Greens of all kinds are sufficient.

Various Notes.

The Lady Florists' Association held its monthly meeting June 21, at Highland park. There was a good attendance. After the usual business session, the remainder of the afternoon was spent among the beauty spots of the park. Refreshments were served.

Preparations for the annual flower day are well under way, and the committeemen, members of the Rochester Florists' Association, have been se-

The windows of the George T. Boucher store are always attractive. Last week Mr. Boucher displayed a number of porch jardinieres, filled with dracænas and red geraniums. Business has been good and there was considerable funeral work during the last two weeks.

George Cramer is now with George B. Hart. The remodeling of the house is about completed, and it is a great improvement. A new stairway leads to the shipping department downstairs, and another to the offices upstairs. The new icebox is about twice the size of the old one.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Anybody who would say "Same old thing" of the cut flower market does not understand it, or perhaps does not want to. Of course none of the experts say that; they note that the change in the last two weeks has been decided. Peonies have been taken out of cold storage with less loss than usual, thus making much better average prices. It is surprising how many peonies were used at moderate prices during June. Now they are pretty well over—still obtainable, but not in quantity. Easter lilies have changed from bad to good stock to have. The quality is no better; they have been good all along, barring some short stems, but people want them now at fair prices.

Gladioli are enjoying quite a good time. They are mostly greenhouse-grown America, with some Hollandia, the orange, of fair to medium quality. The outdoor gladioli from Virginia are beginning to arrive. Good, clean roses are selling quite well, though the local demand received a check when a number of fashionable weddings were called off because the troops were ordered to Mexico. The weddings took place, with telephone calls to the guests, but without flowers; they were usually curtailed of all accompaniments and held in advance of the time set. The supply of valley has been shortened. Carnations are still fair, though they feel the heat. Good cattleyas are plentiful and there are some gardenias. Small white flowers abound. To them may be added lavender candytuft.

Roelofs.

We judge a man by what he has accomplished as much as by any other thing. When we think of the achievements of Joseph Heacock we must think of Roelofs. To all of us who are interested in greenhouses, Roelofs is a source of pride. When some great place is described by an out-of-town visitor as a place of extraordinary merit, then advise him most earnestly to see Roelofs. Take him, if possible; it will repay guide and visitor for their time, with interest.

To my mind the greenhouse range of the Joseph Heacock Co., at Roelofs, represents the wise expenditure of a large amount of capital. Everything is of the most substantial type and everything is thoroughly done. The quantity of machinery that can be used to advantage is probably the most surprising feature of the place to anyone who is not accustomed to a large place run on modern principles of economy. In fact, there are few large places that are so well equipped with labor-saving pumps and engines. This machinery makes it possible to secure a high degree of efficiency from the work expended on the place. Add to this the workmen employed on the place, capable and intelligent men, and you have the foundation for a successful establishment. The well-nigh perfect greenhouses, good soil, pure water, abundant light—all are employed to aid in growing roses for cutting. Is it not natural that fine flowers are freely produced?

By far the larger number of roses are being carried over for next season. There are some changes. Radiance is being discarded. This is not from any cultural shortcoming. Radiance grows at Roelofs with amazing vigor. It blooms profusely, but Radiance is not wholly satisfactory to the buyers. It has a habit of remaining half developed for some time and then falling, which is unfortunate. So Radiance is going. With it goes Lady Alice Stanley, which has been found wanting in freedom of bloom in midwinter. In their places more Killarney roses will be grown. This is interesting, because Killarney is on the wane, broadly speaking. The wonderful success of Killarney at Roelofs brings results that are impossible under ordinary conditions. Hadley, too, will be increased in much greater numbers than Killarney, though, of course, the total number of Hadley grown will be but a fraction of that of the Irish rose. It was Robert Jamison's Hadley that won the national sweepstakes, so it is little wonder that the fine block of thrifty young Hadley in 3-inch pots is to stay on.

There are a couple of interesting novelties growing in favored spots, which are more than likely to prove valuable next winter.

A Plant Factory.

It is interesting to know that the Norwood greenhouses of the Robert Craig Co. are so full of plants that room is needed. This is remarkable, because during the last three months such immense quantities of Easter and spring plants have been sent from Norwood to Forty-ninth and Market streets, from whence they are distributed. To meet the need for more room, two greenhouses, each 30x225 feet, and one narrow house, are being removed from Forty-ninth and Market streets to Norwood. They will be erected in the form of three houses, 30x150 feet each. In addition to these a smaller house will be put up. This will give needed room for the fine cyclamens, ericas and begonias that are now rounding into form.

Various Notes.

John J. Perry, Mrs. Perry and Miss Perry, of Baltimore, Md., visited their P.-M. associates in this city June 26.

They were followed by J. E. Morichard and later by Percy B. Rigby, both of New York.

The Leo Niessen Co. announces that its Washington branch, under the management of Albert Schnell, will remove to new and commodious quarters on Eighth street, about September 1. There the company will have two floors and a basement, each 25x100 feet. Cold storage rooms will be installed.

Berger Bros. are receiving beautiful America and Hollandia gladioli from Milton H. Bickley's greenhouses at Chester, Pa. Stockton & Howe, of Princeton, N. J., are sending them fine My Maryland roses. They are meeting a heavy demand for Easter lilies.

Raymond Brunswick, the popular secretary of the M. Rice Co., bravely underwent an operation for appendicitis at the University hospital June 27. His excellent physical condition encourages his friends in the belief that his recovery will be rapid and complete.

T. Malbranc, of Johnstown, Pa., and De Forest Ludwig and brothers, of Pittsburgh, have been with us.

Fred J. Michell, Sr., has opened his cottage at Avalon, N. J. Among the well known florists and seedsmen of this city who have taken their families to Ocean City, N. J., are Charles Fox, Sr., who is justly proud of his turf and garden; Charles E. Meehan, Leo Niessen and Paul F. Richter.

Robert Craig moved his family to Chelsea June 27. It keeps the doctors from the kiddies, he says.

The battle of flowers took place at the Country Club June 23. Some motor cars were decorated and quite a lot of outdoor flowers were used on the booths.

Jacob Becker has closed his flower store at Fifty-second and Market streets. It has been rented to a restaurateur. Mr. Becker will continue to operate the greenhouses.

The Keller Pottery Co. announces an increase in the price of flower pots, made necessary by the increased cost of production.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have rented the building at 1131 Arch street, where they are storing their heavy importations of German goods that arrived on the Ryndam June 26. Phil.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The usual summer dullness now is at hand and thoughts are turned vacationward. Stock is not so plentiful as it has been and the market is in better shape. Carnations are fair in quality, but the size of the flowers is small. Good stock finds a ready sale, but in all grades prices are low. The Japanese iris that is coming into Washington is exceptionally fine, but there is little or no demand for it locally. Delphinium is about at an end, and there is little call for garden flowers, such as coreopsis and Shasta daisies. Water lilies are good this year and sell well.

Easter lilies have not been moving well, but now that the peony season has passed it is expected that they will return to favor. American Beauty roses are scarce; what few good ones come in are picked up immediately by buyers waiting to fill orders. Gardenias are still in large supply and small demand.

Various Notes.

Arthur Niessen, of the Leo Niessen Co., made a periodic trip from Philadelphia last week to look over the store here.

George H. Lavalle, of Berwyn, Md., has added a delivery car to his facilities. Mr. Lavalle is producing good sweet peas and gladioli.

Herbert A. Pennock, of Jupiter, Fla., visited local florists last week while on his way north. Mr. Pennock is calling on those in this territory to whom he makes shipments. He is a large grower of plumosus.

Mrs. George C. Shaffer, who has been ill since Christmas, is showing signs of recovery, now that the weather has turned warmer. Mrs. Shaffer has been active as the head of the ladies' aux-

There is considerable complaint among the growers of asters of the continued cold and wet weather, which is causing the plants to go almost entirely to foliage. Grave fears are expressed as to the probable outcome of this year's crop. B. Winkler, who has an acre of asters on his place at Chevy Chase, Md., says that leaf and stem-rot have already set in. He has 4,000 early and 4,000 late asters. Last year his crop was exceptionally good. A continued drought enabled him to use the sprinkler system, which takes care of the entire acre, to good advantage. He has several lines of pipe through which water from Rock creek is forced at the rate of about 3,000 gallons per hour.

William M. Hetherington, son of Joseph H. Hetherington, who formerly worked with his father for the Robert Craig Co., of Philadelphia, is visiting his brother, J. Harper Hetherington, of this city.

NEWARK.

The Market.

Better weather prevailed last week and business responded. Transient trade is beginning to recede, now that summer has arrived. The number of weddings increased greatly last week and there were many funeral orders for this time of the year. Japanese maples, hydrangeas, rhododendrons, wistarias, boxwood, bushes and plants have had a good sale. There also has been quite a demand for ferns of various kinds. Sweet williams have been disposed of in large quantities, but they now are passing. The same is true of heliotropes, verbenas, petunias, etc. Pansies have gone. Roses are plentiful and their prices are moderate, considering the season. The cloudy weather checked the supply of sweet peas, but now, with more sun, they are coming into the market in large quantities and in great variety. Carnations are plentiful. Phloxes are beginning to arrive and marigolds are available in quantities. Spiræas are plentiful and of high quality. There is a moderate supply of daisies, coreopsis, etc. Peonies are plentiful, the larger varieties being abundant.

Various Notes.

Henry Breninger is making a specialty of ferns and rubber plants. Now that summer is here, there will be a constantly decreasing demand for cut flowers.

A. Deisler & Son report a falling off in the sales of cut flowers but plenty of funeral work.

Charles Luthy decorated his store for the Springfield Avenue Merchants' Week celebration. He reports business as being good.

Mrs. A. Gahr says business has improved considerably since she moved into the new store. The old store was on the opposite side of the street, so the change of location was not much, but the new quarters are larger and lighter and attract more customers.

Joseph D. Kroehl, Jr., was at his store last week for the first time in several months, having been confined to his home by a severe attack of rheumatism. He will not be at the store during the summer, but will work in his greenhouses at Union, in the hope that the work will prove beneficial.

G. Ludolff has opened a flower shop at 85 Springfield avenue. He will take over the plant trade carried on by Ludolff & Kautzmann, who will specialize in cut flowers and artificial flowers.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The regular meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, which was held at Glen Cove June 14, was well attended. President James MacDonald presided. Secretary Gibson read a large number of letters in which the writers offered prizes in the coming autumn exhibition. The prize list is already a large one and the schedules, which the executive committee now are working on, are sure to be complete.

The exhibits of the evening were judged by George Gilder, Joseph Adler and Thomas Twigg. Harry Goodband was awarded first prize for a vase of a flowering shrub, as well as James McCarthy, for twelve pods of peas. It was decided to hold a sweet pea exhibition in July and the executive committee was instructed to draw up a schedule and to make arrangements.

James De Vyner, entomologist of Mount Vernon, gave a lecture on "The Hickory Bark Beetle and the Means of Controlling Same." The lecture was replete with practical information and proved to be unusually instructive. In connection with his talk Mr. De Vyner exhibited some hickory wood that had been infested with the beetle and also showed some specimens of the insect in its various stages of life, from the larva to the adult. At the conclusion of the lecture, the lecturer was questioned at considerable length with regard to various points brought out.

The essay received from the National Association of Gardeners, entitled "The Preparation of Ground for, and General Treatment of, Hardy Perennials," by H. E. Downer, of Massachusetts, was an interesting paper, most favorably received by the members.

James McCarthy, Cor. Sec'y.

The Market.

The market was overloaded with stock last week, with business poor and prices far down. Stock is in an excellent condition for this time of the year. With society folks on their summer vacations, retailers are not looking forward to much business, except in funeral work. Growers are active and preparations are being made for a large increase in the supply of cut flowers for this market. Last week the wholesalers carried considerably more stock than they could dispose of and job-lot prices prevailed. Sweet peas were a glut last week and on some days the prices fell to $1 per thousand. Carnations, too, were plentiful. Blooms of excellent quality had to be sacrificed in order to clear them. On some days roses, too, arrived in large quantities. Lilies and valley hold their own in price and there is an excellent demand for them. Gladioli are arriving in fine condition and prices on these are down to $2 and $3 per hundred. All greens sell well at the usual prices.

Various Notes.

The Retail Florists' Association held its monthly meeting at the Mission Inn Garden, June 19. President Charles Young and Secretary Fred C. Weber, Jr., report the meeting well attended. Much important business was transacted. A board of trustees was appointed to take charge of plans for the summer meetings and the increase of

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., spent a day last week looking over the damage done by the hail at Kirkwood. He is a director of the Florists' Hail Association.

The new greenhouse plant of Henry Blixen, known as the Woodland Gardens, at Edwardsville, Ill., has been completed. The big rose houses have been planted and the young stock is in a fine condition. The young carnation plants in the field are excellent. The stock from this place will be consigned to the St. Louis market.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold its next meeting July 5, at the Eleven Mile House. President Winter and Secretary Deutschmann have arranged for a large attendance.

George Schmidt, rose grower for W. J. Pilcher, broke his arm a few weeks ago, but is back at work again. The cut of roses this season has been large and of excellent quality.

The C. Young & Sons Co. has leased its present quarters for a term of five years. Shipping orders this year are reported to have exceeded those of any previous year. The aquatic display in the window of the Olive street store is quite attractive.

ment orders were particularly large. Grimm & Gorly and the Mullanphy Florists report a splendid June business.

The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. was incorporated last week with a capital stock of $20,000, all paid up. The incorporators are David Geddis, J. J. Beneke and F. P. Maid. The new company will start operations September 1.

D. I. Bushnell, Ben Corneli, Clifford Corneli and August Barnidge, who attended the convention of the American Seed Trade Association at Chicago last week, have returned home, and are pleased with the few days' stay at the Windy City. They report an excellent meeting.

Professor H. C. Irish, who will have charge of the National Apple Growers' Association's meeting to be held here August 2 and 3, at the Planters hotel, says he expects this to be a largely attended affair. He is promised assistance by the officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club.

David Geddis, manager of Vandervoort's flower department, reports that he has closed a most successful season in all lines. The first season in handling bird houses was a great success.

Marion Uhlschmidt, manager of the East St. Louis store of Grimm & Gorly, states that this season's business was a great increase over that of any previous year. Plans are being made for improvements at this store, for the opening of the fall season.

BOSTON.

The Market.

With college commencements and school graduations over and the month of weddings nearing an end, business, which has been quite good, is sinking down to its summer level. Growers of peonies and hardy roses find their crops in season too late this year to be of much value, but the indoor flowers have sold so well that they have in a large measure made up for this. Roses sold nicely until June 23, when they started to accumulate, and they now move sluggishly. I never saw flowers of finer quality before at this late date, and the same is true of carnations.

American Beauties are in moderate demand at $15 to $20 per hundred for the best. Among the hybrid teas Ophelia, Killarney Brilliant, Ward, Russell, Francis Scott Key, Miller and Hadley are all good and are selling moderately well. Carnations still are of a quality such as we usually see in March, but people are tired of them, wanting other flowers. As a consequence, prices run low.

Indoor sweet peas, owing to the absence of torrid weather, are still good and sell at fair prices. A few outdoor flowers appeared this week, but these are late this season. Lily of the valley has been bringing abnormal prices and is not in heavy supply. Peonies are at their flood tide, and, while they would have sold finely even a week ago, they are neglected. Lilies have been selling well.

Among miscellaneous flowers delphiniums, sweet williams, digitalis, Canterbury bells, gaillardias and others are noted. Yellow marguerites, bachelor's buttons, feverfew and a variety of miscellaneous flowers meet with an uncertain call. Gladiolus America is good, but in oversupply; so are other gladioli. Fewer cattleyas are to be seen. The varieties now are chiefly C. Gaskelliana and C. gigas. Asparagus and ferns have been selling well this month. The bedding plant trade is nearing an end. A number of growers say they have a considerable surplus of stock on hand, which they attribute to the cold, wet season.

Club Meeting.

There was an attendance of 250 at the club meeting June 20. Four new members were elected. Communications were read relative to the Houston convention and Bar Harbor sweet pea show. A letter of good cheer was voted to be sent to the veteran, Mrs. E. M. Gill, the oldest honorary member of the club, who was reported seriously ill at her home. Announcements were made regarding the club picnic to be held at Cunningham park, East Milton, July 27.

The regular business was materially shortened in order that all present could enjoy the entertainment prepared. This was, as usual, of a high-class character and included solos by Miss Edgar, of Waverley; Miss Margaret Alexander and John Daniels; duets by Miss Alexander and Mr. Daniels; violin selections by Mr. Duguid, Jr., and some fine humorous songs and monologues by Mr. Weston. Following the entertainment a generous collation was served, which was succeeded by dancing, in which nearly everyone seemed to take part, enjoying it thoroughly.

The Peony Exhibition.

In spite of one week's postponement, the dates June 17 and 18 proved a full week too early for peonies around Boston, and the exhibition was merely a ghost of what it should have been. However, displays of hardy perennials helped to make a nice exhibition. Few local peonies were staged.

In the class of twenty varieties G. H. Peterson was first; A. H. Fewkes, second. For ten varieties, three blooms of each, G. H. Peterson again was first; Mrs. C. S. Minot, second. For six named varieties, G. H. Peterson, first; Mrs. C. S. Minot, second. For six varieties, rose pink, G. H. Peterson, first; Mrs. C. S. Minot, second. Six varieties, salmon pink, G. H. Peterson, first; S. C. Harris, second. Six varieties, red or crimson, G. H. Peterson, first; S. C. Harris, second. Twelve named varieties, non-commercial, William Thatcher, gardener to Mrs. J. L. Gardner, first. Twelve blooms of pink, non-commercial, William Thatcher, first.

The Wellesley Nurseries had a fine collection, not for competition, of peonies and German irises. A. H. Fewkes had a fine vase of Pæonia Mme. Calot, and William Thatcher one of P. magnifica.

T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. had the largest and best collection of hardy rhododendrons and were also in the lead for twelve varieties. Duncan Finlayson won for six varieties.

There was a fine display of German irises. For twenty-four vases H. M. Dumphe was first and H. F. Chase, second. For twenty-five varieties of herbaceous plants Duncan Finlayson was the sole competitor. For twenty varieties the Blue Hill Nurseries won with a fine assortment.

The Mount Desert Nurseries, of Bar Harbor, Me., had an artistic display of eremuri, irises and other hardy flowers, set up in bamboos. J. K. Alexander had a collection of German irises. The Blue Hill Nurseries had displays of hemerocallis and irises. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. had a nice collection of fuchsias. They received a silver medal for an extensive display of hardy herbaceous plants and shrubs. Henry Stewart, gardener to Miss Cornelia Warren, had a collection of hardy perennials.

One of the most notable exhibits was a table of hybrid irises from Miss Grace Sturtevant, who has done much crossing in the Germanica section. For the general display she received a well merited silver medal. One variety, Stanley N. White, received a first-class certificate. A number of seedlings exhibited showed a striking advance over existing varieties.

Donald McKenzie, gardener to E. B. Dane, had a nice collection of cut orchids. The Blue Hill Nurseries received honorable mention for Thalictrum aquilegifolium purpureum. J. T. Butterworth had fine miltonias and other orchids.

Various Notes.

Interest in the outing of the members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club to Bar Harbor, Me., who will leave Boston, Rowe's wharf, at 5:30 p. m., July 14, is steadily growing, and a large party is now assured. In addition to the exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society, July 15 and 16, the beautiful gardens of Bar Harbor and the enchanting scenery along the coast of Maine and on Mount Desert island will be enjoyed. Steamer reservations are being rapidly taken up and early application for any of the remaining should be made to W. N. Craig, of Brookline, Mass., who will be glad to furnish full information about the excursion, rates, hotel accommodations, etc.

The coming of the Waban Rose Conservatories to Winthrop square means that the entire wholesale cut flower trade of Boston now is centralized here. In addition to the two wholesale flower markets, there are the wholesale commission houses of the Welch Bros. Co., P. Welch, Welch's, H. M. Robinson & Co., N. F. McCarthy & Co., the New England Florists' Supply Co., McAlpine & McDonald, B. A. Snyder & Co., the Boston Rose Co., the Budlong Rose Co., and William H. Elliott.

John McFarland, of North Easton, says his sweet peas are flowering so well that he hates to pull them up to make room for chrysanthemums. He has a fine cut of lilies and is, as usual, working up a big stock of poinsettias.

At Galvin's some attractive displays of aquatic flowers are being featured. Wedding orders here have been numerous of late.

From present indications the annual rose and strawberry show at Horticultural hall, July 1 and 2, should prove an excellent one. The cool, showery weather has greatly favored hardy roses, which are unusually luxuriant.

windows is striking and can be read as far away as Summer street.

Early closing will go into force Saturdays during July and August at the wholesale flower markets and some of the commission houses.

June has proved to be an unusual month. We have had few clear days and no really warm ones. Vegetation is much later than normal. At present peonies are at their best; kalmias and philadelphus are also in the heyday of their glory.

E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum staff, was honored with an M. A. degree from Harvard last week for his labors in the field of botany and plant collecting.

Owing to the persistent rain June 25, the day of the picnic of the Boston Florists' Bowling League at Lake Boone, the sports, including baseball, had to be postponed. There was a good attendance, but it had to be an indoor celebration.

Sir William Robertson, who has been mentioned as a successor to the late Lord Kitchener, is first cousin to Duncan Robertson, one of Penn's genial artists.

Owing to the extreme lateness of the season, the annual rose and strawberry show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, scheduled for June 24 and 25, has been postponed to July 1 and 2. Both roses and strawberries promise splendid crops and the later date set will suit them.

F. W. Fletcher, of Auburndale, has this season 700,000 bulbs of his new pure white improvement on Freesia Purity. He also has some other fine varieties. W. N. C.

The annual rose show of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at the Nassau Country Club, June 16. Despite the lateness of the season, there was a large and splendid display of roses, herbaceous flowers, annuals and vegetables. Unfortunately, none of the hybrid perpetual roses were open, so the rose section consisted entirely of teas and hybrid teas. Of these, however, there was a large assortment of the finest quality, the newer varieties and novelties, as well as the old favorites, being well represented. In this section Frank O. Johnson, gardener for Harold Pratt, reigned supreme, capturing first prize in every rose class in which there was competition. In addition to Mr. Johnson, the principal exhibitors were Henry Gaut, gardener for Herbert Pratt; John Everitt, gardener for John Pratt; Harry Goodband, gardener for S. D. Brewster; James McCarthy, gardener for W. E. Kimball. The prize for the best collection of outdoor-grown flowers was won by Henry Gaut, with James McCarthy second. In other classes the awards were: Collection of annuals, James McCarthy, first; Harry Goodband, second. Collection of vegetables, Joseph Robinson, gardener for W. R. Coe, first; Robert Jones, gardener for Percy Chubb, second. Table decoration, Joseph Adler, gardener for H. Sadew, first.

There also were good exhibits in the non-competitive section, the principal exhibitors being Samuel Trepass, gardener for Mrs. H. Whitney; William Noonan, gardener for C. F. Cartiledge; W. C. Jones, gardener for Mrs. J. C. Ayre. Mr. Noonan staged a fine collection of outdoor flowers comprising thirty-eight varieties, which was awarded a certificate of culture. The judges were James Holloway, William Gray and George Ashworth.

Germain Seed & Plant Co.

Los Angeles, Feb. 25, 1916. By M. L. Germain, Pres.

FOLIAGE PLANTS IN GROUPS.

The accompanying illustration gives a good idea of the pretty form effects that may be produced by the use of foliage plants alone, but, unfortunately, the picture does not reproduce the splendid color effect. The nursery department of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., of Los Angeles, this year decided to break away from the usual mixed groups of foliage and flowering plants and depend on foliage plants alone for its displays at local shows. The departure has been thoroughly successful in every way, as visitors return to the group again and again, each time finding some little thing they had not seen before.

The picture shows the arrangement of the display, and the principal plants used were: Weeping willows, in the rear; Japanese cut-leaved maples in many pretty tones of color; Pittosporum Tobira variegatum, green, with silver variegation; golden euonymus, Duc d' Anjou; golden privet; Lonicera Japonica aureo-reticulata; Nandina domestica, a lovely plant, not nearly so popular as it deserves to be, with red-tinted foliage becoming blood-red with age and producing berries as handsome as those of a skimmia or ardisia; Retinospora filifera aurea, the beautiful old Sophie Dumaresque and Lady Pollock geraniums, red and yellow achyranthes and others. It may be thought that there is little variation to be had in groups of this kind, but the decorators of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. have shown by their exhibits at the various shows that this is not so. They have been a distinct success from an artistic as well as a commercial point of view.

Foliage Plant Display at Pasadena, by Germain Seed & Plant Co.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The town was given over to the Knights Templar last week and, while some trade resulted, it was not by any means an unmixed good. On certain days it was hard to make or obtain deliveries of stock, owing to the crowded condition of the streets, which were closed to vehicular traffic during the parades. But the end of the week will see the floral parade, when doubtless a far greater number of flowers than usual will be needed. A practically unlimited supply of all the cheaper grades of flowers is now pouring into the city from all sides, asters, gladioli, carnations, centaureas and sweet peas being the most plentiful. Roses are fair in quality and there are plenty to select from. Boston and Whitmani ferns are scarce in the best qualities, although as always there are plenty of unsalable plants in the market. Dahlias are fine now and make a gorgeous display. Valley is short and orchids are plentiful. The greens situation is about normal.

The cool weather has been good for all kinds of planting and it has given the nurserymen a good chance to finish work left over. To a marked extent, too, it has led to increased sales, as

ORCHIDS .....$7.50 per doz. SPRENGERI ....$1.00 per 100
CUT VALLEY ... 5.00 per 100 ROSES .$2.00 to 6.00 per 100
PLUMOSUS..... 1.00 per 100

FARMINGTON,

people will garden here until the hot weather starts in and then quit. As sales have continued until after midsummer, the season must be considered satisfactory.

Various Notes.

The joint picnic of the Pasadena and Los Angeles County Horticultural Societies, at Santa Monica cañon, was a great success. About 150 were present and all reported an excellent time. Owing to the absence of some of the Los Angeles heavyweights, it is said, the tug of war was decided in favor of Pasadena.

G. Martin, with Elgert L. Martin, of Covina, says they are well pleased with the results of the opening of the new place and that the carnation stock is selling finely.

A. Knopf, of the Redondo Floral Co., says they are better satisfied every month with the change in location to Seventh and Broadway. Not only is there a larger volume of transient trade, but it is of a better character than that at the old stand at Third and Spring streets.

S. Murata & Co. say that business is good both in the city and in out-of-town shipments, but that city deliveries have been badly held up on account of parades and other disturbances. The asters now arriving are high-grade.

George W. Smith appears to have got hold of the lion's share of the big decorations in honor of the Knights Templar. The scenes of the high jinks and ceremonies, at the Shrine auditorium, the Temple auditorium, the Alexandria and the Scottish Rite cathedral, were all his work, and when all were completed there was hardly a good kentia left in the nursery, large or small. The business at the store on Seventh and Figueroa streets has been good.

H. W. Turner has a fine stock of the new yellow rose, Tipperary, which seems likely to prove a winner. The color is superior to that of any other yellow rose at present being grown here, and although the flowers being cut are from young stock they appear to be good in texture and stem. Mr. Turner says it is one of the most profuse bloomers. Large plantings of Hoosier Beauty are being made this year, this rose being intended to replace Hadley.

H. Plath, of the Ferneries, San Francisco, was in town last week on his way north from a trip to San Diego, which he says has been enjoyable. Mrs. Plath and his daughter accompanied him. They left for home June 22.

Mrs. Alois Frey, of Crown Point, Ind., was in the city this week superintending the lifting and shipping of the California-grown stock of Rainbow freesias.

The H. N. Gage Co., of Montebello, is shipping fine field-grown carnations in all the leading outdoor varieties. L. L. Gage, who is in charge of the nursery, reports business as being good.

Theodore Payne is on a northern trip.

Charles Winsel, having his Montebello nursery in fine shape, has disposed of his Washington street branch.

Charles Gutting has returned from his trip to Bear lake, looking much better for the change. Mrs. Gutting also was at the lake a few days last week.

The Los Angeles Floral Co. continues busy with out-of-town shipments, which comprise plants as well as cut flowers.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The cut flower market last week was nothing to brag about. Business was not brisk and the quantity of stock seemed to increase daily, making it impossible to clean up the supplies through the usual channels. As a consequence, carnations, sweet peas and outdoor summer stock of various kinds were sold on the streets at minimum prices and had a tendency to cut down counter trade still further than otherwise would have been the case. As a matter of fact, the principal difficulty was an oversupply of stock rather than really poor business. Quantities of flowers were sold, but the large surplus made it look as if comparatively little stock was moved. All the summer stock shows excellent quality. Many cornflowers are absorbed and scabiosas are popular. Good zinnias are arriving and asters are becoming plentiful.

The principal feature of the market is the gladiolus. Florists say they never before saw so many gladioli coming at once, which is due to the fact that growers planted at the same time. The supply of dahlias is increasing rapidly, there being many cactus dahlias. Delice is fine and Minnie Burgle is all that can be desired. Roses continue in abundant supply and the demand holds up particularly well, considering the large variety of cheaper summer flowers the market affords. My Maryland is having a good sale and Ophelia cleans up at fair prices. Sunburst and September Morn come in for due attention, while baby roses enjoy their usual wholesome demand. Beauties show fine quality for this time of the year and sell fairly well. Valley is scarce and the supply of orchids barely fits the demand. Quantities of fine hydrangeas still are arriving and unusually fine cockscomb is offered. Greens are in ample supply.

Various Notes.

The Misses Hannon, who have been temporarily located on Sutter street, near Stockton, for some time, have decided not to move back to their former location on Polk street. They probably will take a new location downtown.

E. W. McLellan, of the E. W. McLellan Co., has purchased a new automobile for his own use. This company still has a nice cut of Beauties, although these are the low-ebb days of these roses.

E. James is bringing in some of the finest cockscomb ever seen in this market.

Theodore Payne, a seedsman of Los Angeles, visited the local trade recently.

The chrysanthemum growers have been planting since May and hope to finish by the middle of July at the latest. They report the weather as being all that could be desired and are looking forward to an excellent season. From all indications the acreage will be fully as large as it was last year.

Domoto Bros. report a good shipping business, principally of valley, roses and gladioli, and they anticipate further development in the demand for flowers from the far east.

V. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his 8-year-old son.

Isaac H. Wolfe, with Joseph's, on Grant avenue, has returned to duty after a pleasant outing at Lake Tahoe. He was gone a month.

The United Flower & Supply Co. is extending its shipping business farther east and reports that this branch of the business is progressing rapidly. The

PORTLAND, ORE.

About forty members attended the meeting of the Portland Floral Society held June 20. The final report of the committee in charge of the floral center was heard. A committee appointed to look into the matter of a stricter enforcement of the laws against the pilfering of plants and shrubbery from lawns, cemeteries, etc., reported that no method had been suggested that seemed likely to help matters. The committee was continued and asked to make further investigation.

A communication from Secretary Young, of the S. A. F., asking contributions to a benefit fund for the originator of Mothers' day, was read and action deferred. The annual balloting for officers resulted as follows, a Edgar Strauss, of the Lubliner store, was at Walla Walla on a vacation.

Santa Cruz, Cal.—The sweet pea and gladiolus show recently held here was pronounced one of the best of its kind ever staged on the coast. W. E. King, one of the judges, reports that the Southern Pacific officials offered to transport the entire exhibit to San Francisco and provide care-takers when it arrived there. C. C. Morse & Co., of San Francisco, were donors of prizes for amateurs and their local establishment staged a fine exhibit of sweet peas, comprising many varieties. Mr. King says that the extra fine quality of sweet peas this year may be attributed to the unseasonably cool weather.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

H. A. NALDRETT has arrived in New York for his annual trip for Kelway & Son, Langport, England.

WET weather has cost the growers of pansy seed more dollars than a few. Many blooms have rotted instead of setting seeds.

THE peas in Michigan and Wisconsin are decidedly late and the chances of injury are increasing every day the cold, wet weather continues.

THE Four States Seed Co., of Clayton, N. M., has been incorporated at $5,000, all paid up. The directors are: A. Hartner, of Denver, Colo.; W. L. Franklin, of Clayton, N. M.; A. Heglemen, of Denver, Colo.

THE onion sets around Chicago, now the one great growing center for this specialty, have had a lot more rain than they needed through June and the fields are spotty, some excellent pieces and some not nearly so good.

THE British order in council prohibiting the importation of bulbs and plants does not apply to those grown in France, but bars those grown in Japan and Guernsey as well as in Holland. Romans, Paper Whites and candidums from France can be marketed in England.

JUNE has been an excellent month for the seed trade. Of course mail orders have dwindled to almost nothing and counter sales of seeds have become almost as small, but plants, which are a feature of steadily increasing importance in seed stores, have sold in unusual numbers all through the month.

GALLOWAY BROS., Waterloo, Ia., are doubling the capacity of their garden seed warehouse. According to George Hall, general business has been better with them than it was last year. He says there are strong indications of a repetition of last season's clover seed conditions, as there has already been too much rain.

A. M. ELDRIDGE, Shenandoah, Ia., secretary of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association, under date of June 20 issued "A Little Story" about that organization's annual convention earlier in the month, a 4-page leaflet that won't tell you a whole lot about the seed business but will make you smile as you read it. Send for it, and mark Mr. Eldridge as a westerner worth watching.

SINCE England announced that imports of Dutch bulbs will be refused admission this year, the trade in America has been receiving many offers from firms not well known in this country and which have heretofore found their principal market in the British Isles. The situation in Holland is shown by the fact that prices on tulips are not cut to any great extent, but that offers of hyacinths are made much below prices at which export orders have been taken by the travelers who visited America this season. Narcissi, too, especially where the character of the bulb is not specified, are offered at extremely cheap prices. These offers, while apparently producing little business for

FRENCH BULBS UNDERSIZED.

Cables from shippers of French bulbs convey the information that the lifting of the crops has developed that the bulbs are undersized and that grades must be changed accordingly if orders are to be filled. These are the grades proposed for 1916:

Paper Whites .....12 to 15 centimeters
Romans .....11 to 15 centimeters

Of course there is nothing for the importer to do but accept the smaller sizes, although it is perfectly well understood that a large percentage of the Paper Whites will run in the smaller size, where thirteen centimeters heretofore has been the limit. The complexity of the situation is increased by the statement by some of the shippers that they will be able to fill a part of their orders with bulbs graded to the regular sizes, or that regular grades can be had in moderate quantity if prices be revised in accordance.

It is expected that the movement of the crop will be a little later than usual, due to labor shortage, the difficulties

TIME TO SOW

It is said that there is a time for everything, but never mind about that, it is surely time to sow seed of SNAPDRAGON for winter blooms. Grow your own stock from seed and have good plants at hand when you need them. Besides securing something good for yourself, there will be a strong market for any surplus plants, as the rainy season throughout our country has spoiled lots of stock. Get busy today and select from the following good ones:

Seed of our famous Silver Pink Snapdragon, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Phelps' White, our Yellow, Garnet, Buxton, and Fancy Mixed, at 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00. Free cultural directions; all orders cash.

Remember—we grow Snapdragons, and that it is time to sow seed of them.

THE SEED TRADE CONVENTION.

Officers Elected.

At the closing session of the thirty-fourth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, in Chicago, June 22, the following officers were elected:

President—Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.

First vice-president—F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.

Second vice-president—L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.

Secretary-treasurer—C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

Assistant secretary—S. F. Willard, Jr., Cleveland, O.

Counsel—Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.

Executive committee—J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; J. L. Hunt, Cambridge, N. Y.; H. M. Earl, Philadelphia, Pa.; L. H. Vaughan, Chicago; W. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md.

Membership committee—J. C. Robinson, Waterloo, Neb.; Ben P. Corneli, St. Louis; H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.

Meeting Place.

The selection of a place of meeting for the next annual convention was referred to the executive committee. An almost unanimous sentiment prevailed that Chicago should be made the alternate meeting place.

Secretary Kendel reported this as the largest convention in the history of the trade, over sixty per cent of the members of the association being represented. He also called attention to the fact that the next largest meeting was held in Chicago four years ago.

New Members.

Those elected to membership June 22, in addition to the list printed last week, were:

Clinton Falls Nursery & Seed Co., Owatonna, Minn.
O. M. Scott & Sons Co., Marysville, Neb.

The Importance of Costs.

Robert E. Belt, special agent of the Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D. C., read a splendid paper on the importance of true costs and of the cooperative work of the commission in improving accounting methods and business practice.

"Unfortunately," said Mr. Belt, "the value and importance of proper cost accounts are often underestimated. So long as the details of a business can be carried in mind, cost records are not so essential, but when this cannot be done, it becomes absolutely necessary for the safe conduct of business that costs be kept. They serve three broad purposes: First, they show the cost of each product; second, they permit the elimination of unprofitable business; and third, they establish a correct basis upon which to make prices. To sell blindly a product of which the complete cost is not known almost invariably produces bad results, not only to the company, but to the industry as a whole. Your most dangerous competitor is the man who does not know what his goods cost him.

We have a copy of Mr. Anton C. Zvolanek's interesting price list ready for you, if you failed to receive the one mailed you a few days ago. Mr. Zvolanek is the originator of the Winter Sweet Pea, having produced all but two of the several hundred Winter-flowering Sweet Peas now known to the botanist—more than 106 distinct varieties developed from his Orchid-flowering type are now grown throughout the world. Sweet Peas from Zvolanek seed, exhibited by Mr. Zvolanek and other prominent growers, have gathered first prizes everywhere. The four latest honors were First Prizes at the Philadelphia National Flower Show and the New York International Flower Show, and the Gold Medals of Honor at both the San Francisco and San Diego Expositions. Last year's crop was sold out very early. Orders are filled in the order of their receipt. We urge ordering now—from the novelties offered below or from the price list we will gladly send.

"In my opinion, the day will come when the success of a business man will depend upon the information a complete and accurate system gives him. It will be as essential as good workmen and a good organization.

"The Federal Trade Commission is urging merchants and manufacturers to give this subject the attention it deserves. In its work it has found that a majority of our business failures can be attributed to poor accounting and inadequate business information. It has found that bad office methods, inadequate and unreliable costs of production and distribution cause a great deal of unfair competition and a heavy business death rate.

"The trouble is that too many people in figuring profit fail to take into account all the expense incurred in conducting their business. There is no net profit until everything in the way of expense and service is taken care of, including depreciation, taxes, insurance in all its forms, losses from bad debts, price discounts, expense in collecting outstanding receivables, etc. The omission of such items as these is the reason that the final profit and loss account at the end of the year is so often disappointing, and so difficult to reconcile with the profit percentage that was added to the supposed cost of the goods.

"It is of great importance to those engaged in a particular industry that they agree on the elements or fundamentals of a cost practice, especially to make sure that all of the elements of cost are included in their calculations. Make sure that you have included in your cost an adequate provision for depreciation and every expense of every description incurred during the year. The test of the accuracy of a cost system is that it dovetails in and coördinates with the financial books of account. The costs then, in the aggregate, at least, must be correct.

"Excellent results are being attained by trade associations appointing a man to devote his entire time to visiting the concerns that are engaged in their industry, getting acquainted, preaching the gospel of good accounting practice, reconciling differences and standardizing methods. There should be no selfish motives back of such service. There should be the same willingness and free spirit to help and to aid and bring in line the non-member of an organization as there is manifested in the member. The non-member is usually the trouble-maker. In the interest of the industry, he should be guided by the experience of others. The fallacies and disastrous results of bad business practice should be pointed out to him.

"The Federal Trade Commission, under the direction of the vice-chairman, Edward N. Hurley, is aiding and cooperating with trade associations and with individual merchants and manufacturers in improving accounting methods and business practice. The work of the commission has shown that an amazing number of smaller merchants and manufacturers have no adequate system of determining their costs and price their goods arbitrarily."

The Law and the Trade.

During the session the following resolution was adopted: "Resolved that this association is opposed to any legislation affecting germination of seeds, nullifying the disclaimer or interfering with interstate commerce."

In an eloquent address, J. S. Michael, of Sioux City, in behalf of the association, presented Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lupton with a large mahogany mantel clock and candlesticks, in appreciation of their services during the last year. Mr. Lupton made a brief but feeling reply.

The Talk in the Lobby.

The most interesting part of a convention ordinarily is the talk among the members outside the meetings; then the high lights develop. From the talk in the lobby during the seed trade convention it was apparent that nearly everyone has had a good season, in spite of the poor start, the late spring, the general shortage of seeds and the higher costs all along the line.

In a general way all seedsmen are concerned with four subjects, the first being the individual and vital one of meeting competition. The second also is an individual problem, that of seed supply, quality and price. Third in point of interest comes the multiplicity of seed laws and their increasing severity, which bears on each member in a different way, according to the character of his business. The fourth interest lies in the force of the disclaimer, for accidents still happen in the best regulated business families.

Next season is not expected to be far different from last season in its general features, but the prospects of short supplies and high prices are not viewed with the same alarm as last summer.

THE KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

Seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22. GIANT KENILWORTH STRAIN. The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches. It is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.
24. GIANT KENILWORTH SHOW. An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance. A beautiful collection of colors and markings.
26. GIANT KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.
28. GIANT MASTERPIECE. A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stem.
30. GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES. A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich, velvety colors; reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large, dark blotches.
32. GIANT PARISIAN. The flowers are of enormous size and beautifully marked, mostly fine dark blotches on white and yellow ground; an unusually showy mixture.
34. GIANT BRONZE. A fine mixture of all shades of velvety brown, bronze, Havana brown, mahogany and copper shades.
45. GIANT APOLLO (Masterpiece type). New bronze, veined and blotched. Strongly frilled petals. A superb Pansy.
47. GIANT ERFORDIA (New Red). Of the Masterpiece type. The largest and best red. The result of ten years of selection. The color is of a deep, smooth, velvet red shading to scarlet, with curled petals and sweet scented.
49. GIANT MERCURY. New. A deep blackish purple, really self-colored, without blotches or spots. The flowers are extraordinary in size and substance, being the largest flowers of all self-colored Pansies.
52. ORCHID FLOWERED, Mixed. A dwarf, free bloomer, with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other Pansies; a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois.

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming Giant Pansies

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the Summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
15. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations. 500 seeds 50c., 1000 seeds $1.00, ⅛ oz. $2.00, ¼ oz. $3.75, 1 oz. $15.00.
20. PRINCESS. The New Upright Pansy.

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weatherproof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy, velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 Seeds 20c., 1000 Seeds 35c., ⅛ oz. $1.00, ¼ oz. $2.00, 1 oz. $7.50.

FREE OFFER RAINBOW is a mixture of the most beautiful, gorgeous colors, blotched, striped, veined, margined, etc. With every $1.00 worth of Pansy seed I will send, free, 1000 seeds of Rainbow and with other amounts in like proportion.

Prices of Kenilworth Pansy Seed

All sorts and mixtures except the new Pansy Princess and the Early Flowering or Winter Blooming are $5.00 per oz., $1.25 per ¼ oz.; 5000 seeds $1.00; trade pkt. of 1000 seeds 25c; any 5 pkts. $1.00. Please order by number.

A new disease of cucumbers, known as the mosaic disease, has appeared during the last few years in commercial greenhouses and in fields where cucumbers are grown for pickling purposes. centered, particularly in the states of Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois and Minnesota. In greenhouses, the disease was reported from Illinois as early as 1908, and is known to occur to a more or less limited extent in New York, Louisiana, Pennsylvania and other states. In the greenhouse the disease is quite similar in its principal symptoms to those found in the field, the principal differences being that the disease appears to be more virulent, many of the plants wilting and dying.

The mosaic disease has recently been studied by the Michigan Experiment Station in coöperation with the Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and by the University of Rochester in coöperation with the Cornell University Agricultural Experiment Station, and its nature discovered. It belongs to the same class as the other mosaic diseases of tobacco, potato, tomato, pokeweed and other plants, which have been known for some time. The exact cause of this class of troubles has not been discovered, but it is considered to be what is known as a filterable virus, an agent of infection which is so finely divided that it will pass through a porcelain filter and still retain its ability to reproduce the disease when injected into healthy plants. It has been definitely proven that plant lice transferred from diseased to healthy plants will carry the disease. It is also practically certain that the disease is spread by pickers when harvesting the cucumbers.

Judging from the nature of the disease and from the preliminary experiments thus far carried out, the remedial measures indicated by our present knowledge are (1) the eradication or control of insect pests which act as carriers of the disease, and (2) the application of sanitary measures to eliminate the sources of infection.

CUCUMBERS NOT SETTING.

I have a house planted to cucumbers, which are failing to develop any fruit. They bloom in great profusion, but the small cucumbers turn yellow and disappear. Do cucumbers in a house need any artificial fertilizing? If so, how should this be done? C. O. G.—Mo.

Yes, cucumbers need artificial pollination to insure a good crop. Of course at this season, when insects are abundant, it is not so necessary to pollinate as it is earlier. The best plan, and one adopted by many of the most successful cucumber specialists, is to keep hives of bees in the houses. This will insure a heavy set. Try to secure one or two hives. Until they arrive, give the plants a shake early in the afternoon each day to distribute the pollen. C. W.

Fergus Falls, Minn.—August Anderson, market gardener, has completed the erection of a large greenhouse.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY GROWING

VIOLETS

BY GEORGE SALTFORD.

The cultural directions are clear and concise and every detail of successful growing is covered in this neatly printed, freely illustrated pamphlet of 48 pages.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

THE obituary column this week contains notice of the death of Horace S. Wiley, of Cayuga, N. Y.

THIS is the twentieth consecutive convention of the A. A. N. attended by John C. Chase, of Derry, N. H. Has anyone a better record?

THE Federal Horticultural Board has issued Notice of Quarantine No. 25, effective July 1, amending No. 22, revising and extending the area in New England quarantined because of the gipsy and brown-tail moth. For the purposes of inspection the territory is divided into two areas, to be known as the lightly infected area and the generally infected area.

A. A. N. IN ANNUAL SESSION.

Meets This Week at Milwaukee.

For thirty-nine years the American Association of Nurserymen pursued the even tenor of its way and then, at its fortieth meeting, at Detroit last June, almost on the spur of the moment, the members adopted recommendations by the progressive element that amounted to a complete reorganization. Whether the recommendations and the action on them were wise or otherwise is the matter that is of chief interest in the forty-first annual meeting, in progress at Milwaukee this week.

The principal feature of the reorganization was the plan by which dues are assessed in accordance with the volume of business done by each member. Previously the dues were $5 per year; now they are $10 for associate members (those in the allied trades) and $5 from active members (nurserymen), who also pay additional dues as follows: Doing an annual business of $10,000 to $20,000, $5; $20,000 to $50,000, $15; $50,000 to $100,000, $25; $100,000 and over, $50. The purpose, of course, was to raise money with which to extend the activities of the organization, through the employment of counsel, the employment of a secretary to devote his entire time to the work, through establishing an arbitration committee and by other means.

How the New Plan Works.

It is, of course, too much to expect that the first year should show what the new plan will do, but it has demonstrated that the members are willing to see it through; neither the sharply increased cost of membership nor the necessity of making a statement of the approximate volume of the member's annual sales has resulted in any considerable defection, while it has almost doubled the revenues. The membership for this and the previous five years is as follows:

1911—St. Louis	382
1912—Boston	363
1913—Portland	463
1914—Cleveland	410
1915—Detroit	435
1916—Milwaukee	372

The receipts from all sources last year were $3,151.90; this year they have been $5,829.85.

So much from the association's side; the results are quite tangible and satisfactory. From the members' point of view it is not quite plain what additional benefit has been received through the additional revenue. Not all the new money has been expended and plans work out slowly, so the members express themselves as content to await developments, but it seems apparent that men are needed as well as money to carry on the work; few members care to devote their time continuously.

The Opening Session.

The convention program opened at 10 a. m. June 28, but in reality the meeting began a day earlier, June 27 being devoted to a conference of the officers and executive committee with the members of special committees, and it was not until after this conference that most of the reports were completed. President Welch put the finishing touches on his address to the members during the evening of June 27. In it he discussed the results of the year and the work that must be done to complete the reorganization and develop its new activities.

Following the presentation of the other officers' reports the balance of the morning was devoted to a discussion of the new organization, although J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahachie, Tex., father of the plan, who had been assigned the place at the head of the program under the title "A Greater American Association of Nurserymen," was absent, ill. The attendance was the largest in years and a great many were heard. While the discussion was somewhat rambling in character, the general sentiment was one of approval and a desire to see the plan carried forward.

The Business Year.

The annual reports of the secretary and treasurer were of special interest this time, as indicating the success of the reorganization.

Secretary Hall's report included the following:

"Predictions were made by some that Article I of the new constitution, creating 'active' and 'associate' members, and introducing the plan calling for 'additional' dues based on amount of business done, would work disastrously to the association. The results to date do not show such to have been the case. They have rather justified the wisdom of the adoption of the new rule, for, without any canvass for new members, the Badge Book contains 364 names and eight others have registered since that publication was mailed. The cash receipts for the year have been $5,829.85, against $3,151.90 in 1915. For several years effort has been made by specially appointed committees to obtain new members, but the favorable response given to the invitation was largely intended as a compliment to the individual soliciting the membership and therefore was not permanent.

"Your executive committee has passed favorably upon twenty-one of the twenty-four applications for new memberships, but after careful investigation has felt compelled to decline the other three. To hold membership in this association from this time on will mean much more to the individual nurseryman who enjoys the privilege than the mere perfunctory act of registration.

"For the last six years the average registration has been 378. It ought to be twice that number.

Executive Session.

Rightly as well as inevitably, the work of a national trade organization benefits the whole body of the trade, non-members as well as members. In order to give members something non-members do not get, under the new plan a portion of the sessions will be executive. The first of these was held on the afternoon of June 28. It was devoted to reports and their discussion, as follows:

Report of Legislative Committee—East: Wm. Pitkin, Rochester, N. Y. West: Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Review of Work of Counsel During the Year, and Recommendations for the Future—Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.

Transportation Committee's Report—Chas. Sizemore, Chairman, Louisiana, Mo.

"Who Shall Receive Trade Prices?" John H. Dayton, Painesville, O.

"A Safe Non-warranty Clause for Nurserymen"—Luther A. Breck, Lexington, Mass.

The evening of June 28 was left open for the annual meetings of the protective associations and the state vice-presidents, the latter for the purpose of preparing a slate for the nomination of officers.

The Trade Exhibits.

The trades' display never has been a strong feature of the A. A. N. convention in spite of the large volume of business done between the members and, as not infrequently has been the case, the exhibitors this year are largely those who make advertising matter for

MINNEAPOLIS.

Various Notes.

We are experiencing a spell of cold weather, with the thermometer below 50 degrees at night. Nothing in the open does well and firing is necessary in the greenhouses. The cold and damp are more injurious than many people believe. The ill effects do not show until the blooms open; then the damage is distinctly visible.

Mum planting is going ahead with leaps and bounds; this week will see it nearly finished. It is curious how changes occur in the mum world. Most growers now get two or three good blooms on one plant, whereas in the old days they got only one. Last season Mrs. Turner was grown largely on two stems. Fine blooms were produced and they realized $3 per dozen. The plants do not require much more room and all that is necessary is judicious

FIVE YEARS AGO we offered you Pocahontas, with the assurance that it would soon displace all other crimsons. Some of you bought it and were glad. Others turned it down and later on regretted having done so. That is why the demand for the cuttings was fully double the supply this past winter. This is not meant for a complaint, but merely to caution you not to make the same mistake with Merry Christmas. We believe that Merry Christmas will take the same place among scarlets that Pocahontas holds among the crimsons. If you have confidence in our judgment, send us your order now and get in on the early deliveries. Dissemination begins next December.

feeding. You must feed to get good blooms, but get a good plant first. In every case I have found that more money can be earned per square foot by growing the mums on two or three stems. Pompons are much in favor here. This is due to the fact that more artistic table decorations are being used and the pompons lend themselves to all types of artistic work.

Rumor has it that Max Kaiser has bought ten acres of land in the Golden valley, Minneapolis. Surely there is room for it, Max. Go to it, and more power to you! Most of the importations of palms from Belgium were slightly soft, on account of the long time in transit. Still, they missed the tin whales.

Old-fashioned, sweet smelling flowers had the places of honor June 21 at the State Horticultural Society's exhibition, held at the university farm. Strawberries were the only fruit exhibited. Luscious specimens were displayed on a long table. There were some newly named varieties, including Progressive, Americus and Superb. H. G. Groat, of Anoka, carried off the first and only prize offered in this field. Thousands of people visited the building during the day, in course of which a lecture on bee keeping and demonstrations of pruning and spraying were given.

It has been a busy week for most of the florists. Wedding decorations have been numerous and Miss H. B. Whitted did a great deal in that line last week. Many beautiful homes and churches have been exquisitely decorated by her.

Business in cut flowers is good all over the city, largely on account of the numerous weddings. The most commonly seen flowers at present are the peonies. Hundreds and hundreds of these are grown all about Minneapolis, causing a great display of them in the stores, with extremely low prices.

The New York Florists are doing a big business in potted plants. They have a large assortment of plants suited for garden and window boxes.

Florists all about the city have splendid displays of plants and flowers and all report business good. The weather is getting warmer and everything outdoors is doing nicely. F. E. B.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The week saw a decided change in conditions. Summer heat has arrived at last and business has decreased materially; yet it has been good, considering that the dull summer months are here. Rain has been on the program at some time of the day for several days, but now appearances are for a week of sunshine.

There are plenty of flowers for all purposes at present. Gladioli are the most abundant of all. I have seen a white which I think the best that ever came to the market. It is a new variety. Baron Hulot is having a good run. The growers are shipping quantities of mums at present. More and more each season we produce plants for the trade. There is no good reason why Nashville should not become one of the good trade centers for supplying the smaller growers of the south. We are well located, with good shipping facilities to the south and southwest.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. is making extensive improvements at its range this summer. A pump with a working capacity of 3,000 gallons per minute has been installed. The new well has been tested by pumping with this pump for ten hours, without lowering the water an inch. The company has laid 6-inch water mains, putting in over 1,300 feet of 5 and 6-inch pipe. There will soon be water over the entire place.

McIntyre Bros. were rushing the refilling of their benches with new soil and planting next year's crops when I called last week. They have the best block of blue spruce I have ever seen growing this far south.

Geny Bros. have had a good run of wedding decorations of late. Oscar Geny is improving slowly.

This season has been a phenomenal one for the amateur sweet pea grower. I see boys hawking them on the streets everywhere I go, a new experience for this city. F. B.

Greenhouse Heating.

CHANGING THE HEATING SYSTEM.

Having decided to change the heating system in my greenhouse from steam to hot water, I should like to get some information on the subject. I shall install a sectional boiler. The house is 21 x 100 and has 12-foot sash-bars. It has one glass gable. The sides are four feet high and contain two and one-half feet of glass. What should be the rating of the boiler? Could 1,000 feet of 1½-inch pipe, which was used for steam, be used satisfactorily for hot water? State the number of flows, their size, and how they should be placed. Could the pipes for the side benches be placed on the walls, so as not to interfere with raising chickens under the bench?

How many more feet of 1½-inch pipe will be necessary, besides the 1,000 feet, to heat the house to a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees in zero weather? What valves and couplings should be used and where should they be placed so as to make a safe, reliable system? How deep should the boiler pit be? Where and how should the expansion tank be placed? Are hot water systems arranged with valves, so one part of the system can be cut off and the other part used, in case of breakdowns or leaks? The greenhouse extends north and south and the boiler room is at the north end. There are two side benches and two in the center.

G. R. S.—Pa.

For a night temperature of 60 degrees, not far from 900 square feet of radiation will be required and this will need a boiler with a grate having about six square feet of surface, or a capacity of ten horsepower.

To heat the house, we would place a 2½-inch flow pipe upon each plate and another three feet under the ridge. The 1,000 feet of 1½-inch pipe will make ten returns, four of which should be placed upon each wall, and the others should be under one of the middle benches. In addition, four 1½-inch or three 2-inch returns will be needed to give the required radiating surface. These, with the two returns already mentioned, should be distributed under the middle benches and connected with the overhead flow pipe, while the returns on the walls should be joined with the flows located on the plates. The flows should be given a fall of one inch in ten to fifteen feet, or just enough to keep the air from pocketing, and the expansion tank should be connected

"THE BOILER OF UNEQUALED FUEL ECONOMY"
BUY DIRECT—FACTORY TO USER PRICES

The Kroeschell is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

13,468,320 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years.

The Kroeschell is used by hundreds of Florists' Review readers and mighty is their praise. The year of 1915 brought an enormous number of new customers who saw our boilers in operation at other places. We attribute the large sales of this season to the good work the Kroeschell Boiler is doing everywhere.

With our policy—"the customers' interest first"—perfection of construction—factory to user prices—honest and "true blue" boiler ratings—you simply cannot lose.

READ WHAT THE USERS SAY:

Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 28, 1915.

Gentlemen:—I wish to report that I have used my No. 45 Kroeschell Water Tube Steam Boiler for the past two seasons, and will say I could not compare it with my former boiler, as it is so far superior in every way that there is no comparison whatever. It does the work of two tubular steam boilers—saves fuel—needs less attention, as the fire lasts much longer—is easily cleaned, there being no flues to clean every night, as was the case with the old boilers. If I should need another boiler I would not think of buying any other kind. With best wishes, I remain, Yours very truly, (Signed) S. E. MUNTZ.

READ WHAT THE USERS SAY:

Walton, N. Y., Jan. 4, 1916.

Gentlemen:—Your New No. 46 Water Tube Steam Boiler is the finest steam boiler we have ever fired, and have fired eleven different makes before. Your boiler keeps steam from 9:00 p. m. to 6:00 a. m., without attention on zero nights. Before we had three boilers and could not control temperatures so easily as we can with yours. The little time consumed in cleaning same is wonderful, and we are very well pleased. The water line is steady and it holds its steam well. If we ever install another boiler, you can rest assured it will be a Kroeschell. If I can be of any assistance to you in showing your boiler to anyone, would be pleased to do so, or if anyone in your locality wants local reference, I will gladly give same.

Walton, N. Y., Jan. 10, 1916.

Gentlemen:—Since writing you on Jan. 4th, the other morning it went down to 4° below zero, and I fired the No. 46 boiler at 11:00 p. m.; had 10 lbs. of steam on with the draft half open, the houses all registering 48° to 52° and the No. 4 house 60°. We bricked in our boiler, so we lose no heat in the boiler room; we find it a great saving. Any other information cheerfully given.

Yours respectfully, (Signed) TRIPP FLORAL CO.

with the highest part of the system. When possible to do so, the expansion tank should be placed ten to fifteen feet above the flows, but it may be at any point above the highest part of the system.

We would place a 2½-inch gate valve upon each of the flows, near where it enters the greenhouse, or just inside, and if desired a valve may be used upon one pipe in each coil. Especially when using returns as small as 1½-inch in a house 100 feet long, it is desirable to have the top of the boiler at least of the pipe, the coil should extend two or three feet along the boiler end of the house. This will require an ell of the same size, for each return. There should also be two ells for one pipe in each coil, and two tees for each of the other pipes. These may be 2-inch, except that there should be two tees 1½x2½ inches in each of the wall coils. The number of nipples will be two less than twice the number of returns in each coil.

EQUIPMENT FOR BURNING OIL.

In recent issues of The Review I have noted frequent references to the use of oil as fuel in greenhouse boilers and I was especially impressed by the practicability of R. W. Kersey's oil-burning apparatus, as described by him in The Review of May 25, page 80, under the title of "Equipment for Burning Oil." Mr. Kersey said, in part:

"We are burning crude oil under our Lord & Burnham hot water boilers, No. 646, using as power a ½-horsepower self-starting motor, connected by a belt to a No. 3 Root's positive-pressure blower. The rotary oil pump is also belt-driven; it pumps the oil from a large oil tank sunk in the ground. The oil pump has a three-quarter intake and can be procured from the Crane Co., Chicago. We use about thirty to thirty-five pounds of pressure on the burner. Now as to the way we operate our system. The oil as it is pumped from the tank is run through a C. C. strainer before it reaches the pump; then through a coil which we run into one of the flues to heat the oil; then into a water separator, as there seems to be more or less water in the oil; then into the burner, which is operated by a needle valve, to give the desired force of flame. We made the water separator out of an old steam trap. Unless the water is separated from the oil, it is liable to cause trouble."

Can Mr. Kersey give me an approximate idea of the cost of such an outfit as he describes? If he can do so, the information may be of interest to many others as well as to myself.

J. B.—Can.

Our oil-burning plant was largely homemade and cost about $150, including the following items:

½-horsepower self-starting G. E. motor, about	$50.00
Two C. C. strainers, 1-inch	5.00
Rotary oil pump	10.00
Pressure gauge	2.50
Oil tank, 1200-gallon	25.00
Water separator	5.00
Two leather belts	5.00
Pipe and fittings	25.00
Burner	25.00

We made our own burner and water separator, and we had all kinds of pipes and fittings. So you see, if one can do most of the work himself, the cost is not so much. We received a quotation on the same plant as ours; the price charged was around $500 and we know the outfit would not do any better work than ours. In fact, we are perfectly satisfied with the way ours works. Much depends on the way the boiler is made; that is, in regard to lining with fire brick. That problem one has to work out for himself, but it does not take long. If J. B. would submit a drawing of his boiler, I could help him out in that respect.

R. W. Kersey.

The Market.

The market last week was unusually brisk for this season of the year. Commencements are about over and business has settled down for the summer. Weddings were numerous last week and called for a good quantity of flowers. Peonies, syringa blooms, snapdragons and roses were used mostly in decorative work.

Peas, roses and other greenhouse-grown stock are becoming scarce, especially carnations. Many of the local growers are emptying the carnation houses. However, the quality of the carnations is exceptionally fine. The supply of roses is good and the quality is fair. Mrs. Chas. Russell and Shawyer are holding up well. Killarneys are arriving in the shorter grades and open quickly. Ophelia, Sunburst and Ward roses are of good quality and meet with a fine demand for wedding bouquets. Peonies are in good supply and the home-grown crop is coming into the market in large numbers. Gladioli are here, but they are none too plentiful. Miniature gladioli are over for the season. Cattleyas are in short supply. Valley is plentiful and the wholesale prices are stiff. The demand is excellent. Easter lilies are plentiful. Sweet peas are becoming scarce, but outdoor flowers are more plentiful. Delphiniums have made their appearance. In blooming plants crimson ramblers and hydrangeas are the leaders. There is a good demand for adiantum and Asparagus plumosus. The supply is adequate.

Various Notes.

The Market.

The conditions of the market last week were irregular. Active moments were mingled with dull ones. Nevertheless, shipping trade continued to be satisfactory.

Beauties continue to sell well, at a good price. There is always a ready sale for the good grades, while stock of inferior quality is inclined to drag. As usual, there is a large supply of poor stock, with no outlet. Russell and Ophelia roses remain in the lead. Richmond is receding; Francis Scott Key is taking its place. Hadley is enjoying a fair sale. Carnations at present are clearing better than roses and their quality is good. There are not so many soft and split carnations as usual.

Peonies of inferior grade are more than plentiful; good ones also are abundant. The prices range from $2 to $8 per hundred. Easter lilies have been in heavy demand and the supply seems to be limited. Callas are few and of smaller size. The orchid situation is beginning to ease up somewhat, but valley is as scarce as ever, with no immediate relief in sight. Sweet peas are not so plentiful, especially in the good grades. Short peas are a drug in the market and their sale is slow. Daisies are becoming small and scarce. With the continuous rains, outdoor daisies do not reach the market in salable condition. Good snapdragon is seen in the market occasionally. Lavender and yellow irises always sell readily. Cornflowers are in good demand. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri are again copious. Fancy ferns are more abundant.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

COMPETING WITH CEMETERY COMPANIES

The Review of June 22, in reply to an inquiry about cemetery associations that enter into competition with florists, stated briefly the essential facts to be considered. The present article, with its comprehensive treatment of the points at issue, was written for The Review by an attorney who has made a search of the authorities.

IS A CEMETERY association legally entitled to engage in the florists' business, either as a part of the cemetery management, refusing outside florists permission to do work for lot owners in the cemetery, or in competition generally with florists outside the cemetery? Under the authoritative court decisions which I review below, I reach an opinion that, as a general rule, a cemetery association may monopolize the floral patronage of its cemetery, so far as is reasonably necessary to secure a uniform scheme of ornamentation, provided there be no unjust discrimination, no extortionate charges under the monopoly, and nothing in contracts, express or implied, with the lot owners requiring a contrary conclusion.

Limits of Cemetery's Rights.

But so long as lot owners are permitted to do their own planting, I doubt the validity of a regulation purporting to prevent them from having it done by outside florists, conformably to any fixed plan of ornamentation adopted by the cemetery authorities.

And, under the law cited below, I am equally clear in opinion that unless a cemetery association's charter expressly authorizes it to engage in the florists' business generally, it is not entitled to engage in trade outside the cemetery, except, possibly, for the purpose of disposing of surplus stock grown in good faith for use in the cemetery but left on hand.

If there are cases where the laws and charter under which a cemetery association exists are broad enough to authorize it to engage in the distinct pursuits of furnishing places for the burial of the dead and of conducting a general florists' establishment, I show below that they should not be permitted to slip by the tax assessor, so far as concerns property devoted solely to the last named business.

The right of a cemetery association to monopolize the work of floral ornamentation of graves and lots first raises question as to the nature and extent of the title and control of lot owners. That title to a burial lot is not absolute in the sense in which ordinary real estate may be so held, all the courts agree. The owner may make burials in the lot, and courts will award him relief against desecration of the ground, but the judicial authorities show that cemetery authorities have broad powers to regulate the use of lots—not arbitrary powers, but a discretion to be exercised in the interest of the public at large.

The Rights of Lot Owners.

In an early case, the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial court declared that the right of lot owners after burial of their dead is "limited to acts of preservation and embellishment; and even these must in some degree be restricted by the opinion of those who represent the general taste and feeling of the community." (Commonwealth vs. Viall, 2 Allen Reports, 515.)

The leading case here pertinent seems to be that of Cedar Hill Cemetery Co. vs. Lees, 22 Pennsylvania Superior Court Reports, 405. It appeared that the company had adopted the following regulation:

"To prevent confusion from the introduction of a variety of workmen, the trustees have made arrangements to have all the excavating, as well as the building of foundations for enclosures and for monuments, the sodding of lots and graves and cutting of grass, planting of flowers, shrubbery, and trimming of the same, etc., performed under the direction of the superintendent at moderate prices."

A gardener employed by lot owners was given two or three months' notice that after the first of the next year he would not be permitted to continue to trim lots in the cemetery, and the suit was brought to test the validity of the regulation above quoted.

A Fixed Scheme of Improvement.

The court sustained the rule, in the following language, which has strong application to the right to exclude outside florists, since floral ornamentation enters upon any scheme of improvement to a more important degree than mere trimming of grass:

"Ordinarily, a cemetery is laid out and planned according to a fixed scheme as to improvement, * * * the character of trees and shrubbery to be planted, and ornamentation in general. Anything which interferes with this general scheme is not only detrimental and injurious to the scheme itself, but to every lot which enters into the combination. It is of the first importance, therefore, that the association should assume and retain the absolute control, as is subject to be done in and by the deeds of conveyance and by the by-laws and regulations of the plaintiff company, of the erection of monuments and partitions between lots, the planting of trees and shrubbery and the general subject of ornamentation. This, in the nature of the case, can be done only under the supervision of one person, and in this case that person is

In order to maintain a uniform scheme of decoration, a cemetery association has a right to control the planting on its grounds, and hence may sometimes be legally sustained in excluding the work of outside florists.

WHEN CEMETERY EXCEEDS RIGHTS—

If a cemetery permits lot owners to do their own planting, but at the same time prohibits them from engaging outside florists to do the work, such procedure is inconsistent and probably would not be upheld by the courts.

A cemetery usually is not entitled to engage in outside trade in competition with florists, except, possibly, to dispose of surplus stock.

If a cemetery is allowed, by its charter and the local laws, to sell stock in the public markets, it should not escape the payment of taxes on such parts of its property as are used in such competitive trade.

THE LEGAL REMEDY—

When a cemetery exceeds its legal rights, to the detriment of the florists in the vicinity, they may protect themselves, individually or collectively, by an appeal to the courts, bringing suit as a taxpayer or in the name of a lot owner.

the superintendent of the cemetery, who acts under the direction of, and is supposed to be familiar with the plans and purposes and general scheme of improvements of the association. * * * It is difficult to see how the rights of individual lot owners in respect to those things which are or may become objectionable to adjacent lots can be properly conserved without some general and indeed exclusive control of the ornamentation of all lots, as is provided for in the by-laws to which exception is taken. * * * There is no objection to the regulation of the plaintiff association on the ground of excessive charges or that the work necessary to be done in and about the care of the lots of lot owners has not been faithfully and tastefully performed whenever requested."

In view of the last quoted sentence of the decision, it is clear that an association is not entitled to monopolize the floral patronage of a cemetery for the purpose of profit, and that the case serves as no precedent to enable an association to exclude outside florists for any other reason than to secure a uniform scheme of ornamentation.

No Arbitrary Control.

Limitation upon the power of associations is defined in the following language of the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors in the case of State vs. Scoville, 78 Connecticut Reports, 90, wherein the court sustained the validity of the rule giving the officers of an association control over the planting and trimming of herbage on lots:

"It is argued that the effect, if not the object, of this particular provision of the by-law, is to enable the association to arbitrarily control the cutting of grass, etc., for other reasons than to secure the proper care and management of the burial lots. Such is not its effect, and we have no reason to treat it as passed for that purpose. It may serve, and was presumably intended to serve, the lawful purpose of enabling the association to secure the proper care and management of burial lots. * * * Possibly a different question would have been presented in this case, had it been shown that the president or superintendent of the association had arbitrarily refused to permit a lot holder, or one acting under his authority, to cut the grass upon such owner's lot, when such cutting could in no way have affected or interfered with the proper care or management of the cemetery."

Help Hired by Lot Owners.

The foregoing discussion presupposes that an association has reserved the right to regulate the improvement of lots, and has not given lot owners the right to do work themselves. In this view there is no conflict of judicial authority raised by the decision of the New York Supreme court in the case of Johnstown Cemetery Association vs. Parker, 59 New York Supplement, 821, to the effect that where the deeds under which cemetery lots were sold gave the holders the right to cultivate shrubbery, etc., subject to removal of improper objects by the association, the association could not interfere with the lot owners in cutting weeds, etc. And the Maryland Court of Appeals decided that where an association had recognized, for more than twenty years, the rights of owners to construct their own improvements, employees of the owners could not afterward be prevented from making improvements under direction of such owners. (Silverwood vs. Latrobe, 13 Atlantic Reporter, 161.)

I find no decision which draws any distinction between the right of a lot owner to do planting on lots and to have the work done by a florist, and the reasoning of the above cited cases shows that no such distinction can be fairly drawn. Hence I am of the opinion that the courts would hold a rule of an association purporting to permit an owner to care for his lot, but forbidding his employment of an outside florist, to be void for unreasonableness.

Competition in Outside Business.

Having attempted to show that a cemetery association's right to monopolize the flower business of the cemetery depends upon reasonable necessity to secure a uniform scheme of ornamentation, we pass to the question whether an association may lawfully compete with regular florists in outside business. My opinion that, under ordinary circumstances, they may not do so is based on the following cited authorities:

"Judicial decisions abound in general statements of doctrine to the effect that corporations possess only such powers as are expressly granted, or such as are necessary to carry into effect the powers expressly granted." (10 Cyc., 1096.)

Engaging in the florists' business within the limits of a cemetery for the purpose of ornamenting lots and graves, within the scope of the legal doctrine hereinbefore discussed, may be supported as a reasonable incident to the preservation of graves. But I read the law as making it as far foreign to the powers of a cemetery association to engage in the general business of a florist outside the cemetery as it would be for the association to attempt to conduct a butcher shop or dry goods store, except that the courts would probably hold that any surplus stock remaining in good faith after supplying cemetery patronage might be disposed of in outside trade. This holding would accord with a recent decision of a state supreme court to the effect that an electric street railway company might dispose of surplus power to private consumers, although not empowered by its charter to sell power generally.

Public Rather Than Private.

There are numerous decisions supporting the view that cemetery associations are restricted in the business in which they may engage.

"The purposes for which cemetery corporations may be organized are public rather than private, and the lands acquired by such corporations, and devoted to the purposes of burial, are held in trust for public, rather than private, use. * * * The one purpose for which such corporations may be organized is * * * the 'procuring and holding lands to be used exclusively for a cemetery or place for the burial of the dead.' * * * The proceeds of sales are to be applied to the payment of any debts incurred by the association in the purchase of cemetery grounds and property, and in the improving and necessary care and management of the same, 'and for no other purpose.' No purpose of private gain or benefit is contemplated by the law, but only the accomplishment, through such corporate agencies, of the same public purposes which, in the absence of such a statute, or in the event of no such corporations being organized, would generally be accomplished by the exercise of powers conferred upon towns, villages and cities." (Wolford vs. Crystal Lake Cemetery Association, 54 Minnesota Reports, 440.)

A corporation organized to establish a public cemetery cannot be adapted to the acquisition of profits by the directors and incorporators. (Brown vs. Maplewood Cemetery Association, 85 Minnesota Reports, 498.)

Not for Personal Profit.

In the last cited case, the court aptly said that it was inconceivable that the tax exemption and other privileges accorded cemetery associations "should be granted for the purpose of aiding schemes for private profit."

"It is to secure permanence of 'God's acre' that cemetery corporations are restricted to burial purposes, and cannot engage and involve their property in general corporation activities. If the cemetery could take up general stock corporation enterprises, a reverse might lead to a sequestration of its funds and so reach and absorb the permanent investments sacredly devoted to its preservation and the care of memorials of the dead." (Grace vs. Repose Mausoleums, Inc., 78 New York Miscellaneous Reports, 213.)

The Kansas Supreme court added its view to this doctrine in the case of Davis vs. Coventry, 65 Kansas Reports, 563, where it was said of a cemetery association: "Is this corporation public or for profit? Many reasons may be found in the law for concluding that it is public and none supporting the contrary idea. For instance, the property so platted and held is exempt from taxation. * * * No reason can be suggested why a private cemetery corporation operated for profit should receive any more grace at the hands of the legislature than a private corporation organized for any other purpose."

charter of an association organized thereunder in an exceptional case be so worded as to legally entitle the association to conduct a general florists' establishment, as well as a cemetery, there can be no doubt that so far as the association's assets and other property are devoted to the business of a florist they are just as much subject to taxation as is the business property of a regular florist. In addition to the judicial statements above quoted and having a bearing on this point, I cite the following authority:

"A cemetery conducted as a mere source of private or corporate profit is not within the exemption laws. * * * Only so much of the land owned [by a public association] as is used or intended for burial purposes is exempt, and not other portions which are used for entirely different purposes, or rented out. * * * The exemption * * * will not include personal property, such as horses, hearses, carriages, tools and other articles used for burial or about their cemeteries, or funds, investments, or securities owned by the cemetery association." (37 Cyc., 945, 946.)

Legal Remedies Available.

From what has been said, it must be clear that many associations are vulnerable to legal attack in their operations as commercial florists. When such attack is made, important questions are apt to arise relative to the party or parties in whose name suit must be brought, but they present matters for determination by counsel who direct the proceedings, as affected by differing statutes and association charters. There is a general rule of law that a corporation may be ousted from the exercise of powers not within the scope of its charter only by suit brought by the attorney-general of the state, but there are authorities, including the second Minnesota decision above cited, showing that persons injuriously affected by an association's abuse of authority have standing enabling them to maintain suit in their own names, and it is not to be doubted that any lot owner is entitled to restrain continuation of any practice by the cemetery authorities which prejudices his interests in an unlawful manner. Wedding Bouquets While You Wait, on the Way to War.

BOUQUETS WHILE BRIDES WAIT.

Mobilizing the national guard on the call of the President has presented some curious problems for florists. For instance, there is the one who belongs to the guard and who was caught with no trained assistant to carry on the business; and the one whose entire force of two assistants had used the armory as a clubhouse and who left the proprietor with three men's work to do.

But most interesting has been the resourcefulness of the florist, in the vicinity of a mobilization camp, called upon at unseemly hours to provide flowers while the wedding party waited. What would the reader do if commanded at this moment to produce a bride's bouquet P. D. Q.? Could many meet the demand as satisfactorily as did J. L. Bryant, store manager for A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill? There have been 11,000 soldiers in camp at Springfield and some of the organizations have been composed exclusively of men of wealth. In the present instance the groom would stand for anything except delay, but there was neither an orchid nor a spike of valley in the place when the order came, following a number of much the same character. Sweet peas and White Killarney roses made almost as good a show.

CALENDULAS AND CORNFLOWERS.

Will you please tell me the proper time to plant the seeds of calendulas and bachelor's buttons to have plants in bloom next winter and spring? Please give the general cultural directions for both. What varieties of these are best suited for forcing?

R. B.—Wis.

The largest and most successful specialists in bachelor's buttons under glass sow their seeds in June or July, set out the young plants in the field and then lift and plant them in the houses in September. The plants are then quite large and need careful handling to prevent wilting. They are planted in solid beds in rows twenty-four inches apart, with fifteen inches between the plants. The supports given are similar to those used for carnations, wires running lengthwise and strings crosswise. The plants under glass will grow four to six feet high. Later batches may be sown in small pots and later planted out. If they are sown where they are to flower, be sure to thin out the seedlings well, if you want fine flowers on long stems. If treated well, bachelor's buttons in winter will realize about as much money as carnations. Thrips and spider are the two foes that must be guarded against.

Calendulas may be sown where they are to flower. They need considerable room to spread, being of a robust habit. Sow seeds in August for winter flowering. A temperature of 48 to 50 degrees at night suits both bachelor's buttons and calendulas in winter. The double blue cornflower sells best, but it will pay you to plant some pink. This color proved popular last season. Lemon Queen and Orange King are the best calendulas to grow. The last-named sells most easily. C. W.

CARNATION SUPPORTS.

Supports a Necessity.

Many growers would not think of using patent carnation supports; many would not try to grow carnations without them. The purpose of this article is to discuss the essentials of an efficient support, thus making clear why some patent supports have failed to make good.

It is an undisputed fact that carnations will not properly develop if no supporting is used. Some twenty-five years ago, this fact was realized, but the importance of having a carefully designed and easily applied arrangement was not then fully felt. Since it now merely is a question of what sort of support should be used, our topic is narrowed to the consideration of properties most desired in a support.

Naturally, the first requisite of a support is that it hold up the plant. Holding the plant erect demands that it be stiff and rigid, both in design and material. Perhaps the next most important feature of a satisfactory support is its property of packing closely when knocked down between seasons. If it cannot be handled in this manner it takes entirely too much room and perhaps is greatly damaged when not in use.

The Height Adjustment.

A good support should be easily adjusted in height to the growing plant. As the plants grow, the rings should be so arranged that they can be raised or increased in number. This operation of raising the height of the support should in no way bend or weaken the support if it is properly designed. A patent support should be so devised that it can be erected in from one-half to one-third the time that is necessary where the string and wire method is used. This has already been accomplished with some makes and this saving is quite important.

The principal advances of the last century are those made in the invention and adoption of time-saving contrivances. Why should the florist be less interested than other aggressive men in the adoption of economical apparatus?

Perhaps the florist in years past has been aggressive and has invested in a particular make of support that was not intelligently designed. Perhaps his foreman refused to use them a second season and the dump pile got them. The writer has seen several loads of such junk decorating river banks in some of his trampings. Naturally such an individual would feel skeptical about buying other patent supports, but the design of a good support no more resembles a poor one than a blind nag at 20 years resembles a 5-year-old show horse. Of course they are both horses, but horses are different.

The Principal Essentials.

In some of the successful designs all the supports of a bench fasten together. They must be rigid and each should help support the rest. This tying together must be carefully planned to obtain the maximum supporting strength with the minimum use of wire. This is an advantage in price, as well as an advantage in having no unnecessary wire in the grower's way.

The method of fastening the rings to the stakes has been another stumbling block for the makers of supports. Many slipshod, inefficient methods have been tried. A simple, self-tying arrangement should be used that will insure a rapid and firm tying of the stakes to the rings, without the use of any additional wires or clips.

The size of rings is a less important feature, as the various makes are rather uniform in this respect. About six and one-half or seven inches in diameter is the size that seems best adapted to the carnation and most convenient to the grower in working around the supports.

No galvanized wire is too good for use in making carnation supports. They are daily subjected to water and are in constant contact with the wet foliage. For this reason it is unprofitable to invest in supports that are made with thinly galvanized wire.

The fewer stakes in the way of the grower and the more room between rows across the bench, the easier it is for the grower to do his work. Some makes of supports have as many as three stakes to every plant for supporting the rings, but other makes, that are rigid, accomplish their work with only half as many stakes as plants.

The Advertising Viewpoint.

The neatness of the houses is really an important feature of a florist's advertising. If one is located near a cemetery this feature is doubly worth consideration, as visitors are numerous. If the houses are equipped with up-to-the-minute supports, all the same height, in regular rows, holding the plants up with light and air between the rows, they will present a wonderfully neat appearance and go a long way toward impressing customers favorably.

It cannot be denied that an efficient support insures straighter stems as well as straighter cuttings. This is worth dollars to any florist.

I maintain that an ideal support should have as many rings in each set as the grower has carnations in a short row crosswise of his bench. This insures that the supports stay where he puts them, as each helps to hold the other in place. This continuous ring arrangement is not only a time-saver and convenience in erecting and in taking down the supports, but it also is the most efficient means of maintaining uniform spacing of supports.

Whenever one can procure a support that has these qualities, he can rest assured that string and wire is an expensive and sloppy way of handling the work, even if he figures the material cost as nothing.

The Hardy Perennial Garden.

While many people are mourning over the lack of sunshine and heat during May and June and complaining of the frequent rainfalls, the hardy herbaceous garden has simply reveled under the climatic conditions that have existed and never looked more luxuriant. The abundant and deep snows of last winter made a good mulch and fewer plants died than ever before. April gave us copious rains and the lack of excessive heat has caused all flowers to last remarkably; in fact, the season has been the finest I have ever experienced for hardy border plants.

June is unquestionably the month par excellence for herbaceous perennials, and borders now are remarkably attractive and carry a great wealth of flowers. It is at this season, while there is so much floral beauty, that we must take note of our needs for another season and prepare to supply them.

While some varieties are best increased from cuttings, as, for example, phloxes, and others from root cuttings, of which the Japanese anemones are a well known example, a large number may be easily and economically grown from seed, and the present is a good time to make liberal sowings of the more popular varieties. Coldframes are best for seed sowing, as shade and water can be carefully given. The seedlings later can be set out in beds or nursery rows, during damp, cloudy weather, and if they are kept well cultivated they will, in the majority of cases, make strong plants for selling in the fall or spring.

Delphiniums.

The delphinium now is one of the most striking flowers in perennial borders. Spring-sown delphinium seeds usually give plants that flower the same year, but sowing done now will furnish strong plants for fall sales. While for the average grower it may suffice to sow a mixed package, or one each of dark and light blue shades, I would strongly advise sowing one or two of the fine, named varieties, such as Clear Blue, clear blue; King of Delphiniums, gentian blue; the beautiful Bella-donna, turquoise-blue; Queen Wilhelmina, soft blue; formosum, dark blue; formosum cœlestinum, pale blue; Rev. E. Lascelles, purple blue—only to name a few good sorts.

Do not overlook D. Chinensis, which may be had in pale blue, deep blue and pure white colors. It will flower the same season, but will attain greater vigor the next season. It is well to remark, however, that the Chinese larkspurs, while beautiful and fine for cutting, cannot be classed as more than biennials. They are, however, so easily grown from seed that it pays to grow a fresh batch each season.

Aquilegias, or Columbines.

The aquilegias, or columbines, are indispensable to every florist who wants a good assortment of hardy perennials. Like larkspurs, they are grand for cutting and flower for quite a long time. The long-spurred hybrids are the most striking. The old doubles are hardier, but less desirable. While mixed packets of long-spurred hybrids will usually give a fine range of varieties, it is well to sow one or two of the finer named varieties, such as cærulea, the beautiful Rocky mountain columbine; glandulosa, cærulea alba, Haylodgensis and chrysantha, pale yellow. A. chrysantha has more vigor than any other long-spurred hybrid and may be fairly classed as a true perennial. Some of the other choice varieties gradually disappear after the second year. It is therefore advisable to have a fresh batch of seedlings coming along each year. The aquilegias would have been better if sown in March or April, but good plants still can be had if seed is sown at once. If you get a really good strain be sure to save some of your own seed each year.

Campanulas.

When one mentions campanulas, some people immediately conclude that Canterbury bells are intended. It is true that C. Medium is a valuable variety both for pot culture and early summer bedding, but it is only a biennial, while nearly all the other campanulas are perennials. C. Medium ought to have been sown some weeks ago, but there still is time to get plants of flowering size. The single variety is the best. The calycanthema, or hose-in-hose variety, is beautiful, but as a pot plant it needs more careful staking, owing to its heavier flowers; the same applies to the double forms.

Of the other campanulas, C. persicifolia, the peach-leaved bellflower, is the most valuable. The single blue and white Moerheimi and the double blue humosa can only be increased by careful division of the roots. There is no more stately perennial than C. pyramidalis, the giant chimney flower. It is specially valuable for growing in pots or tubs, to flower in late summer. It attains a height of six to eight feet and well grown plants make a really striking show. Seedlings of this variety should be sown early, grown outdoors through the summer and potted in the fall to flower the following year.

Campanula Carpatica, the Carpathian bellflower, is splendid for rockeries, mass effects or edgings. It grows eight to ten inches high and is studded with flowers from June until November. There are a number of varieties of this campanula, of which Ditton blue is the best. If it is sown now, strong flowering plants can be had next season. Other campanulas worthy of culture are C. glomerata; C. rotundifolia, the well known Scotch bluebell; C. Trachelium, or coventry bells; C. grandis; C. barbata and C. Rapunculus. The latter now carries graceful spikes of blue flowers.

Digitalis.

There are no more stately and more beautiful hardy border flowers than digitalis, or foxgloves. In a cool, moist season, such as we now have, they are unusually fine. The spotted and gloxiniæflora strains are the most desirable. These may be had in mixed or separate colors and if sown in July will make large plants before fall. Sow the seeds thinly and be sure to transplant the growths in good season, as the seedlings grow rapidly. When planting out in the field, allow a foot between the plants and two feet between the rows. A light mulch of straw or leaves will carry them through the winter, provided the land where they are planted is well drained. A heavy mulch will cause a great proportion of the plants to rot.

These digitalis are usually treated as biennials, but they will live for several years. Many plants raised last July carry ten to fifteen spikes each and make a remarkable showing. The plants look specially well either in solid beds, dotted through the borders of perennials or planted along the edge of woodlands. In woodlands they will often naturalize themselves nicely.

CHARLES ERNE.

IF modesty is a virtue Charlie Erne is virtuous in high degree. Nearly everyone who visits the Chicago market knows Erne, but few know of the celebration that took place at Terre Haute, Ind., July 4, 1876. As a boy he spent four years with John G. Heinl. He was with M. A. Hunt when Mr. Hunt died. E. H. Hunt, who settled his cousin's estate, invited Mr. Erne to go back to Chicago with him. This was in 1895. He remained with E. H. Hunt until 1912. In May of 1912 the firm of Erne & Klingel was founded, which brings the story down to date. It is a brief narrative of a busy life, a life so busy, in fact, that it has afforded little time for outside affairs, although it has resulted in many warm business friendships.

HARD-BURNED POTS.

Some years ago, I saw at an amateur chrysanthemum show mum plants grown in 1-gallon tin maple sugar cans. The plants had three to five large flowers. They were twenty inches high, with luxuriant foliage hanging over the "pots." Indeed, they were finer mums than any I ever saw grown in pots and would have created a sensation at the Cleveland show last November.

The idea occurred to me then, and has many times since, namely, why do not florists use hard-burned pots instead of soft-burned ones? This led me to experiment and I now am thoroughly convinced of the advantage of the hard-burned container. I do not mean hard pots, glazed, like stoneware, but medium hard, usually rated as "seconds." I am well aware of the advantages of the soft-burned pots, that they retain moisture, etc.; but it seems to me that in the "retaining" process they suck the moisture from the soil, affording an extra surface for evaporation, which overbalances the retaining feature.

I had always been annoyed by the dirty, green, slimy, unsightly pots after having been used once. I never could see an advantage in washing such pots that was commensurate with the trouble and cost. I now have 4-inch pots that have been in almost continuous use for three years and they are almost as clean as new pots. Having grown plants for forty years, with a good pair of "specs," I fail to see in the plants anything that would favor the soft-burned pot. I am forced to admit that I used soft-burned pots because my father did. From an economical standpoint, in breakage and in handling, the odds are greatly in favor of the hard-burned variety.

The old, wire hanging basket illustrates the extreme in this principle and the soft-burned clay basket is but little better, unless painted. These I discarded many years ago. If hung outdoors, one had to water them often to get results. In the hands of the inexperienced they would prove failures. I have adopted a galvanized iron "basket," with a top diameter of thirteen inches, a bottom diameter of twelve inches and a depth of seven inches. They have proven satisfactory to my customers. They hold sufficient soil to "back up" anything you can get in them and, being so well protected from the air, the growths soon hide the "basket." S. C. Templin.

MR. KERR'S ENTHUSIASM RISES.

Secretary Young now is prepared to receive reservations for the trade display at the S. A. F. convention in Houston this summer. There is a great deal of enthusiasm among the southern florists about this convention, and you may take it from me that there has never been an occasion when so many southern florists have been assembled in one body.

At our last two Texas conventions we had something like 125 florists from within the state. We are expecting at least 200 florists this summer from within the state. There is little doubt that we will have this number in attendance. Now, it is believed that we will have 300 or 400 florists scattered through the south at this convention, which will give us at least 500 florists from the south. This alone makes it worth while making an exhibit at the Houston convention.

There is a great interest throughout the country in this trip to see the southland, and I am convinced that we may expect several hundred florists from other sections of the United States. We have set our mark for 1,000 florists in attendance at the Houston convention. There never has been a convention that has been given so much wide publicity as the Houston convention. We are just beginning on this publicity work, and you may rest assured that we are not going to miss our mark far.

Here is an extract from a letter received from C. L. Baum, of Knoxville, Tenn.:

> At least one from each firm in this city will be there, and, from what I can learn, there will be more florists out of my state at the Houston convention that were ever at a convention before. I think we can depend on Nashville, Memphis and Chattanooga for at least one member from every florist firm.
> I am writing all the state vice-presidents of states adjoining my state, which are eight in number, Tennessee being bounded by more states than any other state in the U. S., and am asking them to coöperate with me in a great campaign to have the largest delegation from this section of the south that ever went to any convention, and I firmly believe that fully ninety per cent of the southern florists will attend the convention in Houston.
> You can depend on me to put every effort forward to make the Houston convention the largest and best convention the S. A. F. ever has had, and I assure you that there will be a larger number of southern florists present than ever before, and that the members from the north, east and west will never regret coming south.

Anyone interested may address me at Houston, or may write Secretary John Young, 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York city. R. C. Kerr.

FORGET-ME-NOTS FOR WINTER.

Will you please give me the name of the myosotis that will bloom indoors through the winter? A. S.—Ill.

London, England.—There was a meeting of the leading growers of rose plants July 5, during the Holland House show, to consider the question of prices for the coming season. The impression prevails that an agreement on minimum prices is essential if the trade is to survive the war.

Hillegom, Holland.—Compared with an average year, the tulip crop is not likely to be abundant and the hyacinth crop is much below the average; really top-size bulbs will be scarce. Not only was considerably less planted, but in the face of high-priced manure, scarcity in labor, low prices, etc., the bulb growers have tried to economize in every direction, which will tell on the size of the bulbs produced. Narcissi will give a fine crop, but crocuses are not so good as usual.

Haarlem, Holland.—The recent order prohibiting the importation of Holland bulbs into the British islands has caused consternation among the bulb exporters, especially those that formerly dealt principally with England. In 1915 the British isles took 17,814,500 pounds of Holland bulbs, against 22,423,500 pounds in 1913, when conditions were normal. In 1915 bulb exports to Germany and Austria increased only 368,380 pounds over 1913, but the United States took 5,911,180 pounds more than in the year before the war. It thus appears that the usual market for about two-fifths of the exportable crop now is closed to the growers and that the United States is about the only unrestricted market.

Paris, France.—The Societe Nationale d'Horticulture de France recently held the first flower show attempted here since the outbreak of the war. Although smaller than previous June shows, it was a decided success. Among novelties was Rose Ile de France, semi-double, brilliant scarlet with large white eye, a seedling from American Pillar, exhibited by Auguste Nonin, who also had Hydrangea hortensis Gloire de Boissy, a splendid bright rose of fine form. Mouillere, of Vendome, showed Hydrangea hortensis Le Marne, an unusually vigorous sort with ample and leathery foliage, enormous trusses of carmine-rose passing to bright carmine, festooned deeply and irregularly.

London, England.—The council of the Horticultural Trades Association has reported that "as far as could be judged from the statements and tone of the officials, the bulb trade could now go forward with their catalogues and other arrangements in certainty that no Dutch bulbs would come in this season. The board felt that they must reserve the right to consider any special case of particular hardship, but the disposition was to grant no licenses whatever. It was resolved that a letter of thanks be written to Sir Guy Granet for his kind and sympathetic reception of the deputation from the association, and special stress be laid upon the point that the restriction on imports should not be removed until the end of nine months, otherwise a complete dislocation of the trade would ensue."

THE GERMAN GOODS GET IN.

In The Review for June 1 it was reported that Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, had finally secured from the British government a permit to bring over, via Rotterdam, their German goods held up since the inception of the British blockade and that the Ryndam had sailed May 27 with 1,291 cases, or approximately one-third the quantity covered by the permit.

The accompanying illustration shows the Ryndam's cargo arriving at the Bayersdorfer headquarters. The adjoining building, at 1131 Arch street, has been leased as means of taking in the merchandise.

FEVERFEW FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Will you please inform me what size of feverfew I would have to plant in a bench April 15 in order to get flowers for cutting for Memorial day? They are to be planted in a carnation house in a temperature of 50 to 52 degrees at night and 56 degrees in the daytime, with a higher temperature on bright days and full ventilation.

R. K. S.—Ia.

April 15 is entirely too late a date to plant feverfew for Memorial day. It ought to be in the benches in February or, at the latest, the first week in March, if you want to get much from it. Plants set out as late as April 15 would need to be of good size, from 4-inch or 5-inch pots, and even then they would not give you satisfactory returns.

RID MANURE PILE OF FLIES.

The vast majority of house flies develop from eggs which are laid in horse manure. There are two simple ways of destroying the larvæ. Sprinkling the manure heap with a solution prepared by adding one-half pound of powdered hellebore to ten gallons of water will destroy, according to recent experiments, from eighty-eight to ninety-nine per cent of the larvæ in the manure. The use of a simple maggot trap will prove equally effective. At the Maryland Agricultural College, it was found that the trap used there destroyed fully ninety-nine per cent of all the maggots or larvæ breeding in a given lot of manure.

Such a trap is simplicity itself, consisting merely of a slatted platform standing about one foot high upon a concrete floor which is surrounded by a rim or wall of concrete four inches high. The floor slopes a little toward one corner, in order to allow liquid from the manure to be drained off into a small cistern. Ordinarily this drain is plugged with a stopper and the concrete floor filled with water to a depth of one inch in the shallowest part. The larvæ, when about to enter the pupal or resting stage, preliminary to emerging as adult flies, invariably crawl about in search of a suitably dry spot in which to enter into pupation. In the maggot trap, therefore, as soon as the larvæ attempt to leave the manure on which they have been feeding, they fall through the openings in the slatted platform into the water below and are drowned. Each week the drain should be opened and the dead maggots washed from the floor of the trap into the cistern.

Experience with maggot traps has brought out the fact that these are most effective when the manure is kept compactly heaped and well moistened. This is due to the larvæ's desire to find a comparatively dry place in which to pupate and, consequently, they crawl away from wet manure. In the second place, the platform should stand not less than one foot above the concrete floor, in order that the floor may be more easily cleaned. A third point is that old manure does not attract flies for breeding. A lot of manure need remain on the maggot trap but ten days in order to prevent any breeding taking place in it.

In cities and towns it is probable that the treatment of manure with hellebore will usually be found more advantageous. Ten gallons of the solution already described, composed of one-half pound of powdered hellebore to ten gallons of water and allowed to stand twenty-four hours, will be sufficient for the treatment of eight bushels or ten cubic feet of manure. A weaker solution than this is not so effective. The hellebore does not alter the composition of the manure in any way and does not cause any injury to crops on which the manure is placed. The cost of the treatment, with hellebore selling from 12 to 16 cents a pound and in large lots for 10 cents or less, is estimated at a little over 1 cent for every two bushels.

Newton Upper Falls, Mass.—Despite the cold and wet spring, business in this section has been good, according to J. W. McNeally. The condition of stock has been satisfactory, considering the little sunshine during the last two months.

Hollis, N. H.—Rain has been too plentiful this spring for the good of outdoor stock and, if the deluge does not stop soon, many growers will reckon a complete failure of outdoor plantings. G. W. Coburn & Son report a successful season in pot plants. They also are growers of vegetables, principally cukes.

Worcester, Mass.—A veritable shower of verbal bouquets recently descended on the heads of Harold J. Neale, the municipal forester, and Frank Chase, foreman of the city greenhouses, in the form of a newspaper write-up expository of the good work of Messrs. Neale and Chase in beautifying the city. A public official was quoted: "There is at least one department of the outdoor work carried on by the city by which the voters are actually receiving $2 for every $1 invested, and that is the city's greenhouse and nursery department."

HOUSTON, TEX.

H. H. Kuhlmann reports business as being good. His houses on Jackson street are devoted principally to decorative stock. He has some good specimens of Ficus elastica. Bedding and field plants are grown at Spring, Tex., which is twenty-three miles from Houston.

The Brazos Greenhouses, owned by Miss Finnigan, who also owns the Brazos hotel, one of Houston's large and up-to-date hostelries, has the only steel and concrete greenhouses in Houston. Mr. Hewitt, her manager, says that business is good. He has some good mums, particularly Golden Glow, which gives good flowers through the hot weather.

R. C. Kerr, vice-president of the S. A. F., is having a good business and is cleaning up in everything. He is cutting a good supply of field roses, gladioli and Shasta daisies, and a good supply of short-stemmed flowers.

We had showers nearly every afternoon last week, and hot mornings, which have helped to develop stock, even weeds, of which we always have plenty. While other business has dropped on account of summer, funeral work has held up the average all along the line. G. R. L.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Business is beginning to recede to summer's dullness, but now and then funeral work is heavy. Roses have been coming in finely, both in quantity and quality; it is seldom that we have seen better roses at this time. Good Beauties are to be seen, as well as Kaiserin, My Maryland, Ophelia, Sunburst, Richmond and Russell roses. Carnations are becoming of inferior quality, and there is an abundance of them. Sweet peas still are holding their own, and although some of them have short stems, good stock is coming from outdoors. Gladioli now are making their appearance and will be a help in filling orders for stock that will last.

Hanging baskets and even bedding plants continue to move and there still are calls for ferns and plants for porch boxes, etc. Growers have been busy planting mums and roses.

Various Notes.

The Livingston Seed Co. has been on the jump with wedding orders.

Stephens & Son report that trade is satisfactory in all branches.

Underwood Bros. have been stepping lively of late turning out funeral pieces.

The Franklin Park Floral Co. is winding up a season's good business.

E. Metzmaier reports business as being good until a few days ago, when it began to slacken.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. has planted all its mums and is now replanting roses.

The Riverside Floral Co. reports a good season's business and is well satisfied with results.

Some of the florists are planning to go on a picnic July 26 at Buckeye lake. No doubt they will go with the Hilltop boosters, who number about 2,000.

Sam Graff, of the Art Floral Co., has settled down in his new quarters and thinks he will make good at the new location. J. M.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Market conditions were good last week, considering the time of year. Good stock was not overplentiful. Retail trade was not quite so good as that of the previous week. The hot weather has a tendency to open a large quantity of flowers. Sweet peas are in the market by the thousands. They are of fine quality. Roses of all kinds are plentiful and of especially fine quality. Russell is far in the lead of all the rest. Carnations still are plentiful, but will not last much longer. Lilies are plentiful and cheap. Outdoor stock is arriving in wagon loads and dahlias have made their appearance. Gladioli are exceptionally good this year and are of large size.

Various Notes.

T. J. Noll & Co. are looking forward to a good summer trade. The new display room will be opened this week. Mr. Noll left for Chicago on a business trip July 5.

A. Newell and wife will leave July 7 for an extensive trip through the east, taking in Buffalo and Toronto and then going up the St. Lawrence river.

W. J. Barnes still is busy with wedding and funeral work. He now is getting his greenhouses in shape for the fall stock. He has a fine lot of chrysanthemums and about 500 pot plants.

Edward A. Humfeld has left for the Ozark mountains, where he has a home at Hahatonka. He will return about September 15.

W. L. Rock now is cutting a fine lot of roses. Carnations will be planted out this week. Outdoor snapdragons are good.

Adolph Mohr is getting his new house into shape. He has his mums planted and will commence this week bringing up the stock from the old place.

Reinhardt & Sons are bringing in a fine lot of sweet peas and gladioli. W. J. B.

NEXT SPRING'S CAMPANULAS.

Please advise me when I should plant seed of campanula to have blooms next spring. E. W. P.—Ill.

I presume you refer to Campanula Medium, commonly known as Canterbury bell. If you sow the seed in a coldframe at once, you still can have plants that will flower next spring, but it would have been better had the seed been sown a month ago. These campanulas are only biennial. Of the true perennial campanulas there is a large variety. Seed can be sown of any of these now, and practically all should bloom next season. C. W.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

David J. Scott, of Corfu, N. Y., finds an increasing demand for his special strain of mignonette. During the entire season it has brought good prices. Another house, perhaps, will be devoted to it next season. Spanish irises, miniature gladioli and sweet peas have sold well. These will be succeeded by chrysanthemums, which have been planted temporarily in beds from 2½-inch pots. Lifted with a trowel, the original ball is undisturbed. Mr. Scott maintains that the plant is thus unchecked and avoids a stunted growth. Carnations will be planted out the latest date on record. The plants are thrifty and promising.

Leroy Adams, of Corfu, specializes in carnations and pins his faith to Carnegie, Harlowarden, Enchantress, Enchantress Supreme, Winsor and White Wonder.

William Ehmann, also of Corfu, is strong on sweet peas. Some of the finest seen in the Bison City are grown here.

L. C. Stroh & Sons, of Batavia, N. Y., have found time between rushes to add another house to their extensive plant; also a fine garage, built with cement blocks and stuccoed to conform with the style of the recently built office and salesroom. They have experienced excellent business. I noted a pretty group of columbines in bloom at the approach to the greenhouses.

Robert H. McKerr, of Canandaigua, N. Y., was called away during the rush to attend the funeral of his mother, who died in Canada at the age of 85. His father still is hale and hearty, of about the same age.

Edward Sick, a Canandaiguan, says that, apart from a slight decrease of funeral work, his business shows a healthy continuance.

W. & T. Cass, of Geneva, N. Y., are much pleased with the crop of Formosa lilies they grew for Easter. Bulbs 7x9 produced from six to twenty-five blooms each and were uniform of growth—an exceptionally fine lot. Harrisii and giganteum, while good, had to take second place. The brothers do a big nursery business and have an unusual demand for Spiræa Van Houttei. Peonies were late for Memorial day, but are now a grand sight. In passing I would mention that William Cass has served his ward as alderman for sixteen years—quite a record.

Alfred Patrick, of Auburn, N. Y., says he has tried every remedy recommended to destroy the moth miller, but that the millers laugh at his attempts. Many nights were spent in catching the pests. A manufactured article now is being tried with apparent success. Archie Patrick, son and assistant, has purchased the John White property at Skaneateles, N. Y., and expected to take possession July 1. The late Mr. White built up a good business, but his widow felt it too much for her.

T. F. Eastwood, of Auburn, called my attention to a splendid strain of Stocks Beauty of Nice and snapdragons. He finds Marguerite Mrs. Sander invariably comes double if the plants are kept potbound. Among the varieties of ferns once popular but now almost lost sight of, yet highly useful, is Pteris tremula, a strong grower. The fronds make a fine background in design work. It is easily grown from spores. Another is Adiantum Capillus-Veneris fimbriatum, a hardy and compact variety. W. M.

OBITUARY

Walter P. Stokes.

Walter P. Stokes, of Moorestown, N. J., died July 1, at Moosehead Lake, Me., where he went early in the summer in the hope of benefiting his failing health.

Walter P. Stokes was one of the best known seedsmen in America, a man of conservative disposition and painstaking methods, who won the confidence of all with whom he had dealings. He was born in Philadelphia, in 1856, and spent the greater part of his life within that city. His first employment was in the grocery trade, where he came in contact with market gardeners and at length began to supply and be depended on for special strains of seeds. Herbert W. Johnson then was manager for C. G. Rogers, a pioneer in the seed business in Philadelphia. In 1882, when Mr. Stokes was 26 years of age, the partnership of Johnson & Stokes was formed and a retail seed store opened at 1104 Market street, the wholesaling of seeds being a natural development of the reputation for supplying dependable stock; Mr. Stokes became known for the painstaking accuracy of the firm's catalogues, which he wrote. When this partnership expired by limitation, July 1, 1906, the business occupied a double store at 217 and 219 Market street and was continued as two separate concerns, the store being divided, the one at 219 Market street being known as Stokes Seed Store and the one at 217 Market street as the Johnson Seed Co. Of the latter Herbert W. Johnson was president and Clifford Phillip secretary and treasurer. Mr. Phillip was succeeded by Mr. Johnson's two sons, but the company went into involuntary bankruptcy July 19, 1915.

Operating along modern lines, Stokes Seed Store established a trial grounds at Moorestown, N. J. Here seed growing became of constantly increasing importance. In the course of time the Philadelphia retail business was discontinued and a wholesale and market gardeners' trade conducted from Moorestown under the title of Stokes Seed Farms Co., Inc. With the season of 1916 a largely increased acreage was put out, of pepper, eggplant, kale, okra, radish, tomato, spinach, turnip, sweet corn and field corn.

For many years Mr. Stokes was active in the affairs of the American Seed Trade Association, being elected as its president in 1902. He occupied the chair at the twenty-first annual convention, held at Atlantic City the following year.

Thomas Wilson.

Men old in the trade in Massachusetts will learn with regret of the death of Thomas Wilson, once a well known florist at Newburyport, where he also was prominently identified with the Masonic fraternity

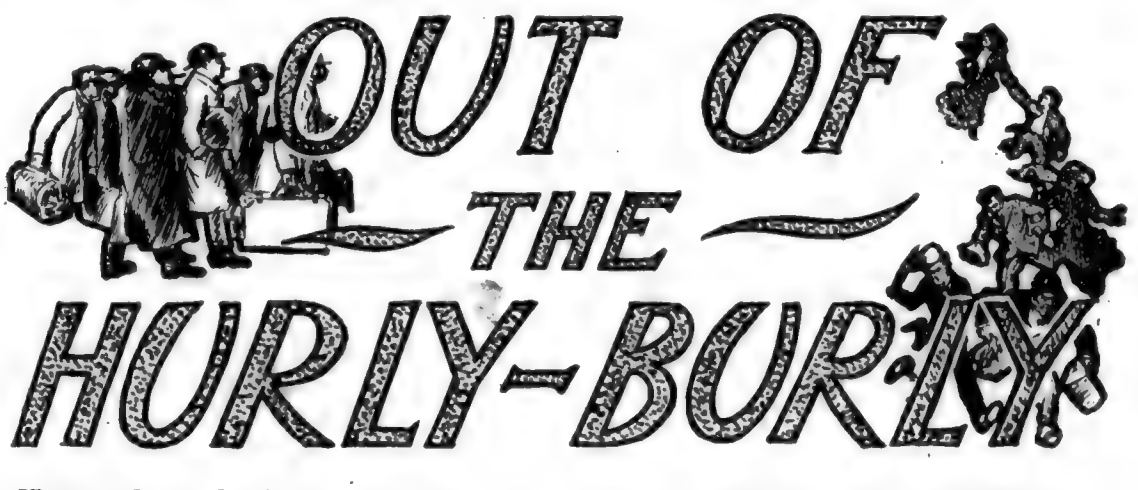
Mr. Wilson was 68 years of age. As a young man he was one of the pioneer florists of eastern Massachusetts, but about thirty-five years ago he removed to Grass Valley, Cal., where he again made a reputation as a florist and was appointed superintendent of the grounds connected with the state agricultural school at Davisville, Cal., where he remained until failing health made it necessary for him to take up a less exacting position. The interment was at Grass Valley.

L. A. King.

L. A. King, aged 58 years, expired suddenly June 27, in front of the armory of the Monticello guards at Charlottesville, Va., where he had gone to join in the send-off given the local military company on the eve of its departure for the frontier. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Lena L. Mallory, of Ashland, and two daughters, Mrs. Marguerite Weatherby, of Rocky Mount, N. C., and Miss Olive King, of Richmond. Interment was at Richmond, Va., June 29.

Eugene J. Ferrari.

Eugene J. Ferrari, a member of the firm of Ferrari Bros., growers at San Francisco, Cal., died June 26 at a sanatorium at Los Gatos, Cal. The deceased was a native of Italy, but spent most of his life in this country. Besides his brothers, Emile and Peter, who were associated with him in the business, he is survived by a wife, a daughter and another brother, Louis Ferrari.



William Ball.

William Ball, 89 years of age, for many years a florist at Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y., died June 23, at his home, 2422 University avenue, New York city.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

New York, N. Y.—Ralph A. Bell, Nat P. Whitley and Nathan Sternberg, trading as the Bell Rosery, at 2654 Broadway, have made an assignment to C. Edward Benoit.

Worcester, Mass.—John U. Gibbons has been declared bankrupt. His liabilities were $662 and assets $271.

Newcastle, Ind.—Myer Heller, of the South Park Floral Co., who also conducts the largest department store here, that of the Kahn-Heller Co., has been elected president of the Indiana Retail Dry Goods Association.

Elkhart, Ind.—Mrs. Emily E. Weaver, 82 years of age, died July 3, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. M. Bullock, who is well known in the trade, being a regular attendant at S. A. F. conventions and large flower shows.

Wheeling, W. Va.—Frederick Wherley, manager of the Virginia Flower Shop, is conducting a tour of northern United States and southeastern Canada. A large number of teachers of the Wheeling schools and others are making thé trip under Mr. Wherley's auspices.

Knoxville, Tenn.—The Knoxville Florists' Society will hold its third annual picnic July 6, at Elkmont, Tenn., a mountain summer resort about seventy miles from Knoxville. A special train has been chartered for the occasion and the picnickers will leave the city early in the morning and expect to have a fine time.

Hampton, Ia.—E. Curtis, proprietor of the Curtis Floral Co., has sold his business interests here to C. H. Hollied, who took possession July 1. Mr. Curtis, who has been in business in Hampton for fourteen years, has removed to Webster City, where he will take charge of his greenhouses, which he formerly leased to other parties. Mr. Hollied formerly was superintendent of the city parks of Springfield, Mo., and taught gardening in the public schools there.

Camden, N. J.—F. R. Matsinger, who conducted a florists' business at Palmyra for twenty years, located in the city last winter, at 2734 Concord avenue, starting with a Lord & Burnham house, 20x80 feet.

Geneseo, Ill.—The Tyner Floral Co. has discontinued business, having sold its property and business to W. G. Thomas, of Sheffield. Mr. and Mrs. Tyner are visiting relatives at Indianapolis and probably will remain in the Indiana capital.

St. Paul, Minn.—For the midsummer festival at Lake Phalen June 24 there was a parade of 300 decorated automobiles, some of them making good work for the florists. For instance, on one of the cars Holm & Olson used 2,300 peonies, with three cases of huckleberry for green.

Plymouth, Ind.—F. A. Forbes reports that in his section of the Hoosier state the season now closing has been an erratic one, both as to weather and business. It has been difficult to foretell the needs of each week—hard to order just enough and not too much. Notwithstanding, business has averaged well in comparison with that of previous years.

Carthage, Mo.—Each spring the people of Carthage go to Sarcoxie to view the peony fields of the Oronogo Flower Gardens. It is an annual affair, and the roads are thronged with automobiles on Sundays during the blooming period. The cool weather this year prolonged the season of peonies for several days and large cuts were shipped to nearby cities. The Oronogo Flower Gardens also operate greenhouses.

LILIES will now become good property. Conditions are right for the man who owns some bulbs to make money the next few months.

IF this trade could be put on the basis of one price to all it would do as much as any one thing could to advance the standing of the business.

WHAT about an American supply of valley pips? Who has successfully forced home-grown pips? What were the methods employed in making a start?

GOLDFISH, a profitable side line in many flower stores and retail greenhouses, have gone on the short side of the market. If you have any, don't let the public get them too cheaply.

SLOWLY, but steadily, the trade is coming to realize that no profit can be made on customers who do not pay their bills and that the man who pays slowly must be educated to pay promptly or in the end he will not pay at all.

THERE seldom has been a June that has seen so large a proportion of the cut flowers sold through the regular trade channels. Usually a considerable part of the heavy crops of the month must be sacrificed to buyers who come into the markets only when cheap flowers are to be had.

THERE is every indication that the United States will be the one open market for the world's output of bulbs and plants of the 1916 crop, with the likelihood that labor shortage will cut the output below normal and lack of space in steamers will act as a check on shipments that are not on order.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few of the subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3 or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

FIVE YEARS.

Burrows, J. B., Onset, Mass.

THREE YEARS.

Miller, John, Oyster Bay, N. Y.

TWO YEARS.

Frank, T. F., Buffalo, N. Y.
Southerton, R. J. Highland Park, Ill.
Jordan, O. C., Rossford, O.
Le Clere, L., St. Joseph, Mo.
Heaven, T., Benton Harbor, Mich.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story: no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

THE BEST ADVERTISEMENT.

It is an old saying that the best advertisement is a satisfied customer; which is why The Review welcomes letters like these:

You may discontinue my advertising, as I am all sold out for this season. The Review did its work as usual.—Henry J. Kettmann, Creve Coeur, Mo., June 27, 1916.

Please omit my advertising until I can get something else ready for market. Thanking you for the selling power of The Review, I remain, etc.—B. C. Blake, Springfield, O., June 30, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

The prospects for the exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society at Bar Harbor, to be held in connection with the annual convention, July 15 and 16, give great promise. There will be many exhibits from Newport, Lenox and other eastern points; Bar Harbor itself is an ideal place for growing sweet peas. Schedules for the exhibition are ready and may be had on application to the secretary. About 1,000 have already been sent out to possible exhibitors. The prize list is large and generous and keen competition is expected.

Visitors, exhibitors and judges going from New York will leave on the Metropolitan line to Boston at 5 p. m., Thursday, July 13, reaching Boston the next morning. They will leave in the afternoon with the Boston contingent on the Outside line to Bar Harbor, Friday, July 14. The fare between Boston and Bar Harbor is $10.50 round trip, staterooms $1.50 and $2.00. The fare from New York to Boston is $8.00 round trip, staterooms $1.00 and $2.00, according to location. Through tickets to Bar Harbor may be procured at either point. Early reservations are requested, as travelers at this season of the year are numerous. For further particulars address the undersigned at 40 West Twenty-eighth street, New York. Harry A. Bunyard, Sec'y.

ILLINOIS STATE FLORISTS.

At the meeting of the executive committee of the Illinois State Florists' Association, held at Bloomington, Ill., June 27, it was decided not to put on a competitive flower show at the state meeting at Bloomington this fall. The shaping of a premium list, therefore, was abandoned. Efforts, however, will be made by the committee to put on one of the largest non-competitive fall exhibitions ever held. The secretary was instructed to write the members who answered the call for cash subscriptions to the competitive show, and thank them for their response. All members will be asked to contribute stock to the non-competitive show—cut flowers or plants—to make it a banner exhibition.

The only cash awards will be those given to the school children of Bloomington, for chrysanthemum plants. This amateur feature will be entirely in the hands of A. Washburn & Sons, of Bloomington, who donated several thousand plants to the children to grow and who will offer $50 in prizes in this event.

The show will be staged in the large coliseum at Bloomington, November 9 to 11. The commercial end of the show will be in charge of a committee consisting of J. F. Ammann, Charles Loveridge and George W. Jacobs. The usual certificate of merit will be awarded to anything new or meritorious. No entries need be made for this.

Those attending the meeting were President Charles W. Johnson, Charles Loveridge, I. L. Pillsbury, E. W. Guy, George W. Jacobs and J. F. Ammann, from out of town; Frank Washburn, George Washburn and John R. Gee, of Bloomington. J. F. Ammann, Sec'y.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

With the exception of a few unimportant variations, the Chicago market is slowly settling into the regular summer form. There is nothing to occasion any large demand, and, were it not for the department store buyers, it would not always be an easy matter to clear the market of surplus stock. These buyers were quite active July 1, with the result that everyone started with a clean slate the first of the week. The large quantities of outdoor stock naturally operate to lessen the chances of disposing of all standard stock through regular channels. All things considered, however, there is no cause for complaint. The general opinion is that the market is much better than a year ago, both as to supply and demand, and that business will be ahead of last year in both July and August.

For really good Beauties there is a fairly strong demand and, owing to the preponderance of cool days during the week, quality is much better than it has been for some time. Considering the time of year, other roses have sold well, too, though at a comparatively low figure. There are few long Killarneys on the market. In fact, most of the stock is of the shorter grades.

The cool weather has gone far to hold carnations in shape, but they are slipping and few good ones now are found on the market. These, of course, sell readily and the poor ones are jobbed off. Valley, at last, is loosening. It has sold at unusual prices through June, good stock bringing 6 cents on the closing days of the month. Easter lilies are plentiful and refuse to clear. Among the more recent arrivals on the market is Lilium candidum. This, unlike most things that are new, sells slowly at low prices. Cattleyas, as a matter of course, are scarce, though not so much so as they were a few weeks back. Sweet peas are in large supply, but are going down in quality. There are, to be sure, a few good ones on the market, but most of them are short in stem and soft. Some excellent Shasta daisies are coming into the market and they meet, as usual, a good demand. Although there is a quantity of outdoor gladioli, they do not move as rapidly as one would expect.

Cold storage peonies are still with us and there is every prospect of a fairly large supply of northern-grown stock arriving on the market before many days. Cornflowers, coreopsis, gaillardias, candytuft, feverfew and gypsophilas are clearing.

The green goods situation, regulating itself on that of the cut flower market, exhibits no marked change.

A Reversion.

Emil Reichling, who has been eminently successful with Peter Reinberg's establishment, is a believer in own root roses; the place was largely in grafted stock when he assumed the superintendency, but he is throwing it out and replanting with own root. This year not a grafted plant went into any of the forty-two houses replanted with young stock. Mr. Reichling is of the opinion that where one man succeeds better with grafted stock another may do so with own root plants, the difference being more in the man than in the plants. In support of his contention that quality can be had with own root plants he points to his record at the 1915 show, where his own root roses took prizes on entries in competition with flowers from growers who use grafts almost exclusively.

The demand for Russell has been so great that it has been impossible to fill it even with grafts, with the result that there are few own root plants anywhere in this section. But Mr. Reichling has rooted many Russell and his houses of own root stock certainly are better than the houses he planted with grafts; the bottom breaks on the own root plants are wonderfully strong. Incidentally, growers have had heavy losses grafting Russell and Mr. Reichling lost ninety per cent of his first 10,000 cuttings of it, but he discovered it roots easily enough if one waits until January to put the cuttings in sand.

The Weather in June.

June was an unusually favorable month for growers, the low temperature and subnormal sun being a great help in retaining quality in the cut flowers. The highest temperature was only 88 degrees and the mean was 2.8 degrees below normal. The rainfall was 7.25 inches, or twice the normal. The percentage of possible sunshine was only sixty-seven, the normal for June being seventy-one.

Various Notes.

Seventeen acres of virgin land has been purchased by the Poehlmann Bros. Co., adjoining plant C in Morton Grove, Ill. The corporation now holds title to 137 acres of land in this place that may be used for planting or building purposes.

Adam Zender has rented his greenhouses in Rogers Park to his son-in-law, Robert Windler, who bought all stock and took possession July 1. Mr. Zender will retire from any active part in the florists' business and will devote himself to the enjoyment of life. He is a director in the Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, and will not relax his interest in trade affairs.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Kennicott will motor to Calumet, Mich., July 6 to spend a few days on their peony farm. Incidentally, Mr. Kennicott will assist August Jurgens, one of the proprietors of the place, in superintending the cutting of the peonies. They are expecting a larger cut, as this is the first year the farm has been in full crop. Pæonia festiva maxima is the variety principally grown.

While a considerable number of growers have discarded Mrs. Ward as unprofitable, the A. F. Amling Co., Maywood, considers it one of the best of money-makers. All of the old plants of Ward are to be carried over and 9,000 young plants have been benched. It is noted that July and August bring little call for Ward, so these months are chosen for resting the old plants, the flowers being in good demand the balance of the year, short Wards being in especial request.

Last week Lester Partridge, of Sharp, Partridge & Co., suffered a fall, tearing the ligaments in one of his legs. As a result, he is confined to a bed in the North Chicago hospital. It is hoped, however, that he will be fully recovered within another week.

Next week A. L. Randall and Mrs. Randall will leave for their farm near Benton Harbor, Mich. Five weeks later they will be joined by their daughter, who is a student in Northwestern University. On this farm Mr. Randall grows gladioli in large quantities, and he has made preparations to stay with them for four months.

George Walther, 6310 Normal avenue, has left for California, where he will join his wife and spend the vacation period. At his store the closing days of June were enlivened with a sale of geraniums at 5 cents each.

John Scheiden, of Evanston, has purchased a new touring car to assist him in spending an enjoyable summer.

When Richard Salm, of French & Salm, runs down from Union Grove, Wis., for a chat with his firm's selling agent, the E. C. Amling Co., it is in a new National motor that makes nothing of the seventy miles of good road.

During the month of July A. T. Pyfer will be absent from his accustomed place. He is on a farm near Polo, Ill., for a fortnight's visit with his mother, after which he will lend a hand when Pyfer & Olsen take over the Nepper range in Evanston and start filling it with carnations. In the interval Miss Nettie Parker, secretary of A. T. Pyfer & Co., Inc., will be in charge of the wholesale house. Harry Gardner resumed his place there July 3. He was a member of the First regiment when the call came, but was out of town on vacation and was left with an honorable discharge.

During the express drivers' strike W. F. Dunteman, of Bensenville, brought his cut to market, where the greater part of it is sold by Erne & Klingel, using his touring car. It is a trip of fifty-six miles, 112 miles round trip, by road. Sometimes he made two trips a day. Not caring to use his pleasure car so strenuously, he bought a Ford with panel body, which, now that the strike is over, makes the trips whenever a special need arises.

The marriage of William J. Dolezal, the Paradise Florist, 6534 South Halsted street, to Miss Estella Enderlin was celebrated June 28 in St. Raphael's church.

A seed, bulb, plant and horticultural supply store will be opened in Lake Forest, Ill., August 1, by D. D. P. Roy. The store, which is 20x70 feet, has been leased by Mr. Roy for a term

Charles Erne and the nation have both celebrated July 4 as a birthday anniversary. Mr. Erne was born exactly 100 years after the Declaration.

Beginning July 8, Miss Ruth Wattman, with Bassett & Washburn, will take a two weeks' vacation. Miss Ruth Schreiber celebrated her seventeenth birthday July 1. Mrs. Horton is visiting in Salt Lake City, Utah.

According to Joseph Wolf, one of its proprietors, the Armitage Floral Shop, 2065 Milwaukee avenue, is enjoying the best run of funeral and wedding orders in its experience.

An automobile trip to Lake Geneva and the Dalles, Wis., was enjoyed by John Ziska and his family over the week end to July 4. They had with them as guests on the trip Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boylan.

Among the week's visitors were Mrs. J. Herbach and her daughter, Marguerite C. Labo, of the Labo Floral Co., Joliet, Ill. They were here buying materials for a Fourth of July float.

OF THE

Album of Designs

(A Book Every Retailer Needs)

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, and a second edition went quickly. Now a third edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

July 1 Joseph H. Hill took over from the E. G. Hill Co. the carnation range, the Graves place and the Cincinnati retail store. The rose range will continue to be operated under the name of the E. G. Hill Co. The Indianapolis retail store will continue under this direction but using the distinct corporate title, the Hill Floral Co. A separate corporation also may be organized to carry on the Cincinnati store. The Lord & Burnham Co., through its Chicago office, has built two iron-frame houses at what is now the Joseph Hill place, one a growing house 60x400, the other a propagating house 26x212. It will be recalled that a few years ago the original Hill place on the other side of town was turned over to Fred H. Lemon, to be conducted under the name Lemon & Co. Under the new form of decentralized organization each member of the family and each establishment will specialize, although all will work together in close coöperation. The E. G. Hill Co., with E. G. Hill, Earl Mann and Miss Sarah Hill at its head, will specialize on roses;

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The season is over—a season that, despite war abroad and disturbances at home, has been excellent for the florists. There has been a fair quantity of business, with more than enough flowers for all demands. Lily of the valley is the only exception. So much less was forced that there was a shortage at the end of June. The price advanced to $6 per hundred.

Carnations are of better average quality than is usual in July. They have been helped by the cool nights. Really fine Mrs. C. W. Ward and several varieties of white sell slowly at $2 per hundred. Gladioli are becoming of importance. They come from northern greenhouses and from southern fields. Easter lilies have a leading place in the summer list of flowers today. They are not so plentiful as a week ago. There are some good roses and a good many roses of rather poor quality. The former are invaluable for quality orders, both in and out of town. The poor grade is useful where quantity is an object.

Local Beauties are becoming scarcer. A few are coming from the eastern or lower New England states. Cattleyas find little favor. C. gigas is about over; C. Mossiæ reigns. Delphinium Belladonna is shortening up, but there is quite a little larkspur. The older varieties of sweet peas are preferred to the Spencers for shipments in warm weather, provided they are well grown. This is curious, as the Spencers are much finer in every way, except durability. Peas from outdoors are at their height. There is a long list of outdoor flowers.

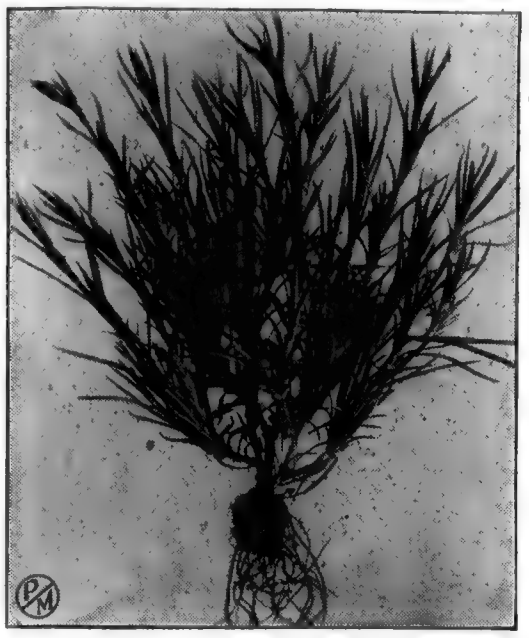
Early Closing.

There is a general movement for early closing among the stores in the center of the city. It is a poor rule that won't work both ways. The long hours in the busy fall, winter and spring seasons have convinced many of our leading business men that shorter hours in summer are not only fair but necessary. They think that business can be done just as well in less time, provided all concerned are willing. Each house or individual works out the details to meet the special requirements. Nearly all close at 1 o'clock Saturdays, or give time through the week to those who stay Saturday afternoon. Many close at 4 o'clock on week days.



Heavy Importations.

During the last fortnight H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have received goods from France, Italy, Holland, Germany and Japan, the total number of cases running over 2,000. look upon these florists' shipments as an opportunity for activity. They have been opening three times as many cases for inspection as usual.

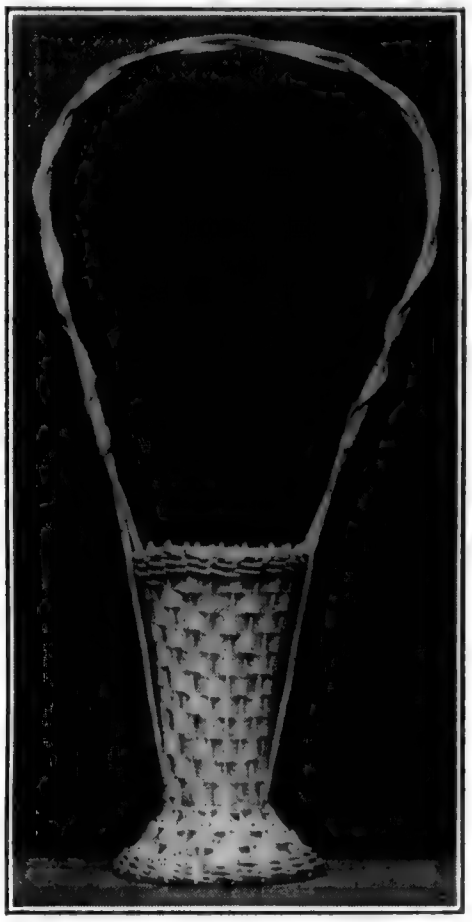
The contents of the cases have proved to be in remarkably fine condition, the German goods delayed in Rotterdam showing no evidence of staleness; on the contrary, they were as bright and clean as could be desired.

Topic of the Hour.

The remarkable display of wide-awakeness shown by the advertising men and women in their convention in Philadelphia last week should make us keenly alive to our changing business conditions. It is sufficient for the purpose of demonstrating the great value of properly directed advertising to mention that Henry Penn, of Boston, and Charles H. Grakelow, of Philadelphia, took active part. Henry Penn is one of the most skillful florist-advertisers of the day. His success in the Hub has been largely due to his wonderful ability to attract people and to hold them. Charles H. Grakelow's rise in the Quaker City has put him in a position where he can and does advertise freely. His display in the parade during last week's convention was cleverly conceived and carried out.

The thought that all this brings to each of us is that we must in some way advertise our business if we wish to keep up in the race. Just what that form of advertising is to be will depend on our business and on ourselves—quality, display, service, price, newspaper cards, or any or several of a variety of other ways of telling people what you are doing, in a way that will interest them.



It is a big problem; one that will repay much thought.

Various Notes.

Edward Reid took his family on a most pleasant business trip up the state June 29 and 30. They visited Lancaster, Harrisburg, Reading and Pottsville.

Alfred M. Campbell assumed charge of the Strafford Flower Farm, at Strafford, Pa., July 1.

START RIGHT

Fall will be with us before we know it. A little reflection at this time of leisure may prove very profitable to us later. The old saying, "In time of peace prepare for war," should be applied to business, only in different wording, which would be, "In dull times prepare for the rush season." Now you have time for afterthought and forethought.

This year we have the finest line of Baskets, Xmas Wreaths, and in fact everything for the florist in the supply line that has ever been shown. Our men are out with a full line, the prices of which are the usual Neidinger values, which almost every florist knows to be the best on the market.

We have made a thorough study of Florists' requirements in both new and old ideas from a practical standpoint, so that not only the article is practical, but the price is so reasonable that the florist can sell the goods in quantities. Don't fail to see our line when our men are in your city. Am positive a visit will be to mutual benefit.

For the florists whom our men might overlook, we shall publish a photo each consecutive week of one of our basket numbers that is selling the best on the road, thus giving every florist an opportunity of procuring the best quality for the least money ever offered.

Miss Faust, daughter of Henry I. Faust, of Merion, Pa., is bringing in her wonderfully fine sweet peas. The cut is extremely heavy now.

Clarence U. Liggit, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., says that growers are replanting more roses than last season, when, for the sake of economy, most of the old plants were carried over.

Miss Mary A. Baker spent the week-end with friends in Kennett Square, Pa.

Fred Berger is suffering with a return of his last winter's trouble, sciatica, at his home in Germantown. It is hoped that careful nursing will soon restore him to health.

Raymond Brunswick is steadily regaining his strength at the University hospital.

The London Flower Shop has opened an attractive branch store at Chelsea for the summer.

Robert A. Craig spent a couple of days with the Long Island growers last week. They, one and all, have had a good season.

Paul Berkowitz is proud of Philadelphia and does not miss a chance to tell of his city's achievements.

Stuart H. Miller is showing fine valley.

John Walsh, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., is running a new car through the suburbs.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society held a fine sweet pea show at the Quakertown Club June 29 and 30. It attracted much attention. A dahlia show will be held at Chestnut Hill in September.

B. Eschner says that the new building of the M. Rice Co. is under roof.

Commodore John Westcott opened the Waretown season June 23 and 24. A select gathering of our leading men from this and other cities met on the shores of Barnegat bay as the guests of the commodore.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer says that the company's business for the month of June doubled that of last year.

Mrs. John H. Claus, of Germantown avenue and Tioga street, has an extremely attractive store, which she keeps fully abreast of the time by frequently changing the always tempting displays.

Harry Berger is out of town on business. John Berger is getting a breath of sea air at Somers Point, N. J., while Edward Dornheim and William Stephens safeguard the interests of Berger Bros.

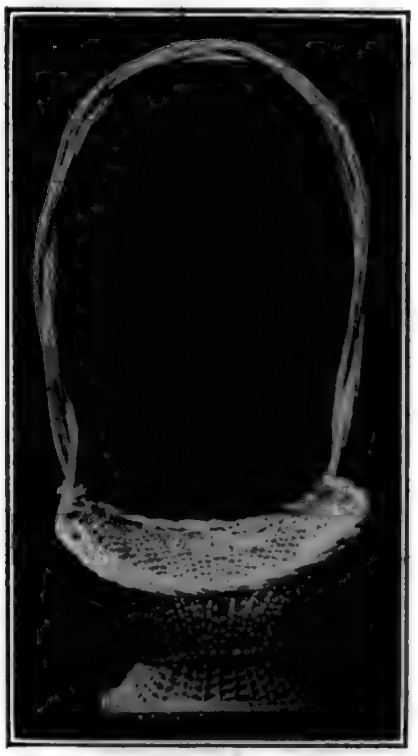
NEW YORK.

The Market.

The good old summer time is here; in the wholesale cut flower market it is called "the dead old summer time."



Weddings, apart from the hasty nuptials of many of the soldiers mobilizing, have become fewer daily, and school commencements are over. As a result the market has settled down to the inevitable dullness of July and August.

Roses are quoted at from 50 cents per hundred for the short-stemmed stock up to $20 per hundred for the few perfect American Beauties. There is no surplus of roses, but a gradual decline in values, which, doubtless, will continue until the new crop arrives. Valley, which has been unreasonably high of late, last week dropped to half the previous week's quotations. July 1 only the best selected valley brought as high as $3 per hundred. The cessation of June weddings was given as the reason for the drop of prices. Lilies remain at $4 per hundred for the best, and from that on down to $2.

Carnations quickly showed the effect of the heat. Choice stock sold at $2 per hundred, many making only $1 per hundred. Anything inferior sold at 50 cents per hundred. This placed them on a par with the low-priced roses. The orchid market is steady and no oversupply is noted. Prices continue at about the figures of the last two weeks, a few choice gigas bringing from 40 cents to 50 cents. The best of the sweet peas continue to bring satisfactory prices, but only the best are considered by the buyer. Much of the inferior stock reaches the barrel, accompanied by rambler roses.

The street men were selling the last of the peonies at 1 cent each July 1. The cold storage stock now has all been sold, and shipments from growers are about at an end. The market is crowded with all kinds of outdoor stock, much of which does not sell at all. There seems to be but a faint call for rambler branches, and practically no sale of coreopsis, daisies, sweet williams and forget-me-nots. Other offerings include candytuft, feverfew, Canterbury bells, phloxes, gaillardias, etc.

Various Notes.

The sweet pea convention and exhibition at Bar Harbor, Me., July 15 and 16, will have a good New York attendance, the trip from New York to Boston by boat having been decided upon. The members of the National Association of Gardeners in this vicinity, under the guidance of Secretary Ebel, will constitute the majority of the visitors.

H. M. Robinson, of Boston, was a visitor to New York July 1. He reports the best season of his long experience.

The losses to the retail florists as a result of the European war have been large. A prominent florist on Madison avenue tells me it has made a difference in receipts from boat deliveries of $10,000 to $15,000 yearly.

Lester Lovett, of Little Silver, N. J., recently was in the city. He says he has 2,000,000 2-year-old privet in his nursery in the south.

D. C. Arnold, who has been enjoying a two weeks' rest in the mountains, returned to the city July 4.

Galvin's window on Fifth avenue and Forty-sixth street is one of the show centers of the famous avenue. Mr. Galvin was a recent visitor from Boston and seemed greatly pleased with the New York management.

W. G. Badgley is cutting fine Ophelia roses from his May planting. Mr. Badgley, as mayor of Chatham, N. J., will preside at the town's patriotic celebration of Independence day.

C. A. Dards will return shortly from his three months' trip to Japan, China and Hawaii.

Thomas Martin, with Traendly & Schenck, was in the city last week attending the funeral of his brother. Mr. Martin is spending the summer at Otisville, N. Y.

The firm of Hentz & Nash has been incorporated with a capital of $25,000, H. Hentz, Jr., of Madison, N. J., and L. A. and A. S. Nash, of New York, being the incorporators.

Patrick O'Mara is back from a trip to the south, including New Orleans, La.

Robert Burnett, son of George Burnett, is a member of a New Jersey regiment which has been called to duty in Texas.

President M. A. Bowe, of the joint retail associations, says that the weekly meetings of the organization of late have been unusually practical and that the outlook for a larger membership and central headquarters is bright.

thousands, including parties from Providence, Boston, New Bedford, Fall River, Taunton and other places in southeastern New England.

The show was an open-air one, with the cut flowers arranged under three large tents. There were eighty-three classes entered for prizes by the Garden Association and fifty by the Horticultural Society. The judging was eminently satisfactory and was done with unusual dispatch, the cards being all attached before the close of the first afternoon. There were three judges from each of the associations, Richard Gardiner, William MacKay and James Robertson representing the Garden Association, and Arthur T. Bunyard, Joseph Dixon and Alan R. Wheeler, the Horticultural Society.

One of the features of the exhibition was the competition in the class of novelty sweet peas of 1916, for prizes offered by Weeber & Don. The winners were: William Gray, first; Daniel Hay, second; Victor May, third.

A silver cup known as the Heatherhome trophy and valued at $50, offered by the Knight & Struck Co., was not awarded, as there were no entries, the prize being for the best collection of sweet peas, twenty-five sprays each of ten varieties, disseminated in 1914, 1915 or 1916.

Business last week spruced up considerably. A rush began in the afternoon of Saturday, June 24, due to weddings and graduation exercises. There was also a little funeral work. Beauties were none too abundant, as some of the high schools used these as their class flowers. The quality was fair. Other roses also were scarce. White ones are used extensively for wedding bouquets, while pink, yellow and red are used for miscellaneous purposes. Russell and Ophelia are always in large demand. Everything in roses clears daily, from the inferior to the best. Never before have carnations been so good at this time of year. The size, color and general quality all are good; has been extremely scarce, and when it is to be had it sells at $10 per hundred. Orchids are almost as scarce as valley. White orchids have been in large demand recently; so have orange blossoms. Since valley is so scarce, many patrons select white sweet peas for their wedding bouquets, and these make up prettily. Baby gladioli are getting scarce. Greens were in ample supply last week, but the reverse is true this week. Asparagus is limited in quantity.

The Market.

There was much activity in the market last week. June weddings and funeral work created a lively demand. The weather has been exceptionally warm. Carnations continue plentiful, but they are showing the effects of the extreme heat. Roses are in large supply, but they are only of medium quality. The Killarneys are showing the strain of the hot weather more than any other variety. Shawyer, Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst, Ward and Richmond are holding up well. The peony season is about over; there are only a few on the local market at present. Easter lilies are of good quality. Lilium giganteum and auratum, or the Golden Band lily, are of good quality. Daisies were seen on the market last week. Fine outdoor flowers, including gaillardias, delphiniums, larkspurs and foxgloves, were in large supply. Hydrangea arborescens is in bloom and is used largely in decorative work.

Various Notes.

Several of the local florists donated flowers for the benefit bridge given at the Anthony hotel July 1. They were W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Markey Bros., A. J. Lanternier, the Doswell Floral Co., E. J. Wenninghoff and the Flick Floral Co.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Vesey, Jr., and Miss Catherine Vesey, have returned from an automobile trip to Indianapolis. Mr. Vesey, accompanied by his father, Judge W. J. Vesey, Sr., will leave this week for a trip to Washington, D. C.

Mildred and Georgia Alice Flick left July 4 for Toledo, where they will visit Miss C. B. Flick, of the Patten Flower Shop.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The market last week was without any notable feature and about all that can be said is that midsummer dullness is with us. A few hot days caused stock to suffer. Roses arrived wide open or opened almost as soon as unpacked. Prices on fancy roses kept up, but on other grades were low. White roses moved better than colored stock. Carnations are a glut. Even at low prices these seem hard to move. Sweet peas are arriving in large quantities and some are of extra good quality, but the large supply forces the wholesalers to dispose of them at extremely low prices. Lilies are not plentiful and sales of these are reported excellent. Valley of extra fine quality brings $5 per hundred. Some first-class spikes of America, Francis King and Pink Beauty gladioli were seen last week. Miscellaneous flowers, such as gypsophilas, cornflowers and stocks, meet with a fair demand. All greens are selling well at the usual summer prices.

Various Notes.

Members of the Florists' Union gave a trolley party June 24. After the ride they went to Creve Coeur lake. The party was made up mostly of the employees of Grimm & Gorly and the Mullanphy Flower Co. Plenty of refreshments were served. All report a most enjoyable time.

W. H. Kruse and family left July 1 for an automobile trip to the Ozark mountains. Mr. Kruse reports that this season's business was above expectations in all lines.

John Honlahan, landscape gardener at Clayton, reports that he has had one of the best seasons in his experience. He is one of the old-timers in this line and says that even now they have him on the go daily.

The Young Bros. Floral Co., on Waterman avenue, and the Sanders Nursery say the season just closed was a profitable one. Summer business so far has been good in all respects.

John Bentzen, of the Bentzen Floral Co., motored to Kansas City last week with a party of friends. According to reports, the party is having a "grand old time."

Fred Strohmeyer, with the Ayres Floral Co., reports that his firm did a large June business in wedding and commencement work. This place will soon undergo its regular summer clean-up and many improvements will be made before the fall business starts in.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting July 13, at the greenhouse range of the Bourdet Floral Co., Magnolia and Tower Grove avenues. The nomination of officers will take place at this meeting and preparations are being made to entertain 100 members.

David Geddis, Jules Bourdet, Sam Seligman and J. J. Beneke motored to Crescent, Mo., July 2, to inspect the greenhouse plant of John T. Milliken. Great improvements are being made, including the erection of new Lord & Burnham greenhouses.

At the establishment of Fred C. Weber, on Olive street, the summer clean-up is already started. The front and rear show houses are being cleared for cleaning. This work will go on daily until the fall season opens.

Letters to downtown office buildings and stores were sent by the Business Men's League urging the use of more flower boxes to decorate the window ledges. The letters have brought fairly good results, for many orders were placed with florists for window boxes last week.

Dr. A. R. Davis, for the last year research assistant at the Missouri Botanical Garden, went to Pomona College, at Claremont, Cal., to conduct a course in botany during the summer. George W. Freiberg succeeds Dr. Davis at the garden.

William Bouche, head of the landscape work at Park View place and at University City, will put in a busy summer laying out 160 acres at Normandy,

MRS. J. B. FREEMAN
OF "THE FLOWERS"
336 Superior Street, TOLEDO, OHIO

Mo., for the Marribla Seminary. Park View place is known as one of the beauty spots in St. Louis.

Sam Seligman and Ben Rosenberg, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York; Clifford Pruner, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, and Mr. Lang, of the Lang Floral & Nursery Co., Dallas, Tex., called on the trade last week.

J. J. B.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The arrival of July finds the cut flower business dropping down to the usual summer level. June trade, in spite of disappointments occasioned by the cool, damp weather and the late flowering of such important outdoor flowers as peonies and roses, has been remarkably good, probably the best Boston ever has had, and, taking the first six months of the year, it is doubtful if florists ever have had any other half-year which gave better business.

Thanks to the absence of excessive heat, flowers continue to come in of splendid quality. Roses have dropped in value with the cessation of weddings. A fair trade in Beauties is being done, while other favorites, such as Ophelia, Russell, Killarney Brilliant, Hadley and Ward, sell moderately at the recessions in prices. Some hybrid perpetual roses grown outdoors are seen, but they cut little figure in the market. If they had arrived ten days earlier they would have sold finely.

Carnations mostly sell at 50 cents and $1 per hundred. The quality remains excellent. Indoor sweet peas are becoming shorter of stem. They still arrive in large numbers, but are harder to move. Only small outdoor lots are arriving. Gladioli are abundant and drag considerably. There are good supplies of outdoor-grown Spanish irises, delphiniums and peonies. The last-named are hard to move now.

Yellow marguerites are about over. Lilies are in excess of the market's needs. Valley is not in large supply and has been selling exceptionally well. Not many gardenias are seen. Cattleyas are less abundant, being mostly Gaskelliana.

The Rose and Strawberry Show.

The annual rose and strawberry show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society was held July 1 and 2. The season is an abnormally late one and even after being postponed a week the date proved too early for many local growers. However, there was a good exhibition staged. A pleasing feature was the increased competition in the amateur classes, the average quality of the amateurs' flowers being quite as good as those in the open classes. The leading prize-winners in the rose classes were: Robert Seaver, whose prize-winning baskets were noteworthy; John L. Smith, gardener for A. W. Preston; W. C. Winter, E. K. Butler, David Tyndall, John B. Wills, Mrs. Algert Geiger, T. N. Cook and Geo. E. Barnard.

Hybrid teas were largely shown and attracted more attention than the hybrid perpetuals. A few of the finest hybrid teas shown were Duke of West-

A. J. Fish received a silver medal for a splendid stand of climbing roses, in which Silver Moon was conspicuous, the glossy foliage of which was striking. Other varieties of merit were Dr. Van Fleet, Climbing American Beauty, W. C. Egan, Baroness Ittersum and Trier. T. N. Cook received honorable mention for a seedling rambler. The Eastern Nurseries had a display of climbing roses. Displays of roses, apart from the competitive classes, were made by J. T. Butterworth, W. C. Rust, gardener for Mrs. C. G. Weld; Henry Stewart, gardener for Miss Cornelia Warren, and T. N. Cook.

There were good peony collections from T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. and A. H. Fewkes, the blooms being much finer than those staged peony day, June 17. Prizes for sweet williams went to William Thatcher, gardener for Mrs. J. L. Gardner and W. C. Rust, and those for Canterbury bells went to Duncan Finlayson, gardener for Larz Anderson, and W. C. Rust.

There was a grand show of hardy herbaceous perennials, which proved more attractive to the numerous visitors than the roses arranged individually in stereotyped rows. The Blue Hill Nurseries had a splendidly arranged bank which contained many choice varieties, and were awarded a silver medal. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. had an extensive group in which white digitalis and delphiniums were the leading features. The Eastern Nurseries also had a perennial collection. F. W. Fletcher showed Delphinium Cliveden Beauty in fine shape and there were several displays of digitalis.

Donald McKenzie, gardener for E. B. Dane, had a good display of cut orchids. J. T. Butterworth had a group of Miltonia vexillaria and Epidendrum prismatocarpum. Duncan Finlayson received a certificate of merit for the pure white Cœlogyne Mooreana. Henry Stewart had a group of gloxinias and Campanula persicifolia, also twelve large and heavily flowered plants of Oncidium flexuosum.

The leading strawberry once more was Marshall. This far outclassed all competitors, as it has done for twenty-three years. Other varieties which showed up well were Barrymore and Golden Gate.

of the most satisfactory months, from a business point of view, that local growers, wholesalers and retailers ever have had. Flowers of nearly all kinds have sold remarkably well in spite of a long spell of cold, damp and depressing weather. I do not remember ever having seen roses, carnations and sweet peas of such splendid quality the first week in July as we now have.

Reservations are rapidly being made for the Bar Harbor trip of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, to occur July 14. Reports from Bar Harbor are that, in spite of a late season, sweet peas promise to be fine for the exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society, July 15 and 16.

R. E. Wadsworth & Co., of Northboro, are still getting Matchless, Benora and Pink Delight carnations of splendid quality. They grow Delphinium Belladonna heavily, both under glass and outdoors, and have been cutting it for some weeks. They have 60,000 carnations in the field, which they will not start housing for a month.

The Welch Bros. Co. did a record-breaking June business. The company is strong on gladioli, valley, Beauties and sweet peas at present.

John Barr, of South Natick, has started to pull out some of his carnations. Champion does exceptionally well with him. Alice now outclasses Pink Delight. Matchless and the old Winsor still are good. He has more than 100,000 carnations in the field and they are making an excellent growth. This season 2,000 Nancy will be planted.

The sweet pea show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be held July 8 and 9. The dates are too early for a creditable display. At present few outdoor sweet peas are open hereabouts.

At the store of Harry Quint, on Boylston street, large hydrangeas and bird baths are featured in his open-air garden display. June business here has proved extremely good.

At Welch's daylight store, 280 Devonshire street, good orders are coming in from holiday resorts. The outlook is encouraging.

William R. Nicholson says carnations this season have netted him more money than ever before. The blooms still are of splendid quality, especially Alice, Matchless, Benora and Pink Delight. Field plants are making a sturdy growth. Few will be planted before August 1, early planting not being favored here. Both Mr. Nicholson and his father expect to make the trip to Bar Harbor July 14.

Carnation Albert Roper, from the Roper establishment, at Tewksbury, continues to arrive of grand quality. Another seedling, similar in color but of superior size, looms up in great shape now and will be heard from later. As yet there is only a small bench planted to it.

Fred Holbrow, of Dorchester, is strong on Canterbury bells and sweet peas. The latter are twelve to fourteen feet high and are blooming profusely.

Mann Bros. are having heavy cuts

James Wheeler, of Natick, has contracted for a semi-iron King construction house, 35x200 feet, to be devoted chiefly to Carnation Pink Delight.

At Penn's, the month of weddings proved a banner one, considerably more business being done than ever before. A good summer business now is being done. The windows are arranged differently from the stereotyped style and always catch the eyes of passers-by.

Andrew Christensen, of Stoneham, grows the old Queen carnation heavily and finds it profitable. He had quantities of flowers July 1, which were fully equal to those of Matchless in size. Alice is proving a splendid summer variety. Field plants are growing rapidly.

Thomas Stock, of Dorchester, is one of the few commercial growers who grow the old Jacqueminot rose in quantity. He finds no trouble in disposing of the blooms. W. N. C.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The approach of the national holiday had a depressing effect on business locally. The early half of the week was good, considering the season, but the latter half was extremely dull. There is a fair supply of stock, but prices are rather low. Roses are in satisfactory supply, but they are moving slowly. Carnations are plentiful and sell cheaply, but the quality is none too good; in fact, a few more of good quality could be used.

Lilies were in good demand, with only a limited supply. Peonies from storage are out of the market entirely. Greens are plentiful for almost the first time this season, and the demand is good. A few indoor gladioli are arriving and move out quickly. Outdoor peas are here in small numbers.

The planting season is practically over, only a few odds and ends now being sold. The continued cool weather prolonged the season beyond its usual length, and all growers handling this stock report a good demand during the entire spring.

Various Notes.

Edward Kress has sold practically his entire crop of garden roses and has discontinued the market for the season.

J. King is sending in some of the first gladioli of the season to the Pennock-Meehan Co.

The Baltimore Wholesale Florists' Supply Co. will shortly remove from its present location on Pleasant street to Center street, east of Charles street.

The next club meeting will be held Monday, July 10, when final arrangements will be made for the automobile tour to Harpers Ferry and the adjacent territory.

Mrs. Mary Johnston has razed the conservatory on Madison street, opposite her store, and on its site she has erected an apartment house, the first floor of which will be glass on all sides, for the storage of palms and decorative plants. It is expected to be ready for occupancy by fall.

The Leo Niessen Co. and the Pennock-Meehan Co. will close at 5 p. m. during the summer months. W. F. E.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

PACIFIC COAST ASSOCIATION.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen was held at Medford, Ore., June 20 to 22. The attendance was not larger than usual, but the sessions were marked by sharp and thorough discussions of the subjects presented. Two sessions were held each day and an executive session, lasting until after midnight, was necessary the last day in order to finish all business. Little time was given to entertainment, but it was generally conceded that the meeting was the most instructive ever held by the association.

A paper by Prof. F. C. Reimer, superintendent of the southern Oregon experiment station, on "Blight-Resistant Stocks for Pears," and its discussion, occupied the time of one entire session. A visit was made the following morning to the experiment station at Tangent, about six miles out, where the visitors were shown what is said to be the largest collection of pear stock in the world. A practical demonstration of his subject was made by Prof. Reimer.

A report on crown gall research, by Prof. H. P. Barss, plant pathologist of the Oregon Agricultural College, was especially instructive. Much interest was added by the discussions which followed the reading of each paper.

F. A. Wiggins, of Toppenish, Wash., was elected president, and C. A. Tonneson, of Tacoma, Wash., was reëlected secretary-treasurer. Vice-presidents for Oregon, Washington, California, Idaho, Utah, Montana and British Columbia were elected. Tacoma, Wash., was selected as the place of the 1917 meeting. S. W. W.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

An abundance of funeral work, a number of weddings and some other social affairs have made the present week a good deal better than the last one, when parades and high jinks generally were the rule. The floral parade, of course, used an enormous quantity of cheap stock, and to that extent did good, but there is little money in such sales for the retailers. There is a wonderful variety of stock to select from, as all classes of outdoor flowers are plentiful. Dahlias are making a splendid show The asters are not quite so good as they were, but the later crops will probably show improvement. Roses are fair. Some excellent Ophelia are shown. Radiance seems to be losing ground, its place being taken by Russell and Shawyer. It is a good outdoor rose, however, and will long be grown both for garden decoration and for cutting. Carnations of the best quality are still scarce, though there is an abundance of second-grade stock.

Gladioli are plentiful. A large number of flowers of annuals, such as scabiosas, calliopsis and others, are shown, as well as the common yellow marigolds, all of which make a pretty display in the stores. The supply of valley is uncertain; there are plenty at times, at others none. Orchids are becoming somewhat scarcer, but the demand is not great. Pot plants, such as tuberous begonias and gloxinias, are shown; also a few fancy-leaved begonias and caladiums, but there is little demand for these. The greatest call is for Boston and Whitmani ferns. Greens are plentiful and good.

Various Notes.

Realizing the good properties of the hardy ornithogalum, or Star of Bethlehem, the H. N. Gage Co. has been working for several years on an improved type for cut flowers, and now has a large stock of it. The prices at which the bulbs are offered are so much lower than those of the Dutch product that some business should come their way from the east. This firm is going more strongly than ever into pot plant culture, and, to take care of the increasing business, is building two new houses, each 26x200. This, with the present glass, makes a total of 20,000 square feet. An interesting side light on the value of the California-grown seed and the so-called greenhouse-grown seed of asparagus lies in the fact that the H. N. Gage Co. has shipped over two million seeds this year, and so far has received just one complaint of poor germination. This reached Montebello about four weeks after the seed was shipped; so comment is superfluous.

Fred Hills and Mrs. Hills have both been down with illness, but, as usual, no one knew anything about it until they were around again. Mrs. Hills was suffering from a case of ptomaine poisoning, while Mr. Hills was down with muscular rheumatism. Both are now doing business at the old stand, and apparently have forgot their troubles. Mrs. George Walther, of Chicago, and her children are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Hills, and Mr. Walther is expected out here later.

Staiger & Fincken, of Washington street, purchased the stock of the Roeding & Wood Nursery Co., and have removed it to their city salesyard. A large quantity of useful stock is thereby added to the already large quantity

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

On the whole, June was a fairly good month for the local florists, but it is conceded that wedding decorations did not play so important a part in the month's business as they usually do. Things naturally seem quiet this year in comparison with last, when there was much extra business in connection with the many conventions and other festivities brought about by the P. P. I. E. However, there are few complaints, as business generally is up to expectations. Shipping business continues active, which helps out considerably in disposing of the large quantities of stock pouring into the market.

Gladioli continue to dominate the market; Panama now is coming in finely, and America and Mrs. Francis King show excellent quality. Dahlias are arriving abundantly and the good stock is readily absorbed, which gives promise that the record business done with this flower during the exposition period will be repeated, as far as possible, this year. Asters now are well represented, but the height of their season still is in the future. Some good carnations are to be had and these bring fair prices, but the great bulk of the offerings are inferior and cheap. Any quantity may be purchased from the street venders at 15 cents per dozen, or two dozen for 25 cents. Sweet peas are good for this time of the year.

A few lilies are offered and they clean up easily. There are stocks, cornflowers, coreopsis, etc. In fact, all summer stock is in great supply, especially statice, gypsophilas and scabiosas. The present supply of zinnias shows exceptionally fine quality. Hydrangeas, both pink and blue, are plentiful and have a good sale. There is little change in the rose situation since last reported, with the exception that Beauties are rapidly going off crop. Russell and Hadley are in heavy supply and the fine offerings of Ophelia make that rose more popular than ever. Gardenias are off crop and orchids continue in light supply. Fine specimens of the latter are arriving, however, and no real shortage is felt.

Various Notes.

D. Raymond, of the Garden City Pottery Co., says that enormous quantities of plants are being potted in this vicinity this year, judging from the large orders for pots being placed with his company. Mr. Raymond expects to leave shortly for Santa Cruz on a two weeks' fishing trip.

J. Murata is making a large planting of chrysanthemums under cloth at his place on High street, Oakland.

Many friends sympathize with H. Hayashi in the death of his wife in Japan, where she went some time ago in the hope of recovering her health.

Many friends mourn the death of Samuel Eldridge, proprietor of a flower store at 1337 Twenty-fourth avenue.

Walter Hofinghoff, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., is back at headquarters after an automobile trip, which had as its objective point the exposition at San Diego.

Frank Burns, of San Rafael, is bringing in a fine lot of blue hydrangeas with large flowers, which are popular in the local market. He has many new seedling dahlias in bloom, some of which he considers promising.

Elaborate plans are being made for the annual picnic of the Pacific Horticultural Society, which will be held July 30. This outing, which is largely attended by florists, nurserymen and growers, is one of the big events in the trade and this year's picnic promises to eclipse all previous ones. A beautiful spot in Redwood cañon, on the Oakland, Antioch railroad, in Alameda county, has been chosen for the scene of the festivities. Many unique features will be included in the program.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

A surplus of nearly all kinds of outdoor flowers causes some waste. The sudden change to warmer weather during the middle of June brought on flowers which had been held back by the late season. A fair quantity of June wedding business was done, though there were only a few events that required flowers in large quantities. A small batch of bedding stock is moving, but the season is practically closed. At the greenhouses growers are benching carnations and chrysanthemums. Several are picking crops of tomatoes grown in benches that previously held bedding stock. Budding rose stock has started at the nurseries.

Martin & Forbes' New Store.

A noteworthy event in trade circles was the opening, June 24, of the new retail store of the Martin & Forbes Co. This is the third location occupied by the company in its twenty-five years of business life, and it is the most progressive step ever taken by it. In seeking new quarters the probable future movement of the retail trade was considered and allowance was made for a large expansion in business.

The main entrance and show window are at 354 Washington street, with a side entrance and show window on Park street. The finish of the entire interior is dazzling white, with mirror panels behind the main counter and about the customers' cozy corner. The floor is covered with cork linotile and the counter and work table with heavy moss-green linoleum.

Attractiveness and convenience for customers and employees were the things especially considered in arranging the store. The work table is located near the Park street entrance, and is screened from view by palms and other foliage plants set on stationary pedestals. The ceiling is high, and excellent lighting effects are produced by swinging, indirect fixtures and by wall lights. A sidewalk elevator gives easy access to the large basement, where good light and air will permit storage of flowers. Another work table, for use when needed, occupies one side of the basement.

The office and a room for storing baskets and supplies are on a mezzanine floor over the cold storage and work table, in the rear of the main store. The latest and most up-to-date devices are used to produce artistic effects in displaying stock in the windows and in the store interior. Surely the store is a credit to its owners and to the trade of Portland.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.: Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

D. D. P. Roy will open a seed and supply store at Lake Forest, Ill., August 1.

Taking the situation as a whole, the seed crops in California are in first-class shape.

E. Worrall Outerbridge, of Mount Pleasant, Shelly Bay, Bermuda, will arrive at New York on the Bermudian's next trip for a visit to the trade.

The Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, Ia., recently has been pushing for South American trade and has worked quite a little business in Argentina via parcel post.

It has not been an especially good season for the growers of freesias and callas on the coast, but there are so many growers now that the usual supply will be forthcoming.

The obituary column this week contains notice of the death of Walter P. Stokes, of Stokes Seed Farms Co., Morrestown N. J., and an ex-president of the American Seed Trade Association.

Advices from Teneriffe, recently received by some of the large buyers, do not indicate that there will be any serious shortage in the supply that will be needed in the United States this autumn.

Holland bulb growers who ordinarily find their principal outlet in England are circularizing the American trade with cut-price offers, especially of hyacinths, and indications are that the market in Holland has been badly demoralized by the embargo of the British.

Excavation work has been completed on the basement of the $25,000 seed warehouse being erected at Twin Falls, Idaho, by the Courteen Seed Co., North Milwaukee, Wis. The Courteen Seed Co. heretofore has bought Twin Falls tract products through local agents.

Trade comment coming from England seems to indicate that no one but the seed stores bemoans the prohibition of Dutch bulb imports. The trade seems most to deplore the bar put up against Japanese lily bulbs, forcers and retail store men agreeing that there will be nothing to take the place of the profit this item has made.

The will of the late Frank S. Poole, head of the Poole Seed Co., of Tacoma, Wash., who died March 24, recently was filed for probate in the Superior Court by his son, C. L. Poole, who was named executor. The petition sets forth that Mr. Poole left an estate valued at $37,000, $13,000 being in personal property and the remainder in stock of the seed company. The estate is left in trust to the widow. The children of the deceased, named in the will, are Franklin L., Chester A., Mabel G. Poole and Mrs. F. M. Wright.

being based on an alleged illegal sale of clover seed. The seedsmen point out that they are unable to comply with the requirements of the Tennessee seed act in its present shape, in that it is impossible, in buying seeds from all over the country, for them to ascertain the quantity of impurities in each shipment.

The Tennessee pure seed act was passed and became a law April 27, 1909. Its principal provisions are:

That every parcel, package or lot of agricultural seeds as hereafter defined in this act, and containing one pound or more, offered or exposed for sale in Tennessee, for use within this state, shall have affixed thereto, in a conspicuous place on the outside thereof, distinctly printed, or plainly written, in the English language, a statement, certifying:

Gentlemen:

Under separate cover I am sending you a photo of some of your Lilium Harrisii, which I bought last year. At least 95% of the lot was perfect, and we sold the plants at prices ranging from $2.50 to $5.00 each. The photo shows 15 plants forced in our greenhouses. These plants had 217 flowers and buds.

Yours very truly,
FRED A. DANKER.

These well known bulbs, from the Stephens farms in Bermuda, are due here in July and August, and if you want a case or more, send us your order now. The photo mentioned above will be printed in the July issue of Horseshoe Brand News. Send for a copy.

SENATE CUTS OUT FREE SEEDS.

Again, and unexpectedly, there has been an attack on congressional free seeds that has penetrated the front line trenches.

The Senate voted thirty-three to twenty-one against the distribution of government seeds when considering the agricultural appropriation bill July 1. Senator Kenyon attacked the house provision, calling it congressional graft, costing for seeds alone more than a million dollars in the last four years, in addition to half a million for postage and labor.

The Senate will send the bill to conference without the appropriation for the 1917 distribution, but that need not seriously alarm those who have been profiting on government orders; it has happened before that the conference committee has put the seeds appropriation back in the bill after it had been cut out by one side or the other of the Congress. C. L. L.

MAILS BAR IMPORT BULBS.

The following order has been issued by the U. S. Treasury Department at the instance of the Federal Horticultural Board:

The department is advised by the Secretary of Agriculture that the prohibition of the importation of plants by mail, as published in T. D. 33933 of December 1, 1913, has been extended to include all growing or living plants, seeds, and other plant products for propagation, except field, vegetable, and flower seeds, and that the term "field seeds" includes only seeds of cereals, grasses, and other annual farm crops, and does not include bulbs and tubers. T. D. 33933 is accordingly amended.

MAKING IT SPECIFIC.

In view of the pressure being brought to bear on the seed trade in America to secure waiver of the disclaimer, the following on the contract blank of a British grower will be of interest:

While we believe that all seeds, bulbs and roots delivered by us in fulfillment of any sale, fully satisfy what is specified, it is impossible, by reason of the practical difficulties involved, for us to be certain, or to assume responsibility, that this is so.

We cannot, therefore, and do not, hold ourselves liable should any such seeds, bulbs or roots not be of the kind or correspond to the description specified; nor must we be deemed to undertake any condition or give any warranty, either by any express words or implication, as to kind, description, quality, purity, growth, freedom from variation or intermixture, productiveness or other matter whatsoever in connection with any seeds, bulbs or roots sold by us. We will in no case be responsible for the resulting crop. Every purchaser must accept these terms and conditions.

NOT DURANCE VILE.

General Sherman's well known definition of war does not apply in every instance, according to Edgar C. Bloch, salesman for C. C. Morse & Co., of San Francisco. During the last four months Mr. Bloch has been the victim of the fortunes of war. He does not call them the misfortunes of war, as he enjoyed the greater part of his experience.

Last February Mr. Bloch went to Victoria, B. C., to solicit some orders for his house. He registered at the Empress hotel, but instead of spending the night there he found himself in the confines of a jail, charged with being a German spy. Mr. Bloch was accused of spying out the movements of troops and having tried to purchase a Canadian officers' uniform, all of which caused considerable astonishment to the salesman. He is of French descent, although born in Germany, and long resident here.

Finally the charges of espionage were dropped and Mr. Bloch was moved to a detention camp and interned as an "alien suspect." There he remained more than three months, gaining his liberty only a short time ago through the influence of good American friends.

"Life in this camp was just one round of pleasure," says Mr. Bloch. "We were not obliged to work, we had excellent meals and were allowed to take life easy. At the present time the government is building bungalows to

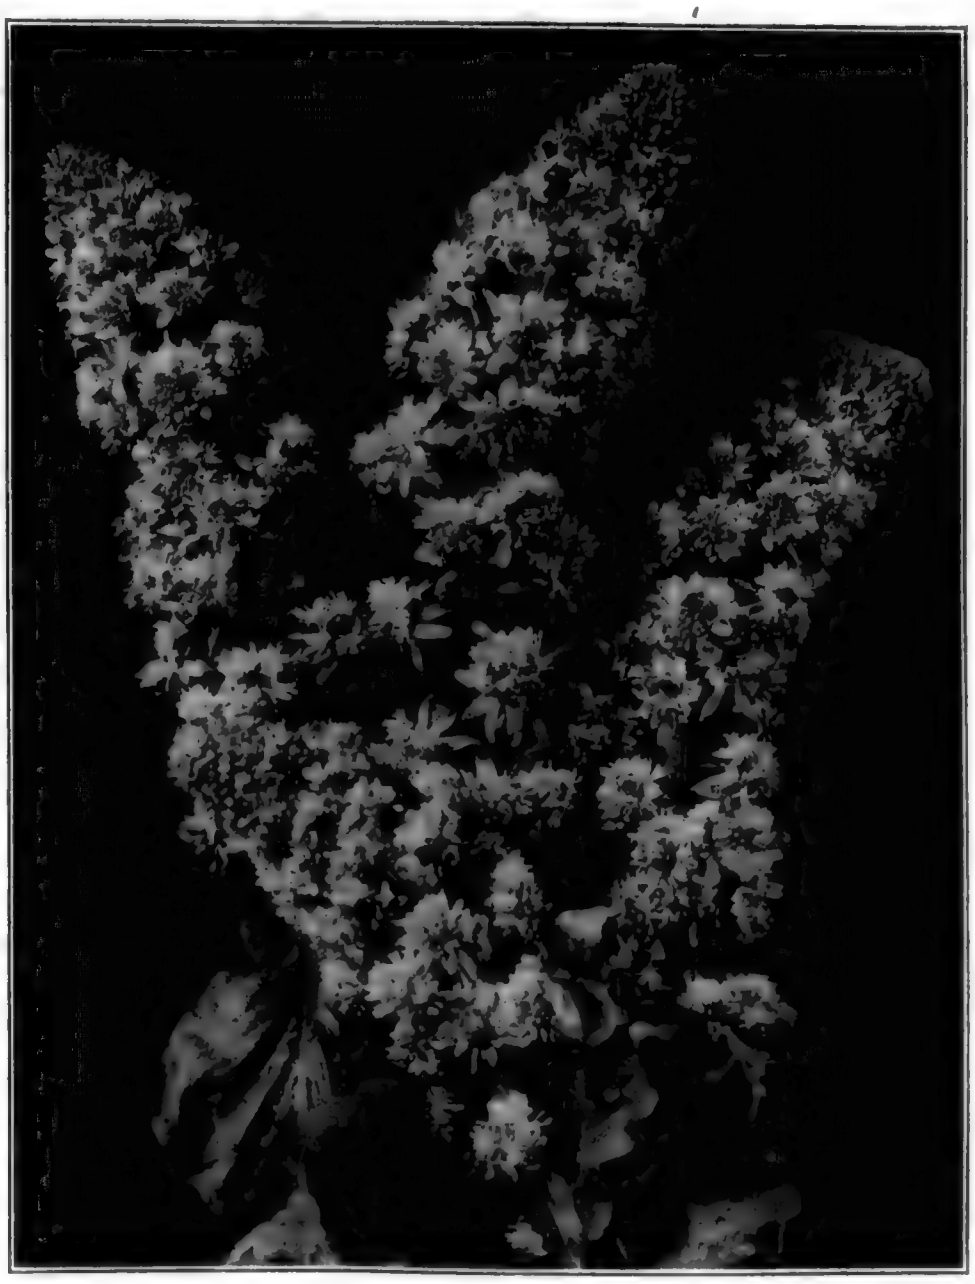
FROM WHOLESALERS

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 4, 1916.

Mr. David J. Scott, Corfu, N. Y.

Dear Sir: The Mignonette that you have been shipping us is the best that is coming to this market, and we have been able to sell this in preference to other shipments, and maintaining a higher price. I think you have an exceedingly fine strain—in fact, the very best one that I have ever seen.



Very truly yours.
GEO. B. HART.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 20, 1915.

Mr. David J. Scott, Corfu, N. Y.

Dear Sir: We received the Mignonette this a. m. and would say the shipment was sold out as soon as it was laid out on the sales table. The quality certainly was excellent; no finer has been received in this market in some time, and as the time is nearing the holidays we hope to be able to receive and handle all you can ship. We will warrant that the returns will prove satisfactory.

Yours very truly, WM. F. KASTING CO.

Mr. David J. Scott, Corfu, N. Y.

Dear Sir: We have no hesitancy in heartily endorsing and recommending "Scott's Mignonette Seed," as the stock at our establishment is the finest we have ever grown and, in our opinion, equal to the best we have ever seen exhibited.

Very truly yours, LAKEVIEW ROSE GARDENS.

Bird-In-Hand, Pa., Feb. 22, 1916.

Mr. David J. Scott, Corfu, N. Y.

Dear Sir: Your strain of Mignonette produces a very even cut. It began blooming with me about Thanksgiving and has varied very little up to the present time, cutting the same amount each week. The quality of the stock is good.

Yours truly, H. B. WEAVER.

TIME TO SOW

It is said that there is a time for everything, but never mind about that, it is surely time to sow seed of SNAPDRAGON for winter blooms. Grow your own stock from seed and have good plants at hand when you need them. Besides securing something good for yourself, there will be a strong market for any surplus plants, as the rainy season throughout our country has spoiled lots of stock. Get busy today and select from the following good ones:

Seed of our famous Silver Pink Snapdragon, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Phelps' White, our Yellow, Garnet, Buxton, and Fancy Mixed, at 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00. Free cultural directions; all orders cash.

Remember—we grow Snapdragons, and that it is time to sow seed of them.

MINNEAPOLIS.

Various Notes.

The armory grounds are resplendent with hardy herbaceous flowers. The extensive collection dissipates the old idea that we have few perennials that will survive the winter. The lowest temperature last winter was 35 degrees below zero.

Easter lilies have been scarce this season and are in great demand. First-class stock easily brings $10 per hundred. Peonies are plentiful and can be bought for $1.50 per hundred. Boston ferns are scarce and in much demand. Growers who have benches to plant are unable to purchase 2½-inch stock. One grower on the lookout for 5,000 ferns could not procure 500.

Attorney Johnson, the administrator of the Minneapolis Floral Co., left his post July 1, his work completed. The unusually heavy rains and little sunshine have combined to badly brown Boston ferns in vases and window boxes.

Miss H. B. Whitted had a busy week of funeral work. She had a striking decoration at the Fifth street store, comprising many varieties of delphiniums. Many of the spikes were more than five feet tall.

O. C. Swanson had a fine display of hardy flowers in his Nicollet avenue store. He reports trade better than ever.

T. S. Lynes was working overtime last week to keep up with wedding orders.

The W. Desmond Floral Co., on Lyndale avenue, has a nice lot of sweet peas and other stock. Arrangements have been made for Rice Bros. to handle the stock. This will enable W. D. to sit right on the job.

July 1 Mr. Pangalos severed his long connection with the Minneapolis Fruit Store, where he managed the flower section. His new location is 2722 Chicago avenue.

I understand that Thomas Hall, on Lyndale avenue, intends to specialize in ferns. This is the age of the specialist and Mr. Hall is able to withstand competition.

The L. S. Donaldson Co. has had a banner season in all departments.

W. Holmes, on South Seventh street, continues to make hits with his window displays. This season's business has been the best ever.

The West Floral Co. has been working overtime to turn out funeral and wedding orders.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. was rushed last week with funeral orders and wedding decorations.

The Danish Seed Co., a local concern, has tried hard to get the neighboring farmers to grow spinach and beets for seed, but has only been able to get one man to grow half an acre of spin-

Zvolanek's Prize Sweet Pea Seed

We have a copy of Mr. Anton C. Zvolanek's interesting price list ready for you, if you failed to receive the one mailed you a few days ago. Mr. Zvolanek is the originator of the Winter Sweet Pea, having produced all but two of the several hundred Winter-flowering Sweet Peas now known to the botanist—more than 106 distinct varieties developed from his Orchid-flowering type are now grown throughout the world. Sweet Peas from Zvolanek seed, exhibited by Mr. Zvolanek and other prominent growers, have gathered first prizes everywhere. The four latest honors were First Prizes at the Philadelphia National Flower Show and the New York International Flower Show, and the Gold Medals of Honor at both the San Francisco and San Diego Expositions. Last year's crop was sold out very early. Orders are filled in the order of their receipt. We urge ordering now—from the novelties offered below or from the price list we will gladly send.

ach. If it pays, this farmer will grow ten acres next year.

The store of the Mazey Floral Co. is a veritable garden of beautiful palms and ferns, arranged in the most artistic receptacles, and distributed through this display are masses of various kinds of flowers. Business here is always active, as good taste and a desire to please make dull times impossible.

The Sunshine Florist has had a remarkably pretty window display of baskets filled with roses, daisies, peonies, lilies and sweet peas, accompanied by novelties of numerous kinds, in the way of corsages and decorative suggestions for the home.

Wm. F. Holmes has a fine lot of new ferns, besides a large stock of splendid cut flowers. He has an excellent trade in this line of stock.

Many new ferns are coming in now, and the Chicago Avenue Greenhouses are reported to have many fine young cyclamen plants. F. E. B.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Wholesalers and retailers had another satisfactory week of business. Every flower found a sale on arrival, except July 1, when a slight slump was felt. There is an increase in the supply of roses, but carnations are gradually producing fewer blooms. Outdoor flowers, such as Dorothy Perkins and Hiawatha roses, had their week and brought good returns to the growers who took pains to bring in this stock in good condition.

The general reports are that the month of June was most satisfactory; many say it was the best they ever had.

Among the new arrivals are water lilies, which find a limited sale. Outdoor peas and phloxes now are to be had in quantities. Larkspur was in good demand this season.

Various Notes.

B. L. Elliott and a number of friends motored to Philadelphia last week. Ben made more than 900 miles in less than three days, which is going some.

Edward McCallum and C. C. Phillips spent July 4 on the Cheat river. This is a bass stream, where one may cast the fly and loaf and dream to one's content.

E. L. McGrath requests a correction of a note in The Review. Mr. McGrath still is manager of and retains his interest in the Blind Floral Co.

The E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. is sending out a new booklet of thirty-two pages. It is nicely illustrated and shows many designs and decorations.

The retailers are using larkspurs with combinations of roses and other flowers in a most satisfactory way.

Visitors last week: William Cromack, of Irwin, Pa.; J. W. Glenn, of Kittanning, Pa.; Allen Langhans, of Warren, Pa.

James Murray McGrew, head salesman for G. P. Weaklen & Co., is spending a part of his two weeks' vacation at Cleveland. Mrs. McGrew has left the Pittsburgh hospital, where she spent several weeks following an operation for appendicitis.

Miss Eliza McKinley, head saleslady for Randolph & McClements, left Monday for Greensburg, Pa., where she probably will spend the remainder of the summer.

William J. Ferguson is off on a three weeks' pleasure and business trip, a portion of which will be spent at Cleveland, O.

Anthony Leach, who has charge of the grounds and greenhouse of Henry J. Heinz, has returned from a fortnight's trip through the east.

Thomas Edward Tyler, secretary of the Horticultural Society of Western Pennsylvania, sent 100 superlatively fine orchids to Beaumaris, Ont., for the wedding of his employer's son, Charles Dudley. W. A. C.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The weather last week was good for business. It remained cool and stock kept up wonderfully. It seems a shame for the growers to throw out stock as good as that coming into the market now. Carnations, of course, are down in price and are being moved in large quantities. The stock is good and there are no complaints whatever.

Roses are bringing fairly good prices and the stock certainly is worth all it is bringing. The cut is large and there are fine varieties to select from. The orders are heavy enough to take up

New Early Flowering Giant Pansies

Or Winter Blooming

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the Summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers. Each color separate or mixed.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.

The above four colors, with other shades and variations, 500 seeds 50c, 1000 seeds $1.00, 1/8 oz. $2.00, 1/4 oz. $3.75, 1 oz. $15.00.

the supply and there is little or no surplus accumulating from day to day. Greens are plentiful at this time and are in fine shape. Valley is not so scarce as it was and little trouble is experienced in supplying all orders. The stock is somewhat better than it has been, but the general quality is only medium.

Sweet peas still are with us in large quantities, but the quality is going down. They have had a good season and some fine stock was handled. Plants still are moving briskly and have done exceedingly well until now. The call for Boston ferns has been heavy this year and many orders were turned down. Peonies have been selling well, but only the extra fancy stock is bringing anything at this time.

The Holton and Hunkel Picnic.

The annual outing of the Holton & Hunkel Co. employees was held Sunday, June 25, at Ehlert's grove, Brown Deer, Wis. The day was ideal and a crowd of about 150 partook of the "big eats" and enjoyed the games and contests.

The outing was the largest ever held by this firm and everyone agreed that he had a "big time."

The crowd from the store and the range on Humboldt avenue was taken to the grounds in the big auto trucks of the firm and the musicians employed for the occasion made things lively coming and going, as well as at the grove. At the time of leaving some little trouble was experienced in starting one of the trucks, but this difficulty was soon overcome.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

Some of Those Who Attended the Forty-second Annual Convention of the American Association of Nurserymen.

THE MILWAUKEE CONVENTION.

[The opening sessions were fully reported in The Review for June 28.]

Officers Elected.

President—John Watson, Newark, N. Y.

Vice-president—Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.

Treasurer—Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Executive committee—J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., and E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., to serve three years.

Counsel—Curtis Nye Smith, Boston.

Next place of meeting—Philadelphia.

Under the new constitution the secretary is chosen by the executive committee and holds office at its pleasure. The veteran, John Hall, last year expressed his desire to retire as soon as the committee could agree on his successor.

Smith Becomes General Manager.

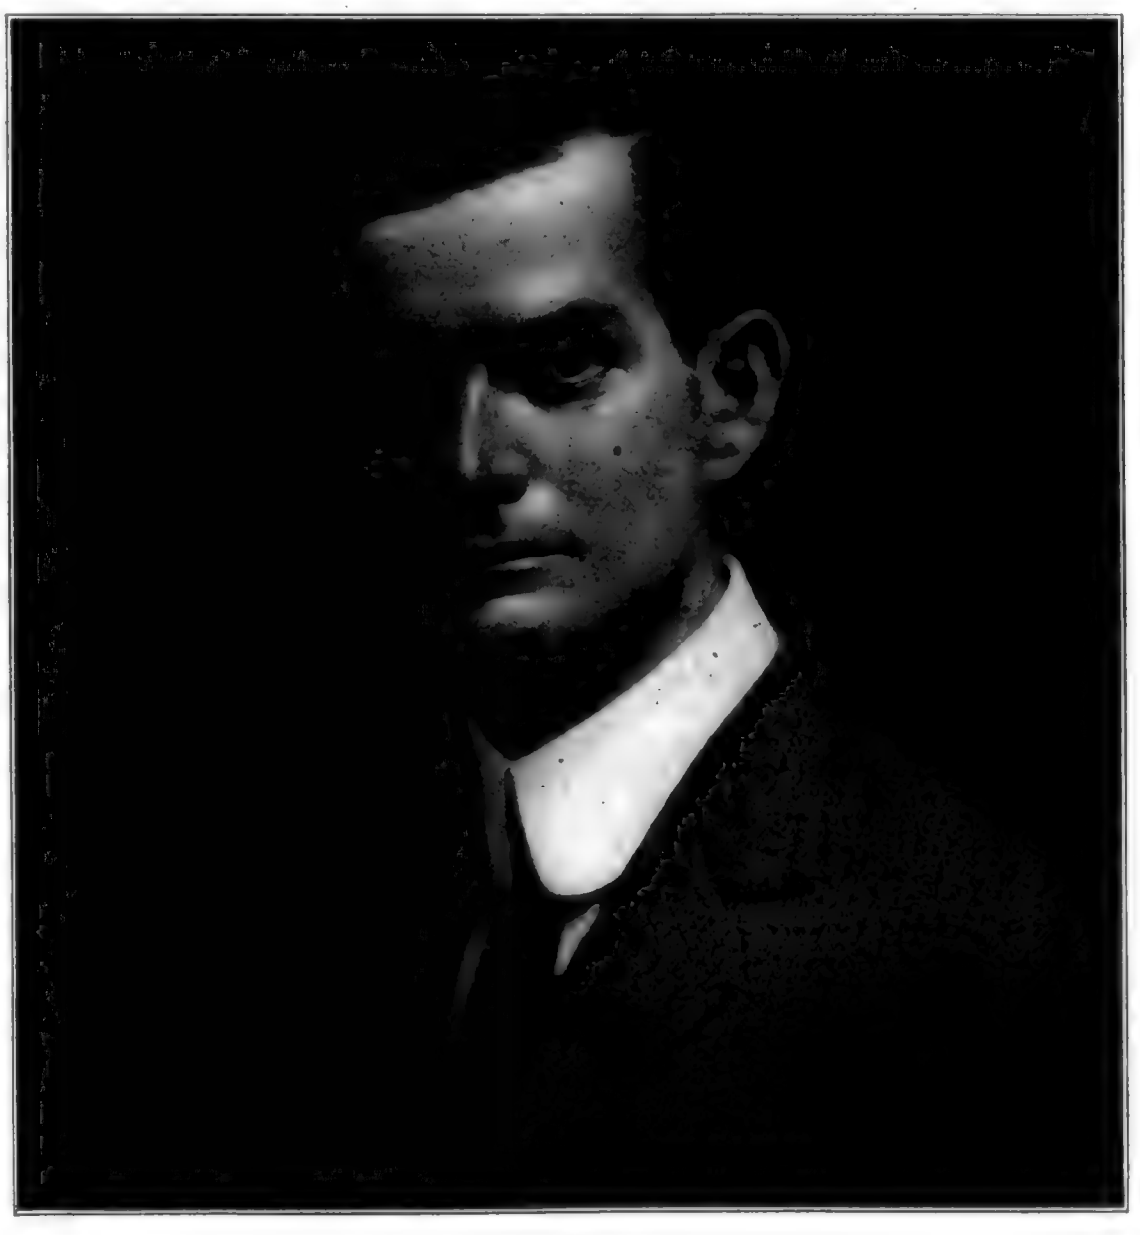
At a meeting after the close of the convention the executive committee appointed Curtis Nye Smith, of Boston, as secretary with additional title of general manager of the association. The title was chosen because the new work outlined for most of the committees calls for the coöperation of the secretary and the legal counsel; the officers and executive committee felt that it was great good fortune that Mr. Smith was willing to devote so considerable a part of his time to the affairs of the association, with his excellent office organization and thorough acquaintance with nursery and seed trade affairs.

A Highly Successful Meeting.

This convention, which was the forty-first, was a business affair from start to finish, the only recreation being after final adjournment, in the form of an automobile tour of the city as the guests of the local Good Roads Association. The attendance was the largest in the history of the organization and nearly everyone stayed in the meetings as long as the convention was in session. The program proved to be a little too elaborate to carry out in detail, but was skillfully arranged to hold interest. The idea uppermost in every mind appeared to be to push along the work of reorganization started last year and to get the new plans into operation. Nothing was permitted to distract attention from this great objective. The association now has the membership and the money; the next thing is to get the work done that will justify the scheme of additional dues.

The Association's Income.

The most gratifying feature of the convention was the evidence it gave that the membership is not to be appreciably decreased by the increased cost, at least not until the new plan has had a thorough trial. In advance of the meeting 364 members paid, while at Milwaukee twenty-seven others were admitted, making an enrollment to date of 391. The following is the enrollment for each of the last ten years:



1916	391	1911	382
1915	435	1910	356
1914	410	1909	384
1913	463	1908	376
1912	363	1907	371

The income up to the closing of the books just prior to the convention for the last ten years has been as follows:

1916	$5,829.85	1911	$2,771.85
1915	3,151.90	1910	2,340.00
1914	3,077.90	1909	2,786.30
1913	3,314.15	1908	2,883.60
1912	2,747.70	1907	2,867.80

No Uniform Business Terms.

The matter of uniform business terms came to the A. A. N. from the Western Association of Nurserymen, which in December, 1914, appointed a committee with J. W. Schuette at its head, to consider the matter and to report to the national body at the Detroit meeting in June, 1915, at which time the recommendations were referred to the executive committee for consideration. The executive committee brought forward a recommendation for universal business terms, and suggested what they might be, but it was apparent that this was principally for the purpose of passing the proposition back to the members. There was a long debate, showing a wide divergence of individual customs and views, and the matter finally was disposed of by laying on the table.

The executive committee, however, has had the trade terms, embodying short credits, cash discounts and other features, printed in the form of a sticker to be supplied in quantity, to those who will use them, by the secretary and a number of leading houses already have put the modern principles into practice. This is hoped to work a gradual change and consolidation of opinion among those now unwilling to attempt uniformity.

Bureau of Collections and Statistics.

Curtis Nye Smith, counsel for the association, not only reported on the work done in the last year but discussed a practical collection bureau for members. On recommendation of the executive committee it was voted to proceed with the organization of such a bureau, in charge of Mr. Smith, who was retained as counsel.

The officers also were instructed to undertake the development of a bureau of statistics to gather and disseminate to members only facts with regard to supplies of stock, present and prospective. Such information is expected to assist in making prices and also in guarding against either a surplus or a shortage on any one item.

The Confidential Bulletin.

It was voted that the Confidential Bulletin, of which three issues were distributed in the preceding year, be continued, that it be made the only official organ of the association and that its circulation be confined to members.

The publication will carry no advertisements and will be issued as frequently as circumstances justify. Its principal purpose will be to communicate to members such trade information as may be obtained that is properly for members only, such as crop statistics gathered with members' money; otherwise non-members would receive, as in the past, practically the same benefits that members get from the activities of the association.

Landscape Gardening

Thirty-five years' experience with leading landscape architects, noblemen and gentlemen's estates, park systems, public gardens, nurseries, etc., in England and this country. Developments, road construction, grading, planting, etc., to any extent.
Address No. 234, care Florists' Review, Chicago

A Trade Directory.

A resolution was adopted instructing the vice-president in each state to appoint a committee of not more than five reputable nurserymen of his state to act with him in preparing a list of all the bona fide nurserymen in his state. These lists are to be forwarded to the secretary for publication and distribution to members. Before the work is begun a rule will be laid down for the guidance of all the committees, so that the work will be uniform.

This action was taken following the paper of J. H. Dayton, of Painesville, on "Who Should Get Trade Prices," in which he made it appear that the list now most generally used contains the names of as many farmers as nurserymen in his state, Ohio.

Publicity Is Planned.

One of the sessions was devoted to the discussion of publicity, meaning rather general publicity for nursery products than individual publicity for nurserymen, although the latter received some attention. So deep an impression was made that at the closing session steps were taken to organize a campaign to cover five years and to cost approximately $100,000. The purpose is to create greater interest in nursery products, to promote the city, town and country beautiful idea and to increase the use of and sale for plants of all kinds. The funds are to be raised by subscription.

Inspection and Legislation.

A large part of the program had to do with inspection and legislation, as has been the case for several years, but the interest was distinctly on the wane; laws are no less numerous and no less confusing or harassing, but the susceptibilities of nurserymen have become blunted by familiarity. No action was taken beyond continuing the usual committees and retaining counsel to keep track of and shape such matters as may be possible for the interests of the trade.

National Protective Association.

The American Nurserymen's Protective Association held its annual meeting June 28, in connection with the A. A. N. convention at Milwaukee, and reëlected last year's officers. They are:

President—Irving Rouse, Rochester, N. Y.

Vice-president—H. Simpson, Vincennes, Ind.

Secretary—Thos. B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.

Treasurer—Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Executive committee—Irving Rouse, Rochester, N. Y.; John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; H. B. Chase, Chase, Ala.; John H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; D. S. Lake, Shenandoah, Ia.; F. H. Stannard, Ottawa, Kan.; J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.

The next meeting is to be held at Philadelphia.

Retailers' Protective Association.

The American Retail Nurserymen's Association held its annual love feast June 28, at Milwaukee, in connection with the A. A. N. convention. The affairs of the organization run along so smoothly that there is never anything more to do than reëlect the old officers, which was duly done last week. They are:

President—H. W. Marshall, Arlington, Neb.

Vice-president—B. J. Greening, Monroe, Mich.

Secretary-treasurer—Guy A. Bryant, Princeton, Ill.

The next meeting will be in Philadelphia.

There was considerable discussion relative to wholesale nurserymen sending their lists to persons not entitled to them, those known to be habitual offenders being designated by name, but no action was taken.

President—Mrs. E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.

Vice-president—Mrs. W. C. Reed, Vincennes, Ind.

FOR PEONY AND IRIS.

About forty men interested in these flowers met at Minneapolis June 24, as reported in The Review last week, and organized the Northwestern Peony and Iris Association. Officers were elected and it was decided to hold two meetings each year, one in midwinter and one, at which an exhibit shall be made, in June. The officers are: President, C. E. Harrison, York, Neb.; first vice-president, C. J. Traxler, Minneapolis; second vice-president, C. D. Ruff, St. Paul; secretary, W. F. Christman, Minneapolis, and treasurer, A. M. Brand, Faribault.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

FIVE YEARS AGO we offered you Pocahontas, with the assurance that it would soon displace all other crimsons. Some of you bought it and were glad. Others turned it down and later on regretted having done so. That is why the demand for the cuttings was fully double the supply this past winter. This is not meant for a complaint, but merely to caution you not to make the same mistake with Merry Christmas. We believe that Merry Christmas will take the same place among scarlets that Pocahontas holds among the crimsons. If you have confidence in our judgment, send us your order now and get in on the early deliveries. Dissemination begins next December.

PACIFIC COAST ASSOCIATION.

The Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen held its annual meeting at Medford, Ore., June 20 to 22. It was a business session, no program having been announced, devoted exclusively to a discussion of the affairs of the association and of its members in dealing with each other and with the public. As a part of the work the Southern Oregon Experiment Station and local orchards and nurseries were inspected. The following officers were elected:

President—F. W. Wiggins, Toppenish, Wash.

Vice-presidents — B. A. Mitchell, Orenco, Ore.; A. L. Wister, Grass Valley, Cal.; P. A. Dix, Roy, Utah; Chas. T. Hawkes, Caldwell, Idaho; D. J. Tighe, Billings, Mont.; F. H. Burghehaus, Sumner, Wash.; Richard Layritz, Victoria, B. C.

Secretary-treasurer—C. A. Tonneson, Tacoma, Wash.

Executive committee—A. Brownell, Portland; Geo. C. Roeding, Fresno, Cal., and S. A. Miller, Milton, Ore.

Kittanning, Pa.—The Chula Vista Ranch Co., which has been doing a small florists' business aside from its other interests, intends to invest in more greenhouses this summer for growing stock for retail.

Onarga, Ill.—The Gould Co., which grows only for the wholesale cut flower market, has had a successful peony season. In addition to the local field, the company has plantations at Grayville, in southern Illinois, and at Halls, Tenn., so that cutting covers more than a month.

Edwardsville, Ill.—The long and short of the matter is that Emil Klein one day met Miss Blanche Miller, a school-teacher. Came a period of courtship, which terminated last month to the tune of wedding bells. Then followed two weeks' honeymoon to Milwaukee and other northern points. Mr. and Mrs. Klein now are "at home."

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Considering the time of the year, prices have kept up well during the last ten days. As a rule flower prices in this market take a tumble July 1, as weddings, graduations and other factors that create a demand for stock at this time are almost over.

Valley is scarce now; it brings $6 to $8 per hundred. Some of the best goes as high as $10. Roses are good, extra quality whites, Ophelias and Sunbursts marking time at $8 per hundred. On account of the cold, rainy weather, outdoor roses have been later than usual, and this has served to keep up the price of the greenhouse-grown varieties. Peonies are gone, save a few cold storage ones, which are of poor grade and not in much demand. Gladioli are coming into the market in small lots, but their quality is not good as yet. There does not seem to be much of a demand for them. Sweet peas are arriving in considerable quantities and are reasonable in price. Carnations are keeping up well, the quality of some of the stock being exceptionally good for this season. Orchids are cheap, making 25 cents each. Callas are low-priced. Easter lilies are of fine quality for this season and bring a fair price. Coreopsis, centaureas, sweet williams, daisies, marigolds and other seasonable flowers are abundant.

Various Notes.

Philips Bros. report business good, with much wedding and funeral work.

Penek's Flower Market, at Broad and Market streets, has been making a specialty of graduation bouquets and baskets.

Incorporation papers have been filed by the Garfield Floral Co., of Garfield. The authorized capital stock is $45,000, the incorporators being Isidor and Samuel Shemin and Max J. Weinman.

R. Plebany, of Irvington, reports a fine season. He finds great difficulty in getting enough workmen for his outdoor plantings, although he is offering unusually high wages. R. B. M.

Grove City, Pa.—D. E. Raver, a grower of gladioli, is building a small greenhouse. He will dispose of his products to a 5 and 10-cent store here.

Greenhouse Heating.

TWO CONNECTED GREENHOUSES.

We expect to build two connected greenhouses, each 24x100, running east and west. The eaves will be six feet high. The north wall will be boarded or planked. The south wall will have three feet of glass and the other three feet will be planked. The ends, which will be nine feet high to the peak, will be planked to a height of three feet; above that they will be glass. We shall use 16x20 glass. The benches will be raised ones. The service building and boiler room will be in the southeast corner. The outside temperature seldom drops lower here than 10 degrees above zero. We wish to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees. Please tell us what size of flows and returns to use and where to put them. What should be the rating of the boiler?

C. F. C.—Miss.

About 1,500 square feet of radiation will be required in the two houses, but for economy in fuel and care we would select a hot water boiler rated for 2,000 square feet of radiating surface.

We would run a 2½-inch flow pipe under each ridge, and one upon the outside plate in each house, with another, making five flows in all, under the gutter between the houses. For the returns use four 2-inch pipes on the south wall of the south house and three on the north wall of the north house. Under the middle benches of each house distribute three returns, to be connected with the flow pipes overhead. Upon the middle wall run five returns, to be joined at the farther end of the house to the corresponding flow pipe. If there is a partition between the houses, run the flow pipe and two returns in the south room and the three other returns in the north room. Run the flow pipes with a slight fall, and connect each of them with the expansion tank at the highest point.

A SMALL 2-ROOM GREENHOUSE.

Enclosed you will find a diagram of a small greenhouse, one compartment of which is for heat-loving plants, such as cucumbers, the other for carnations, etc. I intend to heat with hot water. What capacity of boiler will be required? Can you give me the details of the piping? J. J. L.—O.

The sketch referred to shows the two houses or rooms to be each 10x20 feet, with concrete walls three and one-half

TO THE MAN WHO NEEDS A BOILER

The customers' interest first—is the basis of the Kroeschell standard, and this principle makes the Kroeschell policy the most liberal of all in the greenhouse boiler business. The great variety of boilers that we make places us in a commanding position. We make every type of boiler that is used, from the smallest house heater to the largest water tube steam boiler (600 horse power). For the above reason we can furnish the most efficient boiler unit in every case.

It is the Kroeschell principle to supply only that type of boiler which is best suited to the conditions, and under no circumstances do we take any other stand.

The Kroeschell is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

13,468,320 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years.

The Kroeschell has replaced hundreds of cast iron boilers. In every case higher temperatures are secured with the Kroeschell with the same piping and with less fuel.

The Kroeschell is sold direct from factory to users. This eliminates the unnecessary middleman's profit.

Every boiler made at our works is of the highest standard. Material—governed by Kroeschell specifications—the best that money and brains can produce. Workmanship—the kind that is an inspiration to all other boiler makers. Boiler efficiency—determined by actual tests under working conditions. Boiler ratings—honest and true blue—guaranteed actual working capacities.

Probably you have wondered why the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is not sold by any of the greenhouse construction companies. In justice to all concerned we feel it is our duty to state that the Kroeschell Boiler is never sold by anyone but—The KROESCHELL BROS. CO.—We have no agents, and as our prices are based on sales direct from factory to user, we do not quote anyone dealing in boilers special resale prices. Our stand in this matter has brought out a lot of competition; nevertheless, the great efficiency of the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler cannot be disputed, and in spite of the keen competition the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is heating more glass than any other make—"DO NOT GET CHEATED OUT OF THE KROESCHELL BUT PLACE YOUR ORDER DIRECT AT ONCE."

Kroeschell Boiler—Half the Coal and Half the Work

Your No. 13 Boiler is carrying 25,000 sq. ft. of glass, and I can keep it at 60 degrees in the coldest weather without any trouble. I have three cast iron boilers also, heating a range of 25,000 sq. ft. of glass, but the No. 13 Kroeschell Boiler only takes half the coal and half the work to get the same results.

The Kroeschell is doing the same work as good and as saving as ever. Me for Kroeschell Boilers.

Kroeschell Best of All

Our No. 6 Kroeschell Boiler is heating 15,000 sq. ft. of glass, and it would take care of more. We carry a temperature from 70 to 85 degrees, and have had no trouble in regard to this. The Kroeschell has given entire satisfaction.

Have had to contend with nearly every other make of boiler on the market, and in my estimation the Kroeschell surpasses, without exception, any type or make.

Get the Kroeschell First

Several years ago Mr. Ponting corresponded with us in regard to the Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler, but was persuaded to install two sectional cast iron boilers which were claimed to be superior to the Kroeschell

In the meantime we placed a number of Kroeschell Boilers in the immediate vicinity of Mr. Ponting, and he could not help but notice their great efficiency, and last year, while at the convention, he placed his order for his first Kroeschell. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We like the Kroeschell Boiler very much. It gives entire satisfaction, and it is so easy to fire. I will trade you the two cast iron sectional boilers for another like the Kroeschell I have."

July 16, 1913, Cleveland, Ohio. (Signed) FRED PONTING.

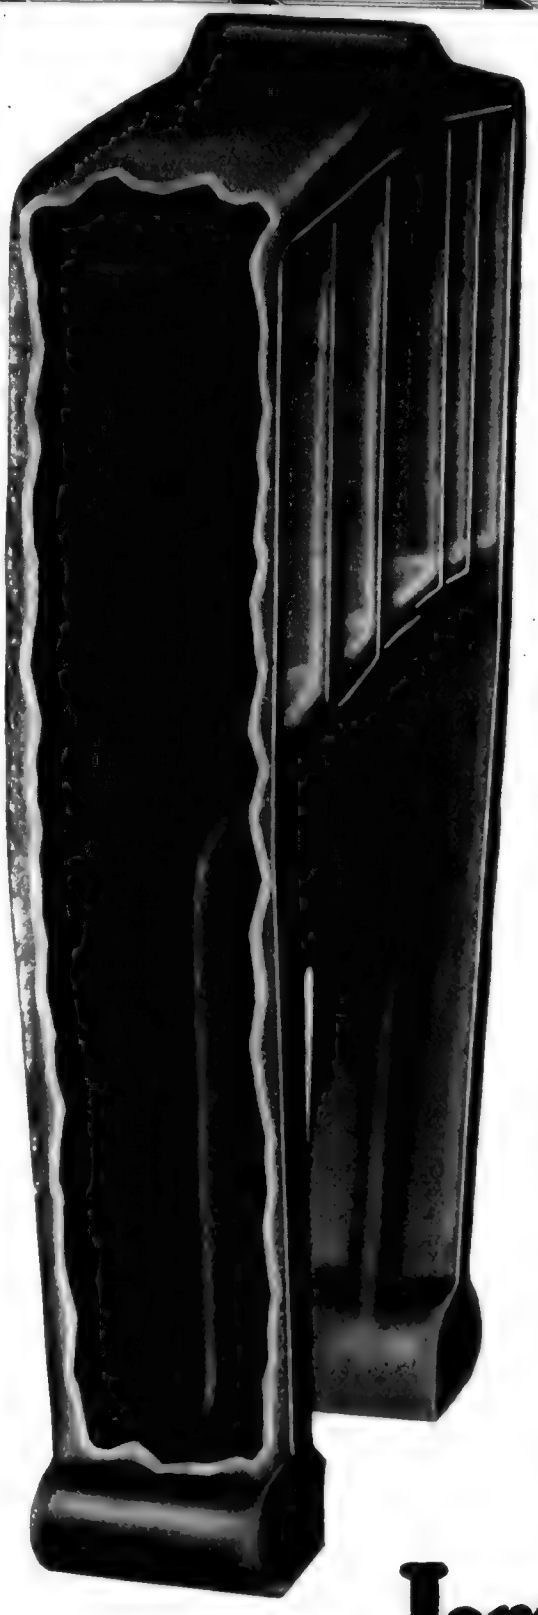
Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron

In 1912 our cast iron sectional boiler cracked in one section and we ordered a No. 8½ Kroeschell Boiler by telegraph. This boiler is heating 10,200 sq. ft. of glass, besides the office and potting shed, and you will note this is 1200 ft. more than its rating. We have no trouble to maintain proper temperatures at any time and the boiler has given perfect satisfaction.

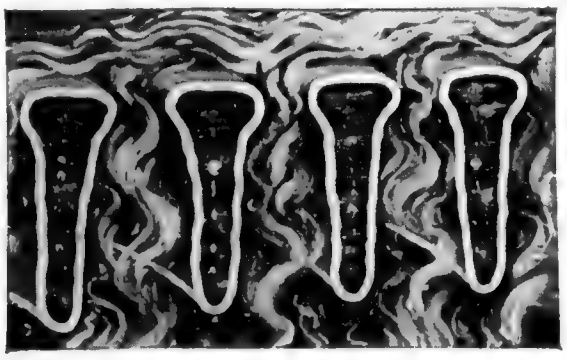
With the Kroeschell we have added one more house, but have not used any more coal than with the cast iron boiler and 3000 ft. less to heat. One cast iron break-down was enough for us, for we have found it pays to get the best—the Kroeschell.

(Signed) MICHLER BROS. CO.
July 17, 1913, Lexington, Ky.

Kroeschell Replaces 3 Cast Iron Boilers



The No. 6 Kroeschell which we purchased some years ago is heating 18,000 sq. ft. of glass and we should judge that it would take care of 5000 or 6000 ft. more easily.



Our houses require a temperature of 50 to 52 degrees at night, and we certainly do not have the least trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. We do not have to fire our boiler as often as our brother florists who are using different makes. The Kroeschell has replaced three cast iron sectional boilers, and it certainly has given entire satisfaction.

It only takes a few words to express the good quality of your boilers and they are as follows: "Of all firms handling boilers and advertising them truthfully, the party buying a boiler would have to get the Kroeschell, as you are certainly advertising nothing but facts."

(Signed) ALEXANDER A. LAUB.

Thickness and Thinness How they Both Count in Burnham Boiler Economy

THE right thickness of the casting of each section means the right strength. Uniform thickness means an equal strength at all points. Thick in some places and thin in others, means the section is only as strong as the thinnest spot.

The section shown here of a water boiler is just the way it looked after breaking out the side to prove to ourselves, as we do every so often, that the castings are being made uniformly thick.

But there's another side to this thickness question and that is: The thinner the iron the quicker it transmits heat to the water. So we have worked out the thickness to a point where it has the right strength and some to spare, but not so thick as to hinder quick heating.

Note on this section, that hollow ridge running down the leg, coming in direct contact with the hot fire. It's one of the several important points contributing to Burnham economy.

Now take a glance at the cut above that looks like a bunch of key holes. Notice how narrow they are when coming in direct contact with the burning flames, and then larger at the top. The narrow part gives a thin amount of water coming in contact with a large amount of heated surface, causing quick heating. The enlarged part at the top gives room for expansion and rapid, frictionless circulation.

Here then are some few of the reasons why the Burnham heats so quickly, circulates so rapidly, burns so little coal, and lasts so long.

It was designed to do all these things better than other cast iron boilers; and it does them better. Freights are slow—railroads are short of cars. Order your Burnham before you want it and then you'll have it when you need it.

feet high and twenty-eight inches of glass. The ridge is eleven feet high. A glass partition separates the houses. The end wall of one house appears to be exposed, while that of the other house is protected by a garage. The location of the boiler is not indicated, but, presuming it is in the garage, it will be advisable to use the room adjoining the garage for cucumbers and similar plants.

For heating the two greenhouses, about 250 square feet of radiation will be needed and we would select a boiler rated at 400 square feet of radiation. If to be used for heating the garage also, it will be none too large if it has a rating of 500 square feet. To heat the greenhouses, we would run a 2½-inch overhead flow pipe about two feet below the ridge to the farther side of the carnation room, and, dropping down a 2-inch pipe on either side of the door, supply with each pipe three 2-inch returns, which should be carried to the corners of the house and then along the walls of the carnation and cucumber rooms back to the garage.

This will supply the 100 square feet of radiation needed in the carnation house, but, if cucumbers are to be grown successfully during the winter, the radiation in that house should be sufficient for 70 degrees in zero weather. The pipes which pass through the cucumber house from the carnation house provide about sixty-two square feet of radiation, while 150 are needed. To secure this, drop down a 2-inch pipe from the main flow pipe overhead, at the point where it enters the carnation house, and with this feed two coils, each containing four 2-inch pipes, running in either direction from the door of the carnation house to the corners of the room and then along the sides to the garage. This will make seven pipes on each side wall of the cucumber house and three on each wall of the carnation house. Connect the pipes on each side with the boiler by means of a 2½-inch return.

BUILDING AND PIPING A HOUSE.

I am planning to build a greenhouse 23x100, with 4-foot concrete walls and two feet of glass above the concrete. I wish to place the heating coils on the outside walls and have no pipes underneath the beds. How many 2-inch pipes will be needed in the house? It is to be used for general retail purposes. A 3-inch pipe will rise from the boiler to what will be the highest point of the system. Will 2-inch pipe do for the flows? Will it be satisfactory to have the boiler on a level with the greenhouse? If not, how deep a pit will be necessary?

Would 16x16 glass be a good size? How should I arrange the benches to get the most possible room? How can I make concrete benches? How thick should the greenhouse walls be? What should be the height of the greenhouse in the center? In the coldest weather in this locality the outside temperature sometimes drops to 20 degrees below zero, but only for a week or so. I shall have patent ventilators. What size should the ventilators be? Should they be continuous?

L. M. & S.—N. S.

For heating the house described, we would use two 3-inch flow pipes on the plates and fourteen 2-inch returns, making one flow and seven returns on each wall. If the end of the house farthest from the boiler is exposed to the prevailing cold winds, it would be desirable to provide radiation along the end of the house. In that case we would run a 2½-inch flow on each plate and with each flow feed four 2-inch returns. Then run a third flow, 2½-inch, about three feet below the ridge, and at the farther end of the house connect it with six 2-inch returns. Run three of these each way to the corners of the house and then along the sides of the house back to the boiler. While 2-inch pipe might be used for the flows, we prefer to use the larger sizes. If for any special reason the smaller size is desirable, at least five flows and twelve returns will be needed.

It would be well to have 4-inch pipes for the main flows and returns, since at least 1,100 square feet of radiation will be needed, but if the 3-inch main is not too long it will answer. The best circulation will be obtained if the top of the boiler is as low as the coils, or lower. While 16x16-inch glass answers well, we would prefer 16x20 or even 16x24.

We do not consider twenty-three feet as economical a width as one a little wider or narrower. The benching depends upon the class of plants to be grown, but we would suggest the use of three benches, with narrow walks next to the walls and two slightly wider walks between the benches, or a bed two and one-half feet wide at each wall and three beds about four feet wide in the middle of the house. If the house is to be used merely for growing, the outside walks need not be more than fifteen inches wide, but it would be well to give the others a width of eighteen inches. If the house is to be used for retail purposes, one or two of the walks should be twenty or even twenty-four inches wide.

If concrete blocks are to be used for the walls, they should have a thickness of eight inches, and the same thickness may be used for a solid wall, although this might be reduced to six inches at the plate. In either case, the wall should be reinforced with 1½-inch gas pipes, set every five or six feet, upon which the plates should be supported.

Concrete benches may be cast in one piece by setting up forms for the legs, bottoms and sides, or each part may be cast separately, the bottoms being slabs fifteen inches wide, two inches thick and long enough to go across the benches. The legs should be about four feet apart. To support the bottoms and to form the sides of the beds, angle slabs measuring six inches on the bottom and eight on the side may be used. The upper edge need not be more than one and one-quarter inches thick. For reinforcing the bottom slabs, three ¼-inch rods should be placed about three-eighths of an inch from the bottom and six inches apart. There should be three rods in the angle pieces.

A good height for the ridge of a greenhouse twenty-three feet wide, with walls six feet high, is thirteen feet. The ventilating sash should be long enough to cover five rows of glass, and although the use of a continuous row of sashes has some merits, it will probably answer in Nova Scotia if there are two rows of glass between the sashes. A width sufficient for 24-inch glass would be desirable.

The weather shifted from cold and wet to hot and sultry, and business suffered accordingly; that is, it became dull. Thermometers on the streets went as high as 100 degrees. The usual summer work prevails at all the greenhouses.

The McCRAY construction keeps flowers cool and fresh longer than by any other system of refrigeration. It provides an even temperature of the correct degree for cut flowers and stops the great waste and profit loss that is caused by imperfect refrigeration.

The various compartments in a McCRAY are of different sizes to accommodate the different lengths of cut flower stems and your flowers are given an inviting display.

For interior linings you have your choice of either handsome bevel plate mirror or beautiful white enamel, which are very easy to clean. The exterior may be of any finish desired to match the interior of your store woodwork or other fixtures.

Invest in a McCRAY. Make it a partner in your business. You will value it more highly than its mere intrinsic dollar-and-cents value. Investigate anyway!

The Market.

Last week business was extremely quiet.

The supply continued large and easily was in excess of actual needs. A good supply of roses included some excellent Maman Cochet blooms. American Beauties, too, were in good supply. Easter lilies are plentiful and the cut of gladioli is fair. Snapdragon has a fair market and some good outdoor sweet peas are arriving. Other offerings include carnations, hardy hydrangeas, valley, larkspurs, cornflowers and Shasta daisies. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mayhall have returned from their trip east.

Thomas Windram has returned from Leesburg, Fla.

Recent visitors were Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Beckman, of Middletown, O.; P. J. Dudley, of Parkersburg, W. Va.; Ferdinand Keller, of Lexington, Ky.

C. E. Critchell, Jr., who was operated on last week for adenoids, is recovering nicely.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has rented quarters on Third street, near Vine street. C. H. H.

D. Rusconi has been confined to his home two weeks as the result of injuries recently received in an automobile accident.

Essex, Ia.—The Essex Greenhouses, formerly operated by H. L. Swalley, have been acquired by J. H. Colvin.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The market was more satisfactory last week, and stock moved better. The weather has been considerably warmer, and the market is well supplied with stock. There do not, however, appear to be many large orders, but there is a steady trade along smaller lines, which is considered satisfactory for this time of the year. Outdoor stock is overplentiful. Large quantities of outdoor roses are cut daily and are found useful in design work. Many sweet williams arrive, and they move well. Carnations are plentiful and sell at reasonable prices. Sweet peas are of good quality, but they have shortened considerably. They are slow in arriving, but the demand is good.

Roses of all kinds are plentiful and sell well. American Beauties are arriving in fine shape. Valley is of good quality and is moving freely.

Delphiniums, single and double, move easily, being used in decorations with daisies. Peonies are almost over. Gladioli arrive daily and sell finely. Easter lilies are slowing up now. Little is seen of potted plants, but most of the florists are making up crocks of variegated plants, with verbenas, daisies and other outdoor stock. These sell well and bring good returns. Palms and ferns sell satisfactorily. There appear to be enough greens for present demands.

Various Notes.

W. A. Elder, of the Lord & Burnham office, is on a vacation at his father's country place at Ocean Beach, Long Island.

Henry P. Neun had an artistic rockery window at his store last week. The North street store reports good business, as well as the branch at Hotel Rochester.

Frank McLuis is doing a lively business, though he says it is not so good as it might be. He had a good window of old-fashioned flowers last week.

Marriage licenses issued in Rochester during June totaled 426, the largest number of any month except June of 1914, when the total was 457. The 426 weddings certainly kept the florists busy.

The annual flower day was held Friday, June 30. Thousands of roses, carnations and other flowers were sold by girls, the proceeds to be given to the Rochester Free Dispensary and Children's hospital.

H. E. Bates, of the Lord & Burnham Co. local office, reports business as being fairly good. He says that, owing to the country's unsettled state, things are not moving so fast as they might. Growers are making inquiries daily, but they do not seem to come to any decision. H. J. H.

Laramie, Wyo.—One man after another has leased the Overland Gardens, which are owned by a lawyer residing here, but none of the lessees was successful and each of them quit after a short time. G. A. Hergert is the latest to have a try at the florists' business via the Overland route. Mr. Hergert says he does not know whether or not he will succeed, but that he is going to put up a good bid for prosperity. Perhaps Mr. Hergert can eliminate the things that wrought failure to the other fellows.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The dull business period is here with a vengeance and there is little doing in the market. The business this season has been more satisfactory than it has been for several years, and the rush kept up well through the month of June. Prices are holding their own, because of the shortage of good stock. This is particularly true of carnations, which are bringing $2 per hundred, an increase of fully fifty per cent. They are selling well in the better grades, with hardly enough last week to go around.

Another shortage is in valley, which at present maintains a standard price of $6 per hundred. Last week many large orders came in from southern points, but the local wholesalers found it impossible to supply the valley desired. It will be more plentiful now, or at least more easily available, as the June wedding season is at an end and a large part of the demand ceases.

There were hardly enough white roses to meet all calls where good quality was desired. The top price is $8 per hundred, but the quality must be exceptional to bring that sum. Local roses are going downhill fast, in quality. Northern roses also are showing the effects of the lateness of the season. Thus there is a live market for good stock.

Among the gladioli, Halley, America and Augusta are the best sellers and are in fair demand. There is some call for hydrangeas for decorative work. These make a big showing for little money and come in handy when there is a scarcity of other stock. This year has witnessed the introduction of a number of flowers usually moved only as potted plants in cut flower decorative work.

Various Notes.

Traugott Malbranc, of Johnstown, Pa., last week motored to Washington with a party as a part of a vacation of several weeks, which will include long automobile trips.

Although workmen are busy getting the store at 1206 H street, northwest, in shape, the Leo Niessen Co., now at 1214 H street, will probably not be able to take possession until about August 15. The new establishment, according to Manager Albert Schnell, will be one of the most modern in this section of the country. Mr. Schnell is pleased with the change soon to be made, as he feels cramped in his present quarters, due to the growth of the business.

C. D. Mills, of Jacksonville, Fla., performed a sad mission last week when he accompanied the body of his sister to a last resting place at Pittsfield, Mass. She had been confined to the Garfield hospital for about three weeks, having undergone a serious operation from which she failed to recover. Mr. Mills was in the city during the entire period of her illness. Death occurred June 29.

Frank Weaver, with the Leo Niessen Co., is at Chesapeake Beach enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Miss Jessie Windsor, employed in the office of the Gude Bros. Co., is away for the month of July. She intends spending a part of the period at Atlantic City.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

Laren Co. retail store, expects to leave early in July on a vacation trip to Lake Tahoe, accompanied by his family. On his return F. H. Forrest is scheduled to go south for his vacation.

It is said that a flower store is to be opened on Geary street, near Stockton, sometime in August, by H. A. Avansino and his brother, who were formerly members of the Fairmont Floral Co., which was succeeded by the MacRorie-McLaren Co. Mr. Avansino now is in charge of the E. W. McLellan Co. San Francisco office, during the absence of J. A. Axell on a visit to the east.

Martin Reukauf was a recent visitor to the local trade in the interests of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia.

Zinnias from Melrose, in Alameda county, brought in by Jack Groves, continue to sell readily, as they are about the finest specimens of this flower ever seen in this market, being remarkably large and having unusually long stems.

The Art Floral Co. is renovating its shop on Powell street, near Geary, and when the work now in progress is completed the place will look like new.

Mr. McLellan, of the E. W. McLellan Co., says that the rose cut is lasting longer into the summer than usual and that business for the first six months of 1916 was the best his concern ever had. Beauties are becoming scarce, but he says that there are plenty of Russell, Hadley and Ophelia.

News of the death of Eugene J. Ferrari, which occurred June 26, was received with many expressions of sincere regret. Although he had been ill at a sanatorium at Los Gatos, the end came as a shock to his friends in the trade. Funeral services were held at St. Peter's church June 29, with interment in the Holy Cross cemetery. The deceased was a native of Italy, but spent most of his life in this country. He was a member of the firm of Ferrari Bros., prominent growers of this section. Besides his brothers, Emile and Peter, who were associated with him in business, he is survived by his wife, a daughter and another brother, Louis.

Schwerin Bros. are busy potting Adiantum California. They will have about 15,000 in 10-inch pots.

Luther Burbank has started suit in the Superior court to recover $3,000 on a promissory note issued by the California Cactus Co. The note was originally issued to B. A. Crabtree by the president of the cactus company, D. M. Austermell, and assigned to Mr. Burbank.

store on Fourth street. Both places occupy a good deal of his time, and Manager Wern says they are holding up their end well, both at the growing quarters and at the store.

At the Freeman-Lewis store some elegant rose baskets have been shown—something a little above the average.

A little more than the usual share of business has been coming to the store of Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson this week, according to J. Gordon, the volatile manager. Look that up under V., John.

Dan Stathatos, of the Broadway Florist, is working up a mighty fine business at his store on Broadway. From small beginnings a few years ago he has, by straightforward methods and square dealing, built up a nice line of transient retail trade, as well as a good connection of credit business that he holds through thick and thin. He deserves all credit for hard work and up-to-date methods, and his store is always attractive.

Frank Lichtenberg is feeling the call of the wild, and is talking of Bear valley as a place in which to recuperate.

Geo. W. Smith says if people are foolish enough to get married, they may as well come to Seventh and Figueroa streets for the flowers, and lots of them have been doing it of late.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. is practically sold out of the salable sizes in all classes of popular shrubbery for the season. The new plantings for the coming year are looking well, and this firm evidently will be well prepared to take care of the big landscape business that is bound to come after the present building boom.

C. E. Morton is now connected with Norris & Son, at their new store in the Rosslyn hotel building.

Oscar Johanssen, of the Johanssen Seed Co., has just returned from another northern automobile trip.

H. W. Turner reports sales of rose plants keeping up well for so late in the season. In cut flowers he is keeping sold out daily, though the cut, of course, is not so large as earlier in the season.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

RECORDS THE ROSES GIVE GOOD GROWERS

The following article and table are published anonymously, but let no one doubt the authenticity and painstaking accuracy. The Editor of The Review knows the grower, the greenhouses, the stock and the wholesaler, and most of the Readers would recognize the standing of all concerned were the names divulged.

ALTHOUGH I am a rose grower exclusively, I was greatly interested in the article in The Review for June 29, entitled "Keeping Count of the Carnation Cut," in which the cut and cash income of a Boston greenhouse establishment were set down in detail. To me this was important as affording the opportunity to compare the income of a carnation grower with the income of our own place in roses; how much more interesting, then, must have been the figures for other carnation growers, giving them the opportunity to compare, not only cash income, but the productivity and profitableness of the varieties this grower used and with the varieties on their own benches!

Reliable Figures Hard to Get.

Reliable statistics of this character are difficult to procure. In the first place, though it should not be so, many growers are not sufficiently awake to the value of accurate knowledge as to what their houses are turning out and, although they may start at the beginning of the season to keep a record, before the year has rolled around they have relaxed their effort and breaks have occurred that render the whole thing valueless. Then, too, growers do not, as a rule, care to divulge such intimate facts as the amount of their annual income, although it may of course be done to The Review in perfect confidence. If the Editor knows the grower to be painstaking and accurate, so that his statements can be published anonymously, they can be accepted by the trade as reliable and the identity of the establishment can remain safe with the Editor.

Roses Versus Carnations.

With this in view I am submitting herewith a table showing the results of the season that ended June 30, 1916, at the place with which I am identified. It will interest other rose growers as affording a comparison with their own results, for the six varieties of roses covered in the table are the ones now generally grown in quantity in greenhouses throughout the greater part of the United States. Carnation growers will note that the returns per square foot of bench space are larger than their own (the article of June 29 showed 66 cents per square foot of bench for carnations), but I am inclined to believe that there is no larger margin of profit, as the cost of growing roses is no doubt fifteen per cent or more higher than the cost of growing carnations. The fuel bill alone, which in our case is in excess of $8,000 for the year, is sufficient to cut quite a hole, while it also takes considerably more labor to handle roses.

Cutting Twelve Months.

My table shows a pretty even cut for the whole twelve months, although practically all the plants were either rested or replaced with young stock during the year. This work, however, was so regulated that a certain proportion of each variety was kept in bloom at all times, so as to keep up a continuous cut, which is necessary where one is growing roses for the Chicago market, where the demand for good roses never ceases, not even in midsummer.

Quantity or Quality.

The figures here given are gross wholesale prices, the cut being sold exclusively in one house in the Chicago market, fifteen per cent to be deducted as the cost of selling. The cut rates as good average stock; in some other years the place has been run to produce a longer average grade of roses and the showing this year is not so high an average price as in the seasons referred to, but the larger cut this year balances the account.

The Editor will be pleased to have other Growers submit in confidence a record of their cut and sales.

In addition, a small sum was realized on retail sales at the greenhouse, probably enough to increase the average income per plant by 1 cent, but the total per month is so small for each variety that it is not included in this record of sales. There was a small addition to the revenue through the sale of bench plants, but no young stock is grown for the trade; the plants are handled for cut flowers only; we consider it cheaper to buy young stock from a specialist than to produce it ourselves at the expense of space and flowers.

A Few Comparisons.

Rose growers who do not keep an accurate record of cuts and income (there are a dozen who know what they cut for each one who knows what he gets) I am sure will be interested in noting that while the cut per plant varies from twenty-five to thirty-six blooms, the income per plant varies only from $1 to $1.11¼; in other words, while the number of flowers cut per plant varies nearly fifty per cent, the cash returns vary only eleven and one-fourth per cent. Here it is, tabulated:

Variety	Cut per plant	Income per plant
Sunburst	27.0	$1.11¼
Mrs. Ward	36.0	1.07
Killarney Brilliant	26.8	1.06
Killarney	28.4	1.03⅛
White Killarney	28.0	1.00
Milady	25.0	1.00

Returns per Foot.

Then, as to the returns per square foot of bench space, which, within certain limitations, is the real test of the value of any crop. The following tabulation shows that the variety grown most heavily gave a return of slightly under 75 cents per foot of space occupied, while the variety planted in smallest quantity gave nearly 83½ cents. This is the way it tabulates:

Variety	Square ft.	Brought	Per foot
Sunburst	4,800	$ 4,004.55	$0.8343
Mrs. Ward	14,400	11,542.60	0.8016
Killarney Brilliant	13,600	10,835.45	0.7967
Killarney	14,400	11,163.81	0.7753
White Killarney	16,000	12,009.70	0.7506
Milady	28,600	21,434.10	0.7495
Total	91,800	$70,990.21	$0.7733

It will be interesting if some of the growers of Ophelia, Mrs. Russell and American Beauty will supply, for comparison, records covering their cuts and sales for the last year.

A DIFFERENT FLOWER STORE.

Of course it is not so different—the store with the group of sago palms in front, as shown in the illustration—of course it is not so different or distinctive in the south as it would be in the north, since the Cycas revoluta is a comparatively common plant in southern gardens and parks. Yet the store is different from those that are generally seen in pictures. It is decidedly different, too, from stores where the decorations are confined to the show window, and where outdoor opportunities for the display of stock are either nonexistent or are entirely neglected.

The store with the cycas-planted dooryard is located on St. Charles avenue, New Orleans, La., and is conducted by the Avenue Floral Co., of which C. W. Eichling is president. Doubtless the attractive grounds form a good advertisement, silently invoking attention from many passers-by on week days and from larger throngs on Sunday. For just across the street is a handsome church. And the appeal of the cycas plants to the church-goers is not incongruous, but eminently appropriate, suggesting Palm Sunday and the whole calendar of religious festivals, while steadily offering the reminder that the Avenue Floral Co. has flowers to sell.

It is to be hoped, however, that not many of the congregation, on going home from church, straightway forget the proffered flowers completely, just as some church attendants go home and forget their religion, leaving it in a sort of cold storage in the church building, not to be aired or disturbed again until the next Sunday arrives.

HOW MUCH FOR ADVERTISING?

By A. HUMASON, of the H. V. Swenson Co., Chicago.

PLANNING PRACTICAL PUBLICITY.

Analyzing the Prospects.

No two lines of business can be successfully advertised by the use of one method. One often hears that Mr. Florist is handling his business and advertising in a manner similar to that of Mr. Candy Man, who is unusually successful; or Mr. Florist is attempting to imitate profitable advertising placed by a successful department store, or in fact, imitate that of any prosperous retailer. This cannot be successfully accomplished. No two lines of business are sufficiently alike to enable their owners to use the same advertising methods. It is true all retail advertising has points of similarity, but in the main the advertising for one retail business is vastly different from that of another.

When planning an advertising campaign, your first need is to ascertain just how many people or families in your community are in the market for that which you have for sale. With this information in hand, it may easily be learned just what percentage of the total people or families your prospective clientage bears. This is necessary in order to learn how to reach this percentage. For instance, should you have some staple article which is used universally, such as American Family Soap, general publicity is about the best method of advertising, because in advertising this article few people who read the advertisements are uninterested, but in advertising flowers you will find you can figure on only about one out of every ten people being a prospective flower buyer.

Appropriations Minus Guesswork.

When you have learned just what percentage of the people or families you can figure on as possible patrons, the next advertising step is to set aside an advertising appropriation. This is a harder task than would appear at a casual glance. Of course, it is an easy matter to make up your mind that you will spend $1,000, $2,000 or even $5,000, but can anyone who sets aside any of these amounts offhand state why he has set aside that amount? Is he reasonably sure that his business can stand an advertising appropriation of that size? There is only one safe way—the advertising appropriation should be based on the annual volume of business transacted. If the business shows a profit of forty per cent, then five per cent of the total volume is not too much to set aside as an advertising appropriation, although there are many florists who go as low as three per cent, and some as high as eight per cent.

To use an illustration: You have learned that you can figure on about five per cent of the people in your community as possible flower buyers, and your annual volume of business is $20,000. Should you go into advertising blindly, taking, say $1,000, or five per cent, and apportion it among the numerous advertising men by whom you are approached, regardless of whether the advertising be newspaper, "direct appeal" literature, picture houses, street cars, or billboards? By all means, NO!

Absolutely your first need is to ascertain just what kind of people compose this five per cent. How shall this be done? There are numerous ways. One way is to learn the average income of your customer. When this is done, this information, together with your knowledge of the people or families in your community, should enable you to make up a list of the five per cent. Another way is to pick out people or families in the better neighborhoods. Another way, and probably the best method of all, is to make a note of the various people who frequent your store, regardless of whether they are cash or credit buyers, and add to this list the names of the various people or families in the better neighborhoods, together with the names of those who are receiving fairly good incomes.

A Penny Versus Two Pennies.

Now, then, it is necessary to reach these people. This has to be done by direct literature, but of what nature? Should it be done by literature placed in an envelope and mailed under 2-cent postage, or should it be handled under 1-cent postage? In recent years it was the consensus of opinion that only literature under 2-cent postage would pay in the end. This, however, has proved incorrect. The only requirement you place on your literature, or should place, is that it be read, and you may claim that the extra 1-cent postage obtains an audience for 2-cent literature that is not accorded 1-cent literature. This is true, but only to a limited extent, and I will show where this same audience detracts from the value of the 2-cent literature rather than adds to it. For instance, you receive an ordinary letter under 2-cent postage; you open it. Your clerk, or whoever is watching you, will tell you that as soon as you find it to be an advertisement, a disappointed look comes over your countenance, and with a fling of your hand you throw it aside. It is a well established fact that human beings since the beginning of time have desired the "square deal" policy, rather than to be deceived, and evidently advertising under 2-cent postage is obtaining the attention of the recipient under a false pretense.

One-Cent Postage Wins.

If you doubt this statement, I ask that you take careful note of the following illustration the next time opportunity offers. A faker sets his stand on a street corner. While opening his bag, he calls his hearers by means of a ballyhoo. His hearers come, but as soon as he commences to show his wares, the busy man, whose attention has been falsely arrested, leaves, and only idlers remain. You do not sell your flowers to idlers. You sell your flowers to thinkers, and most thinkers are busy people.

Absolutely the best method is folders, under 1-cent postage, without envelope, beautifully designed, dignified and well gotten up literature. When one is received by the prospective customer, the seasonable design and dignity of the folder arrests his attention—and not falsely either, because he knows it is an advertisement—and with a flip of the finger the folder is open and the copy is instantly before him. Short, snappy, well gotten up, dignified copy, which the recipient will not fail to read, in addition to having the recipient open the folder in a satisfied mood, conserves his time and furnishes your most effective bid for his business.

A Comparison in Actual Cost.

The foregoing convincingly shows the superiority of 1-cent postage, and below I give you a few costs:

TWO-CENT LITERATURE.

Envelopes, 1,000	$ 4.00
Literature	10.00
Folding of literature and sealing of envelopes, three operations, each at 25 cents	.75
Postage	20.00
Total	$34.75

ONE-CENT LITERATURE.

Well gotten up folders, with good copy, the equivalent in interest of any literature sent out under 2-cent postage, per thousand	$18.00
Postage	10.00
Total	28.00
Showing a saving of	$ 6.75

Apparently 1-cent literature guarantees you superior advertising at a smaller cost.

Ad Mediums for Florists.

You will ask, shall I use the same mailing lists for all occasions, such as autumn announcement, fall planting, Thanksgiving, Christmas, Valentine's day, Easter, Mothers' day, Memorial day, weddings and graduations? Yes, with the exception of Valentine's day and Mothers' day, when a list of young people should be obtained, if possible, and used.

The method described advertises your business to the known flower buyers in a community. The question is, how shall I reach the unknown flower buyers, the newcomers in a community, etc.? For this purpose, general publicity is needed, and to obtain general publicity in the cheapest possible manner it is necessary to use the newspapers. Some florists are using moving picture slides, others programs, some street cars and three or four whom I know, billboards. Below, I enumerate a few reasons why I believe newspapers are the best mediums of publicity in this case.

Your advertisement on a moving picture screen is thrown before the audience—a goodly proportion of which, being children, is of little or no value as far as immediate business is concerned—which is there to be amused. The spectators' minds are not in a receptive mood; the audience is unable to grasp your advertisement. This calls to mind an incident which took place about ten years ago, when moving picture advertising was in its infancy.

Movie Slides Waste of Money?

A trip of approximately 500 miles was made to put before a manufacturer of a highly advertised necessity a proposition to show his advertisement to, say, 10,000,000 people weekly, for a ridiculously low price. The method to be used was moving picture slides. After two or three weeks of careful thought on the part of the manufacturer, the proposition was flatly rejected. This action being unexpected, the reason was asked. The manufacturer stated that he had attended numerous moving picture shows to ascertain just what effect the advertisements had on the audience. He discovered that the advertisements were shown against the wishes of the audience, which was there simply to be amused and nothing more. Furthermore, being in attendance simply for amusement purposes, the minds were not in receptive mood, and accordingly, could not grasp his advertisement and would not know whether Old Dutch Cleanser or Lighthouse Cleaner had been advertised. If this be true of a universally used article, it is more true of flowers.

Slide advertising for the florist as a means of getting immediate business is not of much value. One will not buy flowers after the show is over. The time to reach the people for this direct business is prior to attending the show. Of course, for some lines of business, such as cafes, candy shops, etc., which have something that can be sold after the show, slide advertising produces immediate results.

Two Mediums Too Expensive.

The argument against slide advertising also covers programs.

Street car cards and billboards are used to best advantage by national advertisers in coöperation with newspaper advertising and are of much less value when used individually. It must be borne in mind that most of the people who attend the moving picture shows read the street car ads and the billboards.

To use slide advertising, programs, street car and billboard advertising properly, the expense would be prohibitive, as advertising must be constantly changed. Street car ads and billboard advertising must be changed or repainted every thirty or sixty days to be of much value, and the slide advertising should be changed daily. However, should you follow newspaper advertising, the newspapers will gladly assist you in obtaining feature cuts and will also assist in the writing of new copy, which is decidedly necessary. Feature cuts of all kinds for newspaper use can be obtained cheaply and even good copy and cut services today are not expensive.

System In Sales Promotion.

It is necessary for the florist or his assistant to make a note of all newspaper announcements of approaching weddings, anniversaries, entertainments, parties, socials and the like, and to send to the families or parties interested some sort of direct "appeal" literature, preferably a booklet or folder rather than a letter, for the reason that the former are not so personal. Some florists are of the opinion that this is quite a hard subject to handle properly. On the contrary, it is quite easy. Here is an illustration: June 1, 1916, a florist instructs his assistant to follow up such occasions as noted above. The newspaper shows on that date announcements of five weddings. Literature is sent to the parties and index cards made out. The index card is then filed in a card cabinet, to come up May 25, 1917, in time for the wedding anniversary, and on that date the card is taken from the cabinet by the florist's assistant. It is wise to look into the status of each card before sending out literature. It is easily seen that, handled in this manner, the work is reduced to a system and to an economical minimum.

Campaign for City of 75,000.

To summarize, an ideal campaign for a florist in a city of 75,000 people would be:

A newspaper campaign of 700 to 800 inches, based on two 4-inch double-column advertisements weekly, to be enlarged on seven or eight occasions during the year, at 40 cents per inch	$320.00
Eight different pieces of literature, mailing list of 3,000	384.00
Postage on 24,000 pieces of literature, at 1 cent per piece	240.00
Wedding and anniversary literature	30.00
	$974.00

When a florists' business in a city of 75,000 inhabitants is properly handled, and advertised as above, the volume of business should not be less than $20,000, which would make the above advertising appropriation schedule less than five per cent.

While the above schedule calls for a mailing list of 3,000 and a newspaper campaign of 700 to 800 inches, many prominent florists have started on a much smaller campaign, which they have built up to even greater proportions than that outlined above. One might start with a mailing list of only a few hundreds and work up as results come.

There is just one point that needs to be borne constantly in mind when advertising: All advertising, properly designed and with expertly written copy, is good advertising, but properly designed advertising, expertly written, and systematically used, is what brings in the greatest results.

SETTLING DISPUTES

HOW THE NURSERYMEN DO IT

ARBITRATION IS SUCCESSFUL.

On One Year's Trial.

In common with florists and seedsmen who handle plants, nurserymen have had their troubles, due to differences of opinion as to quality or as to who was at fault in cases of loss. Consequently, when the American Association of Nurserymen was reorganized at Detroit last year, one of the new things provided for was an arbitration board. This is the motion that was adopted:

That a committee of five representative members be appointed a committee on arbitration, to whom can be referred matters of controversy between members of this association. The refusal of any member to arbitrate a difference between members shall be ground for dropping such member from the rolls of this association.

As the first committee, to work out the details, President Welch appointed W. C. Reed, Vincennes, Ind.; G. A. Marshall, Arlington, Neb.; A. E. Robinson, Lexington, Mass.; J. M. Pitkin, Newark, N. Y., and L. A. Berckmans, Augusta, Ga.

Plan of Operation.

The rules worked out for conducting arbitrations, after one year's trial, were described by Chairman Reed at the recent Milwaukee convention and will interest everyone who has to deal with trade disputes:

"The idea of this committee," said Mr. Reed, "was to avoid the expense of going to court. Your committee had no rules or precedent to go by, and has had to work out its own plans, which have been about as follows: Any time that two members agree to have a case arbitrated, all the correspondence and papers pertaining to such case are forwarded to the chairman of your committee. The chairman goes over the case carefully and makes a written verdict, which is placed in a sealed envelope and filed away for future reference. The papers then are forwarded to another member of the committee, who does likewise, rendering a written verdict in a sealed envelope forwarded to the chairman. This plan is continued until the five members of the committee have rendered their verdicts to the chairman. Each member is given a number known only to the chairman and, instead of signing his name to the verdict, signs as a member of the arbitration committee, No. 3, or No. 5, or whatever it may be.

"After all the reports have been received by the chairman, they are opened, reviewed and a final verdict rendered in accordance with the findings of the majority of the committee. If there are any legal points on which the advice of an attorney is needed, the papers are referred to Curtis Nye Smith, the association counsel.

"In rendering the final verdict, the chairman has copies sent to both interested parties, to the president of our association and to each member of the committee.

"In handling matter in this way there is no chance for any member to be influenced by the views of any other member of the committee, and no chance for hard feelings between a claimant and arbitrators.

How It Works.

"The first claim was received by your committee the last of February, involving $1,132.48. It was adjusted and paid in full during the month of May. It would have been settled sooner had it not been for the fact that before the papers had made their rounds of the committee, all the nurserymen were in the midst of spring packing.

"The second claim was received June 17 and amounted to $216.52. It was passed on by your committee in session here.

"A third claim has been filed with the chairman, but we have not received all the papers, so that we have been unable to take action.

"There has been considerable correspondence in regard to other claims, but they were either adjusted or paid, without the services of our committee. It is the opinion of the arbitration committee that this method of handling claims has been satisfactory and should be continued.

Right or Law.

"In considering the claims filed with your committee, it has been a question whether the decision should be reached strictly from a legal standpoint as we may see it, or whether we shall also consider the moral standpoint, or what is right between man and man. It has been a decision of the committee, however, that most cases that are decided strictly from a legal standpoint are right, and that we must adhere to that principle."

CLEVELAND FLORISTS GET BUSY.

Since Cleveland this autumn is not to repeat last year's flower show, it is interesting to note that a flower exhibition will be one of the features of the Industrial exposition and fair which is to be held at Cleveland, September 2 to 9. The exposition, a sort of grand advertising campaign in behalf of the arts and crafts of Cleveland, will be staged in eight large tents pitched along the Lake Erie shore at Edgewater park. M. A. Vinson, favorably known for his large share in making last fall's flower show the great success it was, is general manager of the fair.

The tent allotted to the flower section is 90x180 feet. In it will be displayed entries of concerns desiring to reach amateurs and private gardeners. Competitive exhibits of private gardeners and amateurs of the public school gardens will be staged. A committee consisting of members of the Cleveland Florists' Club has been appointed to govern the flower show. The committeemen are Timothy Smith, chairman; F. A. Friedley, H. C. Noble, C. B. Wilhelmy, E. A. Bause, O. P. Blackman, G. Jacques, Robert Weeks.

Mr. Vinson is receiving the hearty coöperation of gardeners in and near the city and at the Florists' Club's meeting July 10 he submitted for consideration the premium schedule of the show.

INOCULATING PEAS.

Referring to the question of inoculating sweet peas, mentioned in a recent issue of The Review, I have experimented with Nitragin, both on garden peas and also on sweet peas. On the former it has increased the yield by fifty per cent. I am hoping to have good results on sweet peas, which, however, are not yet in flower, but are looking healthy in every way. The variety of garden pea tested was Gradus.

HOUSTON NOT NEAR MEXICO.

We have had a number of inquiries regarding the border situation in Texas. In the first place, I want to state that Houston is from 400 to 1,000 miles from the border. We hear less about border troubles here than you do in the north and east, so dismiss from your minds the thought that we are anywhere near the troubled territory.

While the railroads are busy at this time transporting troops, passenger traffic is not hampered and by convention time all the troops will be on the border. Houston, with its seventeen railroads, is equal to any emergency. The S. A. F. members coming to Houston will not be affected by the movement of the troops.

We are much elated over the prospects of a large attendance. The south will turn out in full force. President MacRorie advises me that he will have two Pullman cars from California. Secretary Young says we will have a good delegation from the east. I understand there will be a large attendance from the central states. With our convention garden a success and with reservations for trade exhibits pouring in and bright prospects for a large attendance (watch for the entertainment program we have lined up), you have every assurance of a grand time in Houston this summer.

The convention executive committee is composed of the following: R. C. Kerr, chairman, Houston; Henry Greve, Dallas; L. J. Tackett, Fort Worth; Louis Oesch, Dallas; F. W. Hensel, College Station; T. J. Wolfe, Waco; J. E. McAdam, Fort Worth; H. O. Hannah, Sherman; Bird Forrest, Waxahachie; Chris Hauser, San Antonio, and E. E. Stone, Dickinson.

The entertainment for the visiting members has just about been completed and we have outlined a program that will keep the members on the go pretty much all the time, except when they are attending to business. The following is a general outline as to what we expect to give the visiting delegates: A trip down the ship channel to the San Jacinto battle grounds, barbecue and other refreshments to be served on the grounds, and a program of sports will be prepared to entertain the visitors. We also will make a trip to Galveston, take a dip in the surf and dinner at the Hotel Galvez afterwards. Also a band concert at the convention garden. Will have a special moving picture that will be of interest to the S. A. F. members. The usual automobile ride over the city will not be overlooked in Houston. We have possibly more paved streets, more beautiful homes and more beautiful suburbs than any other city of its size in the country. There are other side attractions that will make our entertainment worth while.

Plans have been completed for a dinner in Dallas on the evening of July 17, honoring John Young on his visit to Texas. Mr. Young comes a little ahead of time to complete arrangements for the convention in Houston. After a day or so in Dallas, Secretary Young and a number of others will visit some of the cities in the state by automobile, provided the weather permits. We expect to work in the interest of the society while on this trip. Indications are that Mr. Young will be given a rousing reception on his visit to Dallas, and while this is a north Texas meeting, it is anticipated that a number of florists from other parts of the state will visit Dallas for this occasion.

R. C. Kerr.

BOUVARDIAS IN THE SOUTH.

To obtain the best results from bouvardias in the south, I find it a good plan to grow them in the house during the entire summer. The rainfall in the south is uncertain in many sections, so that, unless there is some system of irrigation, the young plants make little growth outdoors. They are easily cared for indoors and make satisfactory growth. The last pinching may be made the last of August, or later, according to the time the flowers are wanted.

L.

Paris, France.—The judges of the new roses in the Bagatelle trial garden met June 15 and awarded the gold medal to Rose Mrs. Wemyss Quinn, raised by Alex. Dickson & Sons, Newtownards, Ireland.

Harlington, England.—In one respect, at least, business is good. Numerous American growers of cyclamen, who for many years have used some special strain of German seed, are abandoning hope of receiving their usual supply this season and are turning to British cyclamen specialists for seeds.

Berlin, Germany.—If American seedsmen and valley pip importers fail to receive prompt reply to recent letters to German correspondents, they should bear in mind that the British removed all the first-class mail, over 900 sacks, from the Scandinavian-American liner United States, from New York for Copenhagen, at Kirkwall July 1.

Quedlinburg, Germany.—David Sachs is advised that energetic measures on the part of American consignees have resulted in the release by the British of most of the German flower seeds taken from the parcel post mails of the S. S. United States, but that certain shipments in behalf of which the American consignees made no effort have been condemned and sold by the prize court.

Rotterdam, Holland.—The steamer Ryndam, of the Holland-America line, which cleared New York June 17, arrived July 5 with a large hole in its forepeak, caused by striking a rock near Kirkwall during a dense fog. As a result the steamer's next sailing date will be postponed, to allow for repairs. The Ryndam is one of the principal carriers of horticultural supplies routed to the United States via Rotterdam.

Ghent, Belgium.—H. Van Orshoven reports as follows on conditions here: "Although no nurseries were destroyed, the Belgian plant industry is absolutely dependent on exports and produce worth about 15,000,000 frs. is sold abroad every year. A small amount of trade was done last season with allied and neutral countries, but the traffic was exceedingly difficult and expensive. All packages had to be taken to Holland, shifted and reshifted from boat to boat, sometimes delayed through lack of convenience, sometimes, too, because the formalities required could not be fulfilled in time. It is well known that several consignments were lost in harbor because the permits for import could not be obtained soon enough. Export to neutral countries is allowed by Great Britain under the condition that the money is kept in an English bank until the end of the war, but at the same time the Germans compel the exporter to bring the money into Belgium. In such circumstances consignments to America and Scandinavia are made impossible, for nobody is able nowadays to pay twice for what he buys. As regards sales to allied countries, it should be mentioned that the British government recently stopped all imports of plants. What is then to become of the Ghent nurseries? It is obvious that they have to keep their stocks too long, spending money and labor on them, while many plants lose their value. The raising of new plants is almost impossible. Not only will the Ghent people have lost the years of the war, but later on many houses will be depleted of salable stock. I should not be surprised if they prove to be among those who have suffered most through the conflict."

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Business has settled down to the regular summer demands. Trade was somewhat sluggish last week and much stock was left over daily. This, of course, goes to the garbage barrel, as a new supply of flowers is offered every morning. Carnations still are arriving in large quantities, as well as roses. A falling off of lilies, sweet peas and valley was noted. Asters have made their appearance, and with an increased supply of fine gladioli almost any demand can be met. Orchids and Beauties of good quality are plentiful. We have had only a few days of real summer weather, which accounts for the fine quality in carnations and roses. The demand for outdoor flowers is only fair. There are quantities of all hardy flowers.

The Club's Field Day.

The Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club has arranged for a field day at Sewickley, Wednesday, July 19. Trains will leave Union station at 9:20 a. m., city time, and the Federal street station at 9:25 a. m.

George Wessenauer and his committee will meet this train at Sewickley and arrange for the transportation to the Sewickley Heights territory and provide for a noonday luncheon for all members of the club who notify him by Monday, July 17. The Sewickley members of the club are anxious to show the boys all the places in the district that can be visited in the short time allotted. Send your card today to George Wessenauer, Sewickley, Pa.

Various Notes.

Many of the florists are on their vacations. Samuel Capes is at Atlantic City; H. P. Joslin is visiting his brother at Oxford, Mass.; W. T. Usinger is at Rugglers Beach, O. Fred Riegelmeier and family motored east and intend to stop at Atlantic City during the next two weeks. David Hill is at Wildwood, N. J.

The large growers report a shortage in labor and many offer good positions to men who "know how." Some of the retailers are already working on Christmas novelties.

F. J. Farney, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, was here last week showing an attractive line of novelties.

George Hampton, representing the Joseph G. Neidinger Co., of Philadelphia, is here showing a line of baskets and supplies.

Augustus Frishkorn, manager of Beckert's Seed Store, is on a business trip through West Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Ludwig are planning to attend the S. A. F. convention at Houston, Tex. Mrs. Ludwig, her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Ludwig, have returned from an automobile trip to Cleveland. They stopped at Silver Lake park en route. The young couple expect to leave next week for their vacation at Crystal Beach, Fort Erie, which is opposite Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius W. Ludwig will leave the latter part of this month for an eastern trip, which will include Baltimore, Trenton, N. J., New York city, Rochester and Buffalo. They will visit the family of the late William F. Kasting while in Buffalo.

During the absence of H. P. Joslin, T. P. Langhans, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., will assume the secretarial duties connected with the Florists' Club. W. A. C.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Business is slowly dropping down to the customary summer dullness. There have been few arrivals of new items. Business is considered ahead of that of last year and last week there was considerable funeral work. Aside from that, there was little doing.

There are extra good Beauties to be had, but the demand for them is rather erratic and those of poorer quality are inclined to hang somewhat. There still are good Killarney and White Killarney roses arriving; also Ophelia, Russell and Francis Scott Key roses of good color and good length of stems. Of course, there is an unlimited supply of shorter roses, which really never expect to sell out. Taking into consideration that it now is the middle of July, roses have sold extraordinarily well.

Carnations also have held up well. This, of course, is due to the cool weather, there having been no real summer days in Buffalo until last week. Most of the carnations are weak in stem and the blooms small in size. The majority are faded more or less. Now and then there are shipments of remarkably good quality, the blooms being large and perfect and the stem good. These, of course, sell without difficulty.

Easter lilies are plentiful and continue to sell well. Lilium candidum is one of the new arrivals in the market, but it does not sell as a new item usually does; in fact, it is inclined to drag somewhat. The sale of rubrum lilies is nothing special. The supply is as large as ever or, perhaps, larger, and the quality has fallen off. Most of them have short stems and are soft. The status of sweet peas is similar to that of carnations. There is a vast supply of inferior blooms, dotted now and then with excellent quality stock. Valley at last has resumed its old position and sells at its former price, $6 per hundred. Cattleyas are none too plentiful, but more abundant than two weeks ago. There are some good snapdragons, and irises, as usual, are in good demand. Coreopsis, calendulas, cornflowers and yellow daisies constitute the miscellaneous stock, all of which is more or less uncertain of supply because of the varying weather. The supply of greens is more satisfactory.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Ehmann, of Corfu, were visitors here last week.

Otto C. Gillies, head of the bookkeeping staff of W. J. Palmer & Son, is on a vacation trip of two weeks' duration.

Joseph Tallman, with the W. F. Kasting Co., started his vacation July 8.

William Grever finds much recreation in the country, where he and his family have been for several weeks.

At the store of Galley Bros. may be seen a picturesque country scene consisting of a small brook and meadow, with a water mill and farmhouse in the background.

There are numerous window decorations and displays in connection with the Shriners' convention this week. In Palmer's window there was a desert scene, showing an oasis in the center, cactus plants, and, in the distance, a caravan.

C. F. MacDonald, with F. Simpson & Sons, of Toronto, was in town last week.

As yet no date has been set for the florists' picnic, which will be held in July.

A two weeks' vacation began for Edward Walthers, of W. J. Palmer & Son, July 10. A. E.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Bellamy Bros, of Syracuse, N. Y., have experienced a good season. Even now, though late, the demand for plants is healthy. They believe more stock was handled in their city than ever before.

Dobbs & Son, of Auburn, report good business. A crop of tomatoes grown around the uprights of the big carnation houses is bringing high prices. This apparently is a clear profit, as the plants do not seem to affect the carnations. Out-of-town orders are increasing through the wire medium.

The management of the Suskana Greenhouses, of Binghamton, N. Y., has its new houses planted to roses and chrysanthemums. Manager T. W. Hannah, who has spent several years on the Pacific coast, observed that different climatic conditions require different methods of culture. He believes this season's weather is the dullest in his experience.

E. T. McQuivey, of Utica, N. Y., is rebuilding part of his range, following a satisfactory season.

A. & J. Williams, also of Utica, are getting things in shape following the fire that occurred the week before Easter. The property was partly insured, but the inconvenience was as serious as the loss of stock.

John Lawrance, of Ogdensburg, N. Y., pointed out a row of peonies planted by his father fully forty years ago, from which the bulk of the blooms still are gathered, an evidence of the vitality and floriferousness of the variety. Faust is considered the most valuable for the retailers. Mrs. Shawyer is considered a more profitable rose than Killarney, the ratio of blooms being two of the former to one of the latter. Shawyer does well in concrete benches. Radiance and Ophelia also are fine. "No more wooden benches," remarked Mr. Lawrance. "No more fungus. Plants could hardly thrive better than under our conditions."

E. V. B. Felthousen, of Schenectady, N. Y., has all of his chrysanthemums planted, and they look promising. He reports the best season on record.

F. A. Danker, of Albany, N. Y., is adding to his stock of orchids. He is much pleased with the showing made in the nursery department. W. M.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

A good quantity of funeral work, with a fair amount of wedding orders, has made the week a pretty good one. Counter trade, however, is not so large as it might be, owing to the fact that many of the best customers are away at the summer resorts.

There is a large and varied stock to select from. Outdoor stock is arriving fast and good supplies of rambler roses are included in the daily shipments. Carnations are plentiful and sell cheaply. They are getting small, but their quality is good. Beauties are moving fairly well and a good business is being done in other varieties of roses, such as Ward, Ophelia, Russell, My Maryland, Hadley and the Killarneys. Sweetheart roses meet with a fair demand and are much used in bowl and basket work. Gladioli are coming in fast and sell at reasonable figures. Easter lilies are pretty good and sell freely. There is an abundance of good outdoor lilies, which sell well. Valley is plentiful, but is not in great demand. Sweet peas, which have decreased considerably in quantity, are in steady demand. Gypsophilas have arrived and are used freely. Gaillardias, delphiniums, foxgloves, Canterbury bells, irises, snapdragons, Shasta daisies and forget-me-nots are all in their prime now and sell satisfactorily. Some fine gloxinias move freely, but there is a lack of other flowering plants.

Various Notes.

A new icebox has been purchased by the Aster Candy & Flower Store and proves to be quite useful. Business here is good.

J. B. Keller Sons had a beautiful and artistic window display for July 4. It consisted of several flags, with baskets of larkspurs, daisies and red rambler roses, each tied with red, white and blue ribbon.

Charles W. Curtis, of Irondequoit, N. Y., has purchased a new automobile and he made a trip with his family to Troutburg July 4. He reports that business is exceptionally good and he was entirely sold out of bedding stock. He is cutting some fine gladioli.

An unusually attractive window display was seen at the store of E. C. Kaelber, Inc., last week. Its simple, tasteful arrangement made it especially noticeable. Tall vases, with small flags fastened tightly around them, resembled firecrackers. In each vase was a good-sized bouquet of red and white carnations, with blue cornflowers. A large flag was draped from one corner of the window to the other, with fine effect.

The beautifying of Rochester, a scheme devised by the Chamber of Commerce two or three years ago, is becoming quite popular and the committee in charge is working hard to make this season the best ever. The hotels, banks and other public buildings, as well as hundreds of private residences, are looking fine, with the pretty arrangements in window boxes, baskets, etc. Special prizes are being offered and many are entering the contest.

James Vick's Sons are much encouraged by the return of good weather. They, like other seedsmen and growers, suffered heavy losses during the early part of the season and the planting had to be done many times. During the last two weeks much work has been accomplished and the crops are looking better. Business with them is well up to the standard.

H. E. Wilson is cutting some good sweet peas, which sell excellently. He is making a pretty display of cut glass vases, jardinieres and Japanese bowls in his window. H. J. H.

MOBILE, ALA.

The fury and velocity of the recent hurricane was worse than any other storm I have seen during my twenty-two years in Mobile. It was of longer duration. The velocity reached 107 miles per hour—official record—for about five minutes, and averaged about eighty miles for over twelve hours. The damage to florists' establishments here is quite heavy. Oddly enough, it was not serious in its effect on anyone. Few greenhouses are entirely down and comparatively little glass was broken. The loss of outdoor flowers is complete. The Minge Floral Co. reports no houses down and no damage to indoor stock, but some breakage of glass and ventilators. During the early part of the storm, and before telephone connections gave out, the grower, Mr. Hauge, reported one gable down. For twenty hours the proprietors were without news and had resigned themselves to a total loss. The next day the secretary, Mr. Demeranville, reached the range through four feet of water and found Mr. Hauge holding the fort and ready to send a cut to town. The proprietors still are wondering why Providence spared them. Mr. Hauge says he will not try to nail down top ventilators in a hurricane any more, as he was lifted bodily off the ridge and deposited on the ground, which, luckily, was in a semi-liquid condition.

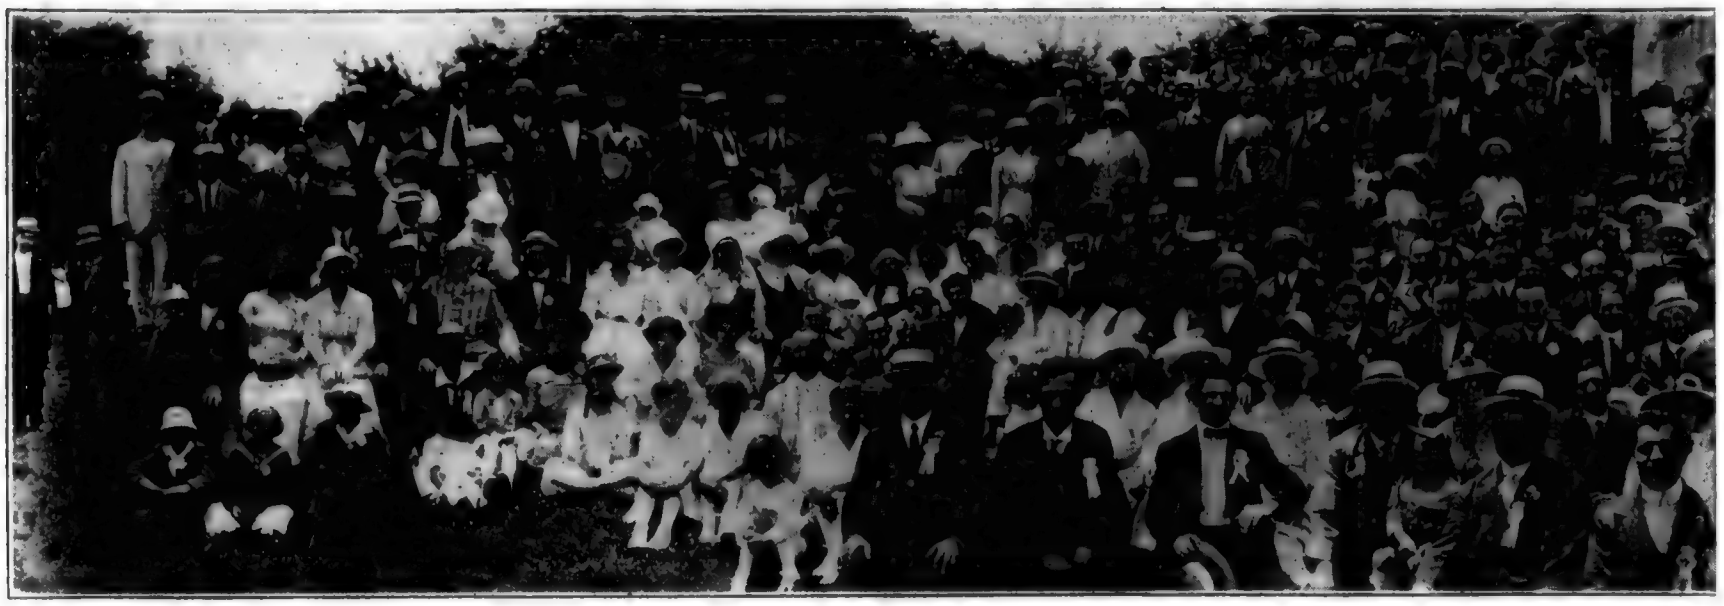
The old concern of C. Ravier & Sons was rather heavily hit. Much glass was broken and the framework of some of the houses somewhat buckled. There was a large loss of outdoor stock. Repair work has been begun, and in a month's time the range will be as good as ever.

The Chatogue Greenhouses, owned by Mrs. F. P. Davis and operated by the Goodbrad Floral Co., are reported to be badly wrecked, with several houses down. I have not been able to verify the report.

The greenhouses of A. Duplan suffered heavily, but less than might have been expected. They are not beyond repair.

The Industrial Gardens are reported to be only slightly damaged. Aside from a large breakage of glass and a total loss of outdoor flowers and plants, the Gem Floral Garden, owned by H. P. Loding, came out of the storm in good shape.

L. Thublin had one house badly wrecked. The truck gardeners in this section have suffered heavily; what the storm did not take, the rains finished. Pecan orchards were badly damaged through defoliation, loss of nuts and breakage. A great many large trees were entirely uprooted. This trouble, coming at a time when the trade was recuperating from two seasons of hard times, due to the effect of the war on the timber and cotton market, has given us florists another lick. The craft, though, takes an optimistic view of the situation and everyone is working hard to meet a boom in business due next fall. H. P. Loding.



Southern readers are invited to send items for this department.

Ada, Okla.—W. E. Pitt has had excellent success with the Godfrey calla in his first season growing it and thinks it much superior to Calla Æthiopica.

Santa Fe, N. M.—At the Clarendon Garden, R. V. Boyle, manager, preparations are being made for giving rose growing a trial this season, a 70-foot house for the purpose now being near completion. The varieties to be tried are Hoosier Beauty, White Killarney, Shawyer, Ophelia and Sunburst. Business becomes better each year.

Bridgeport, Ala.—Five years ago E. D. Morris found a sport in a field of purple Crego asters; it had a white stripe in the center of each petal. After five seasons of careful selection it has developed into a flower of perfect Crego type, deep lavender in color, each petal evenly and distinctly striped white. Mr. Morris believes it has excellent commercial possibilities. His stock consists of 1000 plants.

Houston, Tex.—A stranger to some, but still remembered by many, W. W. Westgate has returned to town after an absence of sixteen years in the west. Those who recall the great storm of 1900—and who does not?—perhaps also will recollect how severely the master elements dealt with the greenhouse range of Mrs. N. E. Westgate & Son, of which firm Mr. Westgate had been the junior partner since he was a boy in short trousers. Mother and son were put out of business by the hurricane and shortly afterwards Mr. Westgate packed his things and departed for Seattle, Wash., from which city, after sixteen years, he has returned to his home town. Mr. Westgate will reënter the florists' business at Houston, maintaining a city sales establishment at the old range, half of which remained, and specializing in hardy outdoor stock on an 8-acre plot on the edge of the city. Mr. Westgate expects to enter the wholesale field later on.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The rose market is fairly steady. The surplus finds buyers at 50 cents per hundred. The best of the roses, selected, sell at $5 per hundred and down, except American Beauties, Hadley, Brunner and Prima Donna. These now arrive in light shipments and Hadley is through for the season. It has made an enviable record. Ophelia is the most popular of the other varieties. The weather has been warm for a week, touching 90 degrees July 8, and the roses especially show the effects of it. The best carnations now arriving do not sell above $1 per hundred. Thousands reached the street merchants as low as $2.50 per thousand. The supply is decreasing rapidly and the carnation's successor, the aster, is already knocking at the door. Some fine peonies from up state reached the market last week and sold slowly at 25 to 35 cents per dozen. The demand is not large enough to encourage the growers to make further shipments.

The best gigas are down to 35 cents again. I have never seen gigas of finer quality than those now arriving. They should bring 50 cents easily. Valley is down to $2.50 per hundred for the best and longiflorums sell at $3 per hundred. Sweet peas will be featured this week because of the convention. A list of the miscellaneous flowers simply would be a repetition of last week's list. The supply includes a score of the outdoor kinds and continues a menace to the regular market.

The Greek-American Outing.

The tenth annual outing of the Greek-American Retail Florists' Association was the most successful ever held by the organization. More than 600 picnickers embarked on the steamer Ajax on the morning of July 6 for the grounds at College Point, L. I. The day was perfect; no accident marred the day's pleasures. The menus were excellent and the athletic games were hotly contested. Dancing was indulged in by the young folks on the return trip.

The officers of the organization are: President, C. Sakelos; vice-president, P. Theophine; treasurer, G. Rondires; secretary, C. Tsoumis; assistant secretary, M. Andriopoulos. The winners in the athletic events were:

Boys' race—Master Laskaris, first; Master Theodoeatos, second.
Girls' race—Miss Carlaftes, first; Miss Wilson, second.
Young women's race—Miss Birnie, first; Miss Nicholas, second.
Married women's race—Mrs. Cardiasnens, first; Mrs. Orth, second.
Young men's race—Mr. Carlaftes, first; Mr. Theodorates, second.
Fat men's race—Mr. Zizos, first; Mr. Carahalios, second.
Broad jump—Mr. Towney, first; Mr. Shericos, second.
Baseball—Greek team, score 6 to 3.
Members' race—C. N. Sakelos, first.

Bowling—N. Denis, first.

Various Notes.

July 14 a jolly company of sweet pea growers leave by boat for Bar Harbor, Me., to attend the convention of the American Sweet Pea Society. Secretary Bunyard spent last week in Newport, R. I., in behalf of the exhibition committee.

The American and Greek-American Retail Florists' Associations met at Breslin hotel, July 11. After the luncheon the regular monthly discussion was enjoyed. President Bowe says that the society is growing in numbers and that several surprises are in store for the trade.

Secretary Young leaves July 13 for Houston, Tex., via St. Louis. Prospects are encouraging for the boat trip of the S. A. F. conventionists from New York to New Orleans, and it also is hoped that those attending from Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia and Boston may decide to join the New York contingent.

William P. Ford is spending his week ends at his farm in Pennsylvania, on which his 200,000 peonies were grown.

W. J. Elliott is on his annual fishing trip, after a strenuous auction season.

Robert MacNiff, accompanied by his family, is enjoying a well earned rest, after the busiest year in his experience.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

July was ushered in with intense summer heat, which affected the florists' business to a considerable extent. Social gatherings are fewer and there are only a small number of weddings at present. Funeral work constitutes the chief demand for cut flowers. The business for the month of June was most satisfactory to all the florists of this city and vicinity, many retailers reporting that the demand went far ahead of that for June of any previous year. Wedding work was heavy and a number of prominent funerals during the month contributed greatly to the big demand, while decorations and counter trade were no small items in the month's business. Fortunately for the florist, the hot weather held off until the last of June.

Stock is quite plentiful and many are using quantities of outdoor flowers to decorate their windows. Dorothy Perkins and Crimson Rambler roses now are in their prime and used in made-up work. Tausendschon roses also are effective. Outdoor gladioli still are scarce, there having been no rainfall for nearly three weeks. There are no peonies at all on the local market. Shasta daisies are of superb quality this year and the list of the varieties of perennials is increasing.

Roses are plentiful and the quality generally is good. American Beauties are to be had only in the medium grades. Carnations are coming into the market in large quantities and they are of good quality for this season of the year. Easter lilies are plentiful and Madonna lilies are in full bloom outdoors. Valley is scarce, but the demand for it has fallen off considerably.

The florists report a prosperous bedding season this year and also a big sale of shrubs, due, no doubt, to the civic beautification movement in this city since last February.

Gypsophila is being used extensively with roses and sweet peas in basket work. Smilax, Asparagus plumosus and adiantum are in good supply.

Various Notes.

A. W. Herre, representing the Poehlmann Bros. Co., of Chicago, was a visitor to this city July 3.

The New Haven Floral Co. is sending some fine Tausendschon roses to this market.

Aaron Shive, of the Flick Floral Co., is busy planting several houses to young Russell and Shawyer rose plants. He is sending some fine French hydrangeas to the downtown conservatory.

The new building of the Flick Floral Co., on Harrison street, is rapidly nearing completion.

Miss Margaret Vesey left July 7 for Mobile, Ala., where she will make an extended visit with her sister, Mrs. Cecil Max.

Will J. Vesey, Jr., has purchased for the firm of W. J. & M. S. Vesey from the George Field Co., of Washington, D. C., a collection of orchid plants at a cost of $15,000. This collection, which consists of all commercial varieties of orchids, will make the Vesey firm the largest producers of orchids in the middle west. The shipment is expected to arrive this week. Temporary quarters will be provided for the orchids until four new houses, each to be 200 feet in length, can be constructed. Work will be begun on the new houses at once.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Shive and their children, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom, motored to Tri Lakes, Ind., to spend the Fourth of July.

The Berrydale Gardens will be moved to this city from their present location at San Jose, Cal. The Berrydale Gardens wholesale and retail calla and freesia bulbs, hybrid tea roses, berry and carnation plants. The gardens are being brought to Fort Wayne through the efforts of the Commercial Club of this city. R. F.

OBITUARY

William Tricker.

William Tricker died of heart failure in his greenhouses at Arlington, N. J., July 11.

Mr. Tricker was born in Scotland and was 64 years of age. His youth was spent in gardening in Great Britain, his natural abilities running toward aquatics. Coming to America, he was, for some years prior to starting in business for himself, in charge of the aquatic department of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., at Riverton, N. J. While he did not by any means confine himself to aquatics, his special knowledge of water lilies probably exceeded that of any other commercial man in America; he raised and introduced a number of unusually meritorious new nymphæas and has written voluminously on the subject. In his recent business he had done landscape work as far west as Chicago, where one of his sons, W. E. Tricker, now with Holm & Olson, St. Paul, recently was employed.

The funeral was Masonic. Mr. Tricker was a member of the New York Florists' Club and of the Council of the Horticultural Society of New York. He was a member of the S. A. F., a frequent attendant at its conventions and an exhibitor at its national shows.

Mr. Tricker leaves a widow, three sons and three daughters. The sons were educated as their father was educated, in the school of European gardening experience, and doubtless will carry on the business.

Henry Niemeyer.

Henry Niemeyer, a grower of Kirkwood, Mo., died suddenly, July 6, of apoplexy. Many of the local growers and St. Louis florists attended the funeral, which was held from the Niemeyer residence at Kirkwood.

Edward J. Harmon.

Edward J. Harmon, aged 65 years, president of the E. J. Harmon Co., of Portland, Me., died suddenly last week from an attack of heart disease. He attended a theater during the early part of the evening and it was within a few minutes after he reached home that he was stricken.

Edward Johnson Harmon was a native of Portland, the son of John and Phoebe Harmon. He was in the florists' business for many years. His wife survives him, as well as three sons, Harry, William and Chester Harmon, and a daughter, Mrs. D. Lewis.

Edward M. Bogie.

Edward M. Bogie, a well known grower of Jersey City, N. J., died last week from a complication of diseases. He was in his seventy-fourth year and had been in the business twenty-five years. He was unmarried.

Albert Fregosi.

Albert Fregosi, a San Francisco florist, was instantly killed, his wife, a child or two and others were injured in varying degrees at 7 o'clock, July 4, when their automobile skidded on the state highway at San Antone bridge, which separates Marin and Sonoma counties. The Fregosi family had been staying at Ukiah, Mendocino county, during the previous weeks, and were on their way back to San Francisco in Severino Giampolini's automobile. At the south side of the San Antone bridge the car turned out to pass another automobile going in the same direction. This took the Giampolini machine into the soft dirt at the side of the roadway. It skidded, a wheel flew off and all the occupants were hurled to the ground. Passers-by picked up the one dead and seven injured and rushed them to the Novato sanatorium, six miles away.

A peculiar feature of the accident was the fact that the Fregosi baby, 15 months of age, was overlooked when the rest of the party was picked up. An occupant of another automobile, passing the wreck three-quarters of an hour later, happened to look over the fence, and there discovered the baby, unconscious, lying where he had been hurled at least fifteen feet from the Giampolini car. Not knowing the identity of the child, the motorists took him to San Rafael. He was not identified until hospital attaches read an account of the accident in the newspapers. The injured were removed the following day to St. Mary's hospital, in San Francisco, where Mrs. Fregosi was reported seriously hurt.

Albert Fregosi, who met his death, was 37 years of age. He had been a partner of J. G. Parodi in the firm of Parodi & Fregosi, which conducted a flower store at 1215 McAllister street, San Francisco, for about ten years.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha.

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THERE is, especially in the east, a surplus of geraniums, but it mostly is stock that was not in salable condition until after the peak of the season.

OVER in Paris they have awarded the Bagatelle gold medal to a new rose called Mrs. Wemyss Quinn. Unless we miss (!) it greatly, the man who named it justified himself with the old quotation about the fragrance of the flower under any alternative cognominal appellation.

THE surpluses of bedding stock on hand after the largest season in the history of the trade indicate that production has reached a point where effort should not be so centered on working up stock as to ignore the necessity of working up an outlet; up to a certain point people will search out a place to buy, but above that buyers must be sought. Most florists still wait for buyers.

Now that there are automobiles enough to carry at one time over one-sixth of the population of the United States, with every town of any consequence holding frequent parades of decorated cars, The Review receives so many photographs of this character that, were any considerable proportion of them printed, there would be space for little else in the picture line. Of the thousands of cars that are decorated not many make work for the florist and most of those that show the professional hand carry principally artificial flowers. But recently at Portland, Ore., for the rose festival, Clarke Bros. decorated two cars so elaborately that they attracted unusual attention; The Review has seen few finer. One received the grand prize, the other first prize in the class for public schools.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

THREE YEARS.

Scott, S. B., Zumbrota, Minn.

TWO YEARS.

Martin, Ira G., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.
Murley, J. H., Cleveland, O.
Pfeiffer & Son, Winona, Minn.
Boldt-Lundy, Denver, Colo.
Huebner, H., Groton, Mass.
Winans, Frank, Petoskey, Mich.
Jones, F. C., Warren, O.
Campbell, R. M., Punxsutawney, Pa.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

A PRIORI.

Back in the good old college days we were taught that, a priori, given certain definite causes, the effect could be reckoned with certainty; or conversely, that certain effects indicated certain definite causes. So here's the cause:

You don't have to tell a pretty girl she's beautiful, she knows it; still, she likes to listen. Nor do we need to tell The Review how good it is, everybody knows it; but its friends like to listen, and so do I.—Edward Snow, Sayre, Pa., July 4, 1916.

It is easy, therefore, to reckon the effect. Here it is:

I have been much pleased with the business my ad in The Review has brought me this season.—Glenn E. Moore, Rushville, Ind., July 7, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

REVEALS A TRADE SECRET.

In the Orpet trial at Waukegan, Ill., where the evidence has shown that a girl died of potassium poisoning and the effort has been to show, on one side, that Will Orpet administered the drug obtained from his father's supply of fumigant and, on the other, that it was self-administered, there was a sensation July 6, when it was shown that sodium cyanide is sold in the drug trade for potassium cyanide; three chemists and a drug salesman calmly testified that the substance in the Orpet greenhouse was not potassium cyanide at all, but sodium cyanide.

Robert J. Hevoner is an employee of the Fuller-Morrison Co., wholesale druggists, Chicago. He said he had sold the elder Orpet the sodium cyanide. Then he revealed a trade secret. In the ten years that he has been connected with the firm, he declared, he has never seen an ounce of potassium cyanide on the shelves of the company's building. Customers who ask for potassium cyanide receive sodium cyanide, and it answers their purposes perfectly. At no drug store in the middle west, so far as Mr. Hevoner knew, is potassium cyanide to be obtained. In other words, Orpet, if he had asked for potassium cyanide at any drug store, would have stood an extremely slim chance of getting it.

It was a stroke for the defense. Also it shows that florists are using sodium cyanide for fumigating where they think it is potassium cyanide, but it also shows that one is as good as the other. There is, however, considerable difference in price.

CROPS IMPROVE.

The government's July crop report is encouraging to the country at large and especially to florists in the grain states, who care little about conditions in the manufacturing east, their season being assured by good crops in their own district. All grain crops showed a marked improvement in June, the weather being much more favorable than it was earlier in the season. The gain is put in figures this way:

Crop	Condition July 1	June 1
Winter wheat	489,030,000 bu.	469,066,000 bu.
Spring wheat.	269,517,000 bu.	246,000,000 bu.
Corn	2,866,000,000 bu.	.....
Oats	1,316,867,000 bu.	1,254,834,000 bu.
Barley	205,000,000 bu.	189,000,000 bu.

Corn shows an acreage and indicated yield larger than a year ago, but the other crops are not yet quite up to last year's record.

FORMALDEHYDE FOR SPOT.

A Beauty grower who has had trouble with black spot asks The Review if anyone has successfully used formaldehyde in checking black spot in American Beauty. There is no record in The Review office of such a use. If any reader can give directions, they will no doubt be of general interest.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Summer conditions prevail on the Chicago market. There is an abundance of stock, but much of it is of inferior quality. The difficulty seems to lie in the fact that too many growers have held off later than usual in replanting or drying off old plants, with the result that a large quantity of low grade stock is coming onto the market. But poor stock is not the only kind on the market. Good, clean, young stock is arriving and moves with little effort.

Beauties are scarce, but of all kinds except young stock there is fully enough for the demand. Young Beauties, of which there are far too few, are in good demand. Of other roses Russell leads, with a really brisk demand. This, of course, has been strengthened by the arrival of young stock. Ophelia takes second place without dispute. In spite of the large supply of roses, open, short and indifferent, the greater part of them are moved, though at a low average figure.

There is a decided oversupply of poor carnations. Some of them are jobbed off, others move slowly through the regular channels and the rest do not move at all. To vary the monotony, valley is meeting all requirements, but now that the wedding season is past, no one seems to care. Easter lilies are abundant, but move slowly. Cattleyas are still in small supply, but the fact creates small comment, as there is little demand for them and prices are down. Good sweet peas clear regularly, but most of the receipts are short, inferior stock. For this, there is practically no demand. Daisies, with the exception of Shasta, are moving slowly. Snapdragon, too, is inclined to drag. Good gladioli are scarce and in moderate demand. Cold storage peonies, though still in the market, are on their last legs. There have been no appreciable receipts of late outdoor peonies. Feverfew, gypsophila, candytuft, cornflower, coreopsis, gaillardia and many other summer flowers are available in quantity if one is inclined to buy them. Lilium candidum is plentiful and fails to clear. A few early asters are seen in the market, but, while some of them are good, most of them are of an unsatisfactory quality. Some dahlias, too, have made their appearance, but not much can be said of their quality.

Greens are in good supply. Home-grown stock is preferred, as the southern stock is not reaching the market in sufficiently marketable shape.

Various Notes.

The remodeling of the building provided for in the May 1 renewal of the W. J. Smyth lease has been begun. The double store heretofore has fronted on Thirty-first street. After remodeling the store will face Michigan avenue, with splendid window space.

These are days of surprises in the J. A. Budlong wholesale house. Fred C. Price was quietly married to Miss Ella Scholz July 12. They are spending their honeymoon in the Wisconsin lake region. Roswell Schupp, son of Manager Philip C. Schupp, was married June 28 to Leta Schaefer. They went to Lake Geneva for a week.

It is reported at Erne & Klingel's, where W. F. Dunteman, of Bensenville, makes his Chicago headquarters, that Mr. Dunteman is in the Oak Park hospital for a stay of at least six weeks. The grower is a member of a volunteer fire department at Bensenville and in responding to an alarm July 5, suffered injury to the ligaments of his right leg that will be slow to repair.

The result of the election of officers of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, July 6, was to retain all present incumbents and add one new one. They are: E. Meuret, president; Fred Schramm, vice-president; Charles McCauley, treasurer; George Weiland, secretary. Paul R. Klingsporn was retained as manager. John Walsh will begin a two weeks' vacation July 15. Miss Florence Scriven, whose vacation began July 8, has gone to visit a brother in Phoenix, Ariz.

N. J. Wietor comments on the brisk demand for chrysanthemum plants. He says Wietor Bros. never have had better business in this department, the cut back plants selling specially well.

After being associated with Mount Greenwood cemetery for nearly fifteen years, A. R. Gross is leaving that employment in order to open an office in Detroit for the practice of his profession as a landscape gardener. He carries with him the good wishes of all with whom he has been associated. Mr. Gross has had a most thorough training and experience in both the artistic and the administrative side of the work and will remain connected with Mount Greenwood as consulting landscape gardener.

Arthur, the 10-year-old son of George Weiland, of Evanston, suffered a serious accident last week. He threw a lighted firecracker into the air. It fell into a flower pot and failed to explode promptly. As the boy looked into the

A material addition to the space available to Pyfer & Co. has been made this month by the expiration of a lease held by a neighbor. The store has been enlarged by about 400 square feet.

It has been reported by some that there is little call for bay trees this season, but J. P. Degnan states that Winterson's Seed Store has sold out every plant of the recent importation except a few of the smallest size. Some of the plants were rather badly browned on their slow journey from Ghent, but recovered wonderfully when taken to E. F. Winterson's home place on the west side for special treatment.

The entire force of Zech & Mann, accompanied by Harry Manheim, of Hoerber Bros., motored to Maywood July 9 to look over the new greenhouses of the Albert F. Amling Co.

August 1 will find John Farrell, 4645 South State street, headed for the Indiana lake region for a month's outing.

Vacationers are coming and going at Bassett & Washburn's. Allen Gerling has gone to the Wisconsin lakes for a week, and Mrs. Horton has returned from a most enjoyable visit in California.

Ed Vilter, of the Zech & Mann force, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his mother July 8. The funeral services were held July 11.

Last week Joseph Ziska, Jr., and wife motored to Algonquin and Carey Station, Ill. July 15 he will take his father and his brothers, Raymond and Eugene, on a motor trip to Cedar Rapids, Ia. He boasts that his car has traveled 26,000 miles with only one overhauling.

The wilds of northern Michigan possess great charm for Max Ringier, of Kennicott Bros. Co., so he slipped away from the market July 12 to visit them.

Kansas City, Mo., is the vacation ground of Adam Kasper, of the George Reinberg sales force. The next on the list to enjoy an outing is Frank Hagen, who will go to Fox Lake.

As a result of stepping into a hole while attempting to board a street car last week, D. D. P. Roy is confined to his home with a badly sprained ankle.

Though he isn't going to call it a vacation, Allie Zech and his wife will motor to Rock Island, July 15, for a visit with relatives. Mike Freres returns from his vacation July 16.

A week's vacation at Fox Lake will begin for Peter Hiles, with D. E. Freres, July 17.

Visitors to the A. L. Randall Co. will miss a familiar face for two weeks. Miss Agnes Corrigan, the telephone operator, has gone on her vacation. Her place is being filled by Miss French.

Last week was reported by Henry M. Hirsch as his heaviest in funeral work since opening the store at 37 East Van Buren street.

Out on Gunnison street, Peter Pearson, who has had his best season to date, is beginning the erection of another greenhouse that will add twenty-five per cent to his facilities. A special storage house for bulbs also is to be built.

Felix Reichling spent July 10 at Dubuque, Ia.

Hydrangeas have been a leader with the J. F. Kidwell Co. this spring, the big glass frontage on Michigan avenue having been gay with them ever since Easter. Of the large number of plants flowered only a few remain.

July 8 there was a celebration at Morton Grove, for Guy W. French, who still makes his home there, was born that day in 1877.

Fiber tape for tying packages is now being manufactured up to one-half inch, for those who desire something different. The usual width now used is three-sixteenths of an inch, according to the Chicago Printed String Co.

Members of the trade who have heard Miss Latham, of the Chicago Grand Opera Co., singing in Ravinia park may be interested to learn that she is a daughter of Ralph Latham, a well known Minneapolis florist.

After a six weeks' vacation in the East, the wife of J. E. Quallich, head of the plant department of the A. L. Randall Co., has returned to the city. Mr. Quallich will leave July 15 for a Great Lakes trip. Mathew Schilz, of the green goods department, will leave the last of July for Virginia, where he will make a trip through the boxwood and holly country, contracting for the concern's future supply.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The wholesale commission cut flower houses are active during the time flowers are arriving and for a short while after. Then they become dull, with little splashes of activity now and then. The retail stores are extremely quiet, as a rule, a quietness that is broken by a mail or telephone order or the visit of a customer, which causes life and movement for a time. This is as much as can be expected in summer, except at rare intervals, when hurry-up calls for absent members of the force and for supplies of flowers make it possible to fill a good-sized order in proper style and on time. Perhaps the actual conditions of the market may be clearly portrayed by saying that the seller is dreadfully afraid to miss a sale of his flowers, lest no one else may want them, while a buyer is fortunate to find exactly what he wants when he wants it. Of course, this refers to the ordinary buyer, not to those located within a stone's throw of the greatest flower-shipping center in the east.

More interest centers about valley than any other flower. While $6 per hundred still is asked and obtained, it is not the ruling price that it was one week ago. This is partly owing to a weaker market, partly to some inferior valley. Cattleyas are steadily moving from the abundant to the scarce side, the price advancing to keep time. Sweet peas have suffered from the hot weather. Easter lilies are important flowers now. Carnations are plentiful one day, scarce the next. Roses have been plentiful right along, except white. Gladioli are an increasingly important factor; the local outdoor crop is not in yet. Hollandia is about over; Pink Beauty is plentiful. Asters have come. They are in demand, although the quality gives room for wishing.

Topic of the Hour.

Joseph Heacock believes that his record book has saved his company thousands of dollars. This is an opportune time for starting such a book if you do not already keep one. It means that every variety of plant or flower grown is charged with its share of the expenses and credited with its returns. In this way and in this way only can it be determined what varieties pay. Every true grower has his favorites. While the rule to grow the variety that does best with you is a good one, appearances are sometimes deceptive. Figures carefully kept are a much safer guide than impressions. Sometimes crops mature too slowly. Sometimes the market for them is uncertain. Sometimes prices are too low. All these things show in the figures, though they may not be clearly recalled at the end of the season. Each variety should be subjected to a rigorous scrutiny. Just what it costs to produce, just what it yielded should be clearly shown. Should it fall below a fair profit it should be discarded for something better, unless there is some excellent reason for giving it a further trial.

Where a number of crops are grown in one house, either at the same time or in succession, each crop should be charged with its share of the expense. Cost of stock is first considered, then the size of space and the time that

or, You Are the Judge

¶ The true rule in determining the qualities of a basket is not to conclude whether it has any bad qualities, for there are few baskets that have real bad qualities; almost every basket has a combination of good and bad qualities. The rule that should be followed is to use your best judgment in the different lines you have handled to determine which have the more good than bad qualities in them.

¶ We naturally claim our baskets have more good qualities for the money than any other, but, as you are the buyer, you of course must be the judge. You cannot judge without evidence of the article. If there is another florist in your city, ask him; or, still better, get in a small line of our baskets.

¶ Our line is upon trial, and we anxiously await your verdict.

space is occupied. For instance, if it costs $300 a year to run a greenhouse, counting labor, fuel, wear and tear and interest on investment, and $150 worth of Paper White bulbs occupy one-quarter of that house for three months, then the Paper Whites have cost $168.75, with a fair share of the cost of the taxes to be added. There is an objection to this plan on the ground that space is more valuable during certain months than during others. Allowances can be made for this by requiring a larger profit during the best months. The records can be readily kept on cards and then entered in a record book. When systematically kept they will be apt to stop leaks and go a good way toward increasing profits.

The Close of a Notable Career.

Many men and women were gathering at a homelike country residence in a town of eastern New Jersey on the afternoon of July 5. Earnest-looking men and women, evidently from many localities and many walks of life, drawn together by a common purpose. That purpose was to pay their last tribute of respect to an honored friend, to Walter P. Stokes, taken from them in the midst of life and activity while on a fishing trip in Maine; the parting had come in a moment. This was their farewell.

As the friends gather in the house and on the porch there is time to give an idea of the complexion of the gathering. Here is William F. Dreer, dignified and courteous of manner; nearby is Frederick J. Michell, whose easy carriage gives little token of his load of cares. On the porch is Joseph Heacock, famous for his cultural skill, while greeting him with a firm handshake is Leo Niessen, a leader in the commission world. These four names will suffice to show that the best men in seeds, plants and flowers were present among the friends of Walter P. Stokes.

A kindly, hearty, human man—that was Walter P. Stokes, one who threw the spirit of comradeship into his business life to a degree that made meeting him, even for a few moments, a pleasure. Builder of a large seed house, owner of the Floracroft Gardens, importer and forcer of lily of the valley,

Walter P. Stokes accomplished much as a seedsman and as a florist. Best of all, he left a name that will long be cherished with affectionate regard by all who knew him.

The Richboro Fete.

J. G. Neidinger gave a wonderful day's outing July 4 to employees of the J. G. Neidinger Co., at his summer residence. The employees were taken in touring cars to the country home, at Richboro. The party of fun-lovers arrived at 8 o'clock and immediately set out to look over the town.

A Fourth of July parade was arranged, in which about fifty young folks took part. Mrs. Neidinger, garbed in red, white and blue, represented Columbia. The draped flag around Columbia was upheld on each side by Mrs. Neidinger's daughters, Eleanor and Leona. From the Neidinger home the parade progressed along the main road, stopping at various places to join with other folks in national songs. Mr. Neidinger, the captain, was presented with two bouquets by residents of Richboro.

After a hearty meal on the Neidinger lawn, games were arranged by Miss Laura Ade, in which old and young joined heartily. A huckleberry pie contest was an important feature. Ten of the jolliest took part, the prize being won by Mrs. Edna Schmellick. In the evening the lawn was illuminated with Japanese lanterns, and the firing of fireworks closed the exercises of a most glorious and sane Fourth. Prizes were awarded Hazel Moyer, Lillian Vogt, Eva Smith, Emma Fisher, Lillian Koenig, Mrs. Neidinger, Harold Schmellick and Ruth Rank.

Various Notes.

It is announced that the greenhouse business which was conducted by the late Walter P. Stokes, under the name of Floracroft Gardens, at Moorestown, N. J., will be continued by Mrs. Walter P. Stokes, Edward Ross and Thomas Potts, exactly as in the past. The Floracroft Gardens are noted for their fine valley, French and Dutch bulbs, Easter plants, ferns, lilies and bedding and vegetable plants.

The Market.

So far, this month has been fairly busy, as there have been several large funerals. Plenty of outdoor stock is seen everywhere, especially coreopsis, cornflowers and larkspurs. Sweet peas are extremely plentiful and of extra good quality. The indoor-grown gladioli are in unusually low supply. There still are good carnations and good and poor roses arrive, some varieties holding up better than others.

Various Notes.

Henry Smith reports twelve weddings in one day.

Arthur F. Crabb made several large pieces and numerous sprays for a prominent funeral July 8.

Eli Cross reports business as being especially good.

The Market.

The customary period of summer deadness now rules in the market. There are no stable prices and far more flowers arrive than can be disposed of. Roses, with the arrival of really hot weather, have rapidly declined in quality. Their numbers also are materially reduced. Prices are low; in fact, no reasonable offer can be refused under present conditions. Carnations still arrive in large numbers and of fine quality, but buyers fight shy of them and even at existing low prices many are wasted. Sweet peas from under glass are about over, but there are liberal shipments of good quality from outdoors, far more than can be sold. Callas are over. Lilies have shortened, but there is little call for them. Peonies are done, but there is a good variety of other hardy, herbaceous flowers. Gypsophila elegans is seen in quantity and sells tolerably well. Gypsophila paniculata also is coming in.

There is a good supply of the large-flowered gladioli, but they sell indifferently. The small gladioli and Spanish irises are over. Sweet sultans, blue cornflowers and Canterbury bells sell moderately and are freely used in window decorations. Cattleyas are in shorter supply. The majority bring $3 to $4 per dozen and are mainly C. Gaskelliana. There is little call for green stock.

The Sweet Pea Show.

The dates of the show, July 8 and 9, proved too early for most growers of sweet peas in the vicinity of Boston, and exhibitors came mostly from Lenox, Pittsfield and Newport. While there were rather fewer exhibits than usual, the quality was unusually high, flowers showing little signs of the protracted spell of rainy weather. The awards and winning varieties in the leading classes were as follows:

Twenty-five sprays, white—S. W. Carlquist, gardener to Mrs. Robert Winthrop, Lenox, Mass., first, with Constance Hinton; Edwin Jenkins, Lenox, Mass., second, with Edna May Improved.

Twenty-five crimson or scarlet—Edwin Jenkins, first, with Sunproof Crimson; S. W. Carlquist, second, with Scarlet Emperor.

Twenty-five carmine—S. W. Carlquist, first, with Rosabelle; Edwin Jenkins, second, with George Herbert.

Twenty-five yellow—E. Edwards, gardener to A. N. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass., first, with Mrs. Dameron; James Watt, gardener to Mrs. W. G. Weld, second, with Mrs. Dameron.

Twenty-five blue—S. W. Carlquist, first, with Blue Monarch; Edwin Jenkins, second, with Blue Monarch.

a visit to the estate of Walter Hunnewell, at Wellesley, where T. D. Hatfield is superintendent. The rhododendrons, azaleas and kalmias, which are features here, had passed, but herbaceous plants were in fine condition, while trees, shrubs and lawns had an exceptional luxuriance, due to the frequent and copious rainfalls. The old greenhouses here are being removed and foundations for a large and up-to-date range, to be erected by the King Construction Co., are completed.

Henry Penn says he never enjoyed himself more than at the recent advertising men's convention at Philadelphia. He made side trips to Washington and Baltimore while there. William Penn and his family are spending the month of July at Casco bay, Me. John Wilson, one of the staff, is spending his vacation at Atlanta, Ga. A. Tipton is at Pittsburgh, Pa. Rabbits playing in a window in which a rock-bordered stream flows, the ground cover of wood moss, a pool containing goldfish, and other back-in-the-country features, appeal to passers-by strongly.

David Welch, of Welch's, is spending a few weeks' vacation in Maine and will indulge in his usual equestrian exercise. Frank Connolly, one of the staff, is spending his vacation in New Hampshire. Welch's are getting some fine shipments of Cattleya Gaskelliana.

Charles Holbrow, of Brighton, has finished planting his roses, 10,000 in number, including Ophelia, Francis Scott Key and Killarney. He has a large planting of his new seedling, which is a cross between Christie-Miller and Richmond and which is well liked by all who have seen it.

Peter Fisher has finished planting a large house of roses. These he can use mostly for his local retail trade. He has his carnations pulled out and has started replanting. Stock in the fields has made a splendid growth of late. Some of his best outdoor sweet peas are spoiled by recent torrential rains. July 3, for instance, we had two inches of rain in a little over thirty minutes.

All stateroom reservations have been sold for the outing of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, July 14, to Bar Harbor, Me., in connection with the exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society.

Martin Wax, of Wax Bros., and Mrs. Wax, are at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City, for a fortnight, and will later go to Maine for some salmon fishing. For the funeral of Jeremiah Williams, at Phillips Beach, Mass., July 2, this firm had one of its heaviest orders. June business was splendid. In window decorations delphiniums, phloxes, gladioli, nymphæas, Canterbury bells, sweet sultans and sweet peas are used to good advantage.

Patrick Welch is spending his vacation at Old Orchard Beach, Me. July 8 I noted at his store a fine lot of the new Chinese lily, myriophyllum.

At Galvin's, on Park street, the window decorations were pleasing and well

One window was devoted to nymphæas, with a background of ferns and palms. In another a large and striking vase contained a mixture of Anthurium Andræanum and hybrid delphiniums.

S. J. Goddard believes in early planting of carnations. All his old stock is thrown out and planting of young stock commenced July 10. He is planting Nancy quite heavily this season. He finds it holds its color evenly during hot weather.

The American Gladiolus Society will hold its annual show and convention in Horticultural hall August 11 to 13, in conjunction with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. There are thirty classes devoted to gladioli alone, and a big exhibition is anticipated.

Henry J. Haas, of the Welch Bros. Co. staff, is spending a vacation in New York state. I noted at this store some fine shipments of Beauty roses, gladioli and orchids.

Johnston Knight, manager of the Boston Coöperative Flower Market, is spending his vacation on the north shore of Massachusetts.

H. Hartford, of the staff of Wax Bros., is enjoying the month of July in New Hampshire. W. N. Craig.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

There is little to report on market conditions, except that extreme dullness prevails. The supply of stock last week was large, with the quality poor in all grades and the demand light. Roses were of inferior quality. Prices ranged from 50 cents per hundred up. The locally grown stock has the greater demand. Carnations are in heavy supply and small of bloom. These are offered as low as $5 per thousand. Only a small percentage of first-grade stock brought $2 per hundred. Gladioli are coming in finely and the daily supply of these will be large from now on. The demand for them has been large all the week. Mrs. Francis King, America, Augusta and Pink Beauty have the call. Extra good blooms bring $4 per hundred. Sweet peas still are arriving heavily. Extra choice stock sells well. Shasta daisies also are good sellers. There are large quantities of outdoor flowers, but these have only a light

50 years' experience in the florist business guarantees efficiency to take care of all orders. 20 per cent allowed demand. Smilax, ferns and asparagus meet with a good demand.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its monthly meeting July 5, at the Eleven Mile House. The meeting was well attended. Much business was disposed of and it was decided to hold the annual picnic next month, at Creve Coeur lake. The recent loss by hail was fully discussed.

E. Buechel, head of the Riessen Floral Co., took a week's rest at Union, Mo. During his absence Miss Pauline Buechel had charge of the store. She reports a busy week of funeral work.

Peter Pfaender, assistant to David Geddis, of Vandervoort's flower department, is on a vacation this week. On his return Edward Westerman will take a two weeks' vacation. A good summer business is the report here.
